THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseperable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

Spring Luncheon

Molly Varnum Chapter of DAR Holds Installation of Officers

LOWELL—The Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held installation of its newly elected officers following a delightful spring luncheon meeting at the Spalding house, with a record number attending.

Mrs. Clarence Edwards, retiring regent was hostess of the day with members of the DAR providing their favorite culinary specialties for the luncheon.

Mrs. Edwards then presided at the business meeting and called upon the newly elected regent, Mrs. Frederick Burne to present her report on the 74th Continental Congress which both attended in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Burne gave a vividly descriptive account of their trip and the activities of the Congress, the theme of which was "American Values—Past and Present." She reported that there are 2082 chapters of the DAR in the United States with a total membership of approximately 187,000 women, the high percentage of them under 36 years of age. There were 7829 verified new members during the past year and 23,273 new members in the past three years.

The financial worth of the DAR runs into millions, said Mrs. Burne with its ownership of the buildings on 17th and 18th streets in the capitol, and a large share in American industry. Investments total $1,633,700. Dues last year amounted to more than a half million dollars, $20,220 of which were realized from the rental of Constitution Hall. The sum of $182,000 was disbursed for DAR schools.

Mrs. Burne then described the Massachusetts Room which she and Mrs. Edwards visited, saying both could vouch for its authenticity of reproduction of the family room of the Hancock-Clark house in Lexington. The Massachusetts Room is one of the 28 rooms maintained by the DAR and was recreated by the organization at the cost of $10,000.

BOTH LOWELLIANS took great pride in visiting the DAR library with its weatlh of genealogical volumes. They attended fine programs by the U. S. Marine and Naval bands and a number of organ recitals before they attended the picturesque installation of officers, during which Mrs. William H. Sullivan of Scarsdale, N. Y. became president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Both delegates of the local chapter joined other members among the delegates for a grand tour of the White House. The viewing of national shrines, monuments and memorials was brought to a close with a visit to President Kennedy's grave. Highlight of the last day at the congress was the spectacular banquet attended by the 4000-delegates.

Among the resolutions taken in the diamond jubilee year of the organization, the Daughters resolved to rededicate themselves, to hold fast to tradition and the principles which made our nation great.

Installed for the new term was Mrs. Frederick Burne, regent; Mrs. Herman Davis, vice regent; Mrs. Charles D. Piper, chaplain; Mrs. Charles E. Watt, recording secretary; Mrs. William B. MacDonald, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ralph E. Duncanson, treasurer; Mrs. George J. Morse, registrar; Mrs. Chester M. Runels, historian; Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, librarian; Mrs. George R. Griggin, curator and Mrs. Clarence Edwards, chairman of good cheer.

Directors for the coming year will be Miss Emily N. Wiggin, Mrs. Dewey S. Darling, Mrs. G. Russell Dana and Mrs. J. Eugene Gordon.

In Tradition

Summer Salad Queens

A foursome of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR's most outstanding culinary experts whose original and appetizing recipes were appreciated by all attending the annual luncheon are, left to right, Mrs. Elmer Truesdale at the punch bowl; Mrs. George R. Griffin, who makes the most delicious meat balls; Mrs. George J. Morse, who contributed the baked crabmeat, and Mrs. Chester Runels, famous for her jellied salads. All four were voted the DAR's salad queens of the season.

Party Specials

Jellied Molds, Meat Balls, Baked Crabmeat Make Good Menu Mates

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL — Prettiest bouquets of the season come from vegetable gardens, according to the many culinary experts of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR whose members held a grand variety annual luncheon at the Spalding house featuring hot and cold dishes that make excellent menu mates for any special occasion. Salads prepared by the DAR's summer salad queens were colorful conversation pieces. The variety was eye-catching, palate tickling, refreshing and nutritious.

The menu served was a classic example of a buffet style meal most appropriate for entertaining indoors or outside during the season. After a cooling fruit punch most guests will welcome something hot to go with the salads and jellied molds so popular at summer events.

Mrs. George Griffin's recipe for easy to make delicious meat balls always rates an encore. It calls for two slices of bread, soaked in milk; one onion diced; two eggs; two tablespoons salt, pepper to taste and two pounds ground round steak.

Mix first six ingredients then add meat. Roll into balls and brown, a few at a time. Put in casserole and bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes.

Mrs. George J. Morse invariably makes a hit when she serves baked crabmeat casserole. The secret of her success may be achieved, says she, with ½ cup chopped celery; two tablespoons green pepper and ½ cup butter, cooked until tender; two tablespoons flour, one cup milk and ½ teaspoon salt added to the first three ingredients while stirring continually, dash pepper, egg yolk to which a little cream sauce is added; one pound crabmeat; two tablespoons melted butter and ½ cup buttered bread crumbs. Add ingredients to each other in given order except bread crumbs. Place all in casserole and cover with bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven until brown.

MRS. WALTER Morse makes a delightful cranberry salad, ideal for a buffet. It requires one package plain gelatin; one-eighth teaspoon salt, three tablespoons sugar. Mix ingredients well. Add one cup cold water. Place in saucepan over low heat until dissolved. When heavy syrup is achieved beat in one cup salad dressing; add one pound can whole cranberry sauce; one apple or orange cut thin with peel or rind; one eight-ounce can pineapple tid-bits and one-fourth cup chopped walnuts. Place in mold and refrigerate.

A molded fruit medley is always refreshing. Mrs. Chester Runels has a double duty recipe which is excellent as salad or dessert. It may be served as a mold or in sherbert glasses and requires one envelope unflavored gelatin; one-half cup cold water; two tablespoons sugar, one-half cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted; one ripe banana, mashed; one cup mashed strawberries; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one cup heavy cream, whipped; one pint chilled orange and grapefruit sections, drained; one cup sliced strawberries and banana.

In a saucepan, sprinkle the gelatin over the water. Place over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatine is dissolved, two to three minutes. Remove from heat; stir in sugar until dissolved, then orange concentrate, mashed banana, strawberries and salt. Chill until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon. Fold in whipped cream. Turn ito a four-cup mold or individual glasses. Chill until firm, about four hours. Unfold and surround with remaining fruit. Makes six servings.

Another even easier to make salad is suggested by Mrs. Runels. It requires two packages strawberry jello and three cups canned fruit for salad. Follow directions on the package, drain fruit and use liquid with water. Mold until firm.

DAR's Diamond Jubilee Next Week in Washington

WASHINGTON—The Daughters of the American Revolution celebrate their 75th anniversary next week with events keyed to the historical, educational and patriotic objectives of the 185,000-member society.

Highlight of the diamond jubilee observances Sunday will be a concert by the National Symphony Orchestra, featuring the first full-scale performance of "The American Flag" in 70 years.

Daughters of American Revolution To Celebrate Diamond Jubilee

LOWELL — For where the Spirit of the Lord Is, There Is Liberty. The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution was founded on October 11, 1890 by Caroline Scott Harrison, wife of President Benjamin Harrison. This year, the Society is celebrating its 75th anniversary or Diamond Jubilee, with Mrs. William Henry Sullivan as president general and indeed the Daughters have reason to be proud of the growth of their Society.

From a treasury of $33.00, they now possess the largest group of buildings in the world owned and maintained exclusively by women. There are chapters distributed throughout the fifty states and overseas chapters in England, France, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Canal Zone, and Cuba. In our state of Massachusetts, there are 89 chapters with 4,818 members. The National society numbers approximately 185,000 members. There are 7,000 members between 18 and 35 years of age.

The objectives of the DAR are historic preservation, promotion of education, and patriotic endeavor. The first project of the Daughters was a monument to Mary Washington, the Memorial Bell Tower at Valley Forge at a cost of one-half million dollars. Another project was the statue of the Madonna of the Trail," erected in 1927 as a coast-to-coast memorial to the pioneer mothers of America, exemplifying their strength and faith and the vision of the DAR in helping to pave the way for "One Nation under God". One stone was given by the National Society in the building of the Cathedral of the Pines in Rindge, N.H., and the members have held an annual pilgrimage to the shrine since 1948.

THE DAR has contributed $5,200,000 to school programs in the past 60 years, exclusive of Student Loan Funds. They own and operate the Kate Duncan Smith DAR school in Alabama and the Tamassee DAR school in South Carolina. In Massachusetts, the society has endorsed and has highly contributed to the Hillside school for underprivileged boys 8 to 16 years of age, maintaining a high standard in education and patriotism. It supports two Indian schools in Bacone, Okla. with 600 students from 40 Indian tribes, our very first American people. St. Mary's School for Indian Girls in Springfield, S.D. is another of their many projects. The Society gives an annual award of $1,000 to the senior high school girl who possesses an outstanding degree of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism, from each state an award of $100 is given.

In 1923, on Ellis Island, the DAR distributed needlework supplies and sewing materials to those women immigrants detained at the Island, and the project was so successful in maintaining a quiet attitude, that the government requested it be increased to gifts to the men, waiting to enter our country.

From a small beginning, the DAR Constitution Hall in Washington has become the cultural and educational center of the District of Columbia — the home of the National Symphony orchestra, and due to its excellent accoustics, many societies, including the National Geographic society, hold weekly lectures in the great hall.

Contrary to public opinion, Constitution Hall offered the hall, without fee, for benefit performances to aid War Relief, and in 1943 the NSDAR sponsored a concert in which Miss Marion Anderson, the great Negro artist raised $7400 for United China Relief.

ANOTHER LITTLE - known project was the purchase and conservation of a grove of California redwoods which the DAR dedicated to the service men and women of World War II.

Once, a member of the DAR wrote of our Constitution, "I am your birthright, your heritage bought and paid for in blood and sacrifice. I am your title deed to freedom which is yours to hold in trust for posterity. If you fail to keep the trust inviolate, I am nullified, destroyed, or impaired, you and your children will cease to be free Americans and will become slaves to dictators and despots."

The best way to maintain our great heritage is to emphasize the vital rights and freedom won by our past patriots, and the Daughters honor the principles for which those patriots fought and died. They do not believe in "ancestor worship" as is commonly said of them, but they DO respect the great heritage bequeathed to us all. Two-fifths of the world today are working in every country to destroy these same principles of liberty and basic rights of our people which the DAR strives to preserve.

The world of tomorrow lies in today's young people and it is their sacred duty to guide their children who will carry on our glorious tradition. There is NO nation on earth where women are empowered to do so much for their country.

Love of country, respect for our flag, and belief in the Constitution cannot be bought — they had to be won through hundreds of years of hardship, deprivation, courage, and individual service to these United States. At no other time, have we had to keep these hard-won ideals more strongly in mind.

In place of ridicule and derision, the Daughters of the American Revolution, would like the people of our Nation to know that the Society is one of the oldest organizations in our country and it is their constant belief that it is the duty of the women in their homes to guide their children into strong, patriotic adulthood and set the standards of peace and happiness for the years ahead.

IT HAS BEEN inferred that the organization of the DAR has attempted to imitate the government of the United States. There has been much questioning and criticism in their plan of organization. If it is considered arrogant to sponsor the right of local self-government and the right of that union which creates our great nation, then we are NOT the daughters of the "men and women who with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American independence, served as a sailor, or a soldier, or civil officer in one of the several Colonies or States, or in the United Colonies or States, or as a recognized patriot, or rendered material aid thereto."

While many nations on earth trace their origins to barbarians, the foundation of our Nation was laid by Civilized Christians. Many times this heritage has been sedulously immortalized in satirical anecdotes, and imperfect though these founders might have been, the models of their moral excellence, their civil and religious liberty are inferior only to the eye of God; and to ridicule them — particularly now — is national suicide. The world will forever be indebted to these pioneers. God bless their memory.

The Daughters of the American Revolution pledge is the following: "I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a soverign nation of many sovereign states, a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies."

THE LOWELL SUN, SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1966

DAR Luncheon Tuesday

LOWELL — The Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR will meet Tuesday afternoon, June 14, at 1 o'clock at the Spalding House, Pawtucket Street, for an informal buffet luncheon.

Immediately after a brief business meeting, installation of officers will be held and a program of entertainment will be presented for the enjoyment of the members.

Hostesses for the afternoon will be members of the hospitality committee.

Mrs. Dewey S. Darling was hostess for the luncheon meeting of the board of management this week.

All members are urged to attend this social event which has always proved popular in the past and promises to be a highlight of the chapter's activities of the season.

THE LOWELL SUN, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1966

At Annual DAR Luncheon

DAR Culinary Experts At Work

Summertime is salad time and when the DAR culinary experts get together one can expect the most delicious and refreshing products of their inventive spirits as shown in the variation of fruit, vegetable, mold and ring salads they prepared. From left to right, are, Mrs. Dewey S. Darling, regent, inviting chapter members to taste a chip and dip combination; Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, vice regent and her cream topped fruit mold; Mrs. Charles E. Watt, secretary, and her strawberry delight, and Mrs. Walter E. Morse, chaplain, displaying a perfection mold.

Perfection Mold

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL — Summer is here, no doubt about it, and so is the national craving for the eye-catching, cold, appetizing and palate-tickling salads, both large and small, savory and sweet, said Mrs. Dewey S. Darling, regent of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR, as she displayed a number of variations of the most popular fruit and vegetable hot weather specialties made by the members.

Fresh fruit and the season's vegetables are the answer to the ever present hot weather problem facing any housewife who has a family to feed. Summertime always challenges the inventive spirit when it comes to preparing something appealing to every member of the family when the thermometer keeps mounting.

Especially popular these days is cantaloupe and avocado salad. Alternate slices of avocado which have been peeled and dipped in lemon juice, with slices of flavorful cataloupe on crisp lettuce leaves. For variation of texture and flavor, says Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, vice regent of the chapter, tuck in a few sections of canned or fresh grapefruit.

Mrs. Walter E. Morse, chaplain of the chapter, says her favorite salad is the perfection mold, because of its flavored ingredients, its beauty and its many uses. In her recipe the basic ingredients are kept, namely shredded cabbage, planty of bright red pimentos, diced celery and she suggests these variations. For varition number one, instead of plain gelatin, use one of the new vegetable or salad flavored gelatin mixes along with a tart dressing. If more tang is desired, add a drop of Tabasco. Another variation calls for chopped ripe olives, and still another can be achieved with ¼ to ½ cup of well drained tiny peas as a change for the olives.

THIS excellent salad is the perfect complement to hot or cold fried chicken, roast lamb or beef and all kinds of fish. It also lends itself well as the center for an all-salad luncheon. If used for the latter suggestion, surround it with other cold salads such as tuna, chicken, shrimp or crabmeat and decorate the platter with pimento cut-outs and ripe olives.

1 package vegetable flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
¾ cups cold water
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 tablespoons French dressing
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup diced celery

Sun Menu

Grapefruit Juice Cooler
Southern Fried Chicken
Whipped Potatoes
Green Peas Buttered Squash
Corn on the Cob
Perfection Salad Mold
Pecan Rolls
Butter
Watermelon Wedges
Iced Coffee

1 cup diced celery
1 cup shredded green cabbage
1 jar or can (7 oz.) pimientos, drained
¼ cup chopped ripe olives

Dissolve gelatin in hot water, stir in cold water and vinegar, dressing and salt. Chill mixture until very thick, then stir in remaining ingredients. The pimiento may be cut into large pieces, made into cut-outs or chopped into small pieces. Pour into a six to eight cup salad mold and chill until firm. Unmold onto salad greens and garnish with additional pimiento and black olives. Makes six to eight servings.

Mrs. Charles E. Watt, secretary of the chapter, recommends a California summer salad for serving at the patio or the poolside. Cut a honey dew lengthwise and remove seeds. Use half for cutting out melon balls. Put a bed of lettuce on a cold glass plate. Cut the other melon half in quarters. Decorate the center with green grapes and put melon balls on the sides. Garnish with a dollop of sour cream and a dash of cinnamon.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

Spirit of Thanksgiving

"Peace Corps" Topic of DAR Molly Varnum Chapter Meeting

LOWELL — Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent, conducted the pre-Thanksgiving meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding House, Pawtucket St., and highlighted by a most interesting speaking program.

Devotions were read by Mrs. Walter Morse and patriotic exercises were led by Miss Leslie Chenery at the piano.

During the first portion of the program Mrs. George Griffin spoke on National Defense. Her topic was, "Prices of Food and how these effect people in the East and West."

Mrs. John R. Flather, guest speaker of the afternoon, gave an interesting talk on the "Peace Corps." Her son Newell Flather and her daughter, Betsy, joined the Peace Corps when it first sarted and experienced very trying times. Mr. Flather went to Ghana where he found the climate very hard to cope with.

Both were received in Washington and greeted by the late President Kennedy and Sargent Shriver before they left for their respective assignments.

As a result of a book drive conducted in Lowell for her son and daughter, 5000 books were collected said Mrs. Flather. Betsy went over to catalogue the books in the library and started a drive for screens. The Ford Foundation gave Newell a scholarship on which he went to college in Ghana and he later taught English and African history in a school there.

Another interesting fact she related to her audience, concerned Mrs. Flather's son Roger, who went to the Philippines with his wife and children and then went to Borneo where another child was born to them. Today Roger is working with some of the many people who are coming to the U. S. from foreign lands.

All members of the chapter greatly enjoyed Mrs. Flather's talk about the Peace Corps and contributions made to it by members of her immediate family.

DAR Campaign To Observe American History Month

LOWELL — During this month, February, the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution of which Mrs. William Henry Sullivan, Jr. is president general, is conducting a vigorous campaign to make all Americans, particularly school children, conscious of our American History through the observance of American History Month.

Fifty DAR State organizations, plus the District of Columbia and the Canal Zone, through nearly 300 chapters, have arranged for various means of observance of historic events occurring since the early days of our country.

For instance, governors and mayors have issued proclamations designating February as American History Month, historical essays and other appropriate activities have been arranged in schools; American History Month posters and stickers are being used extensively, and special public patriotic meetings are being conducted.

The purpose of this observance by the DAR is to safeguard, through knowledge and appreciation, our American Heritage.

An historic event commemorated on the first day of February, was the first meeting of the Supreme Court of the United States, held Feb. 1, 1790, with Chief Justice John Jay presiding.

GOOD CITIZEN of the year, Rose Marie Clement, 17, Barnstable, receives her pin from state regent Mrs. George S. Tollman III, Hingham.

Barnstable Girl Is DAR Good Citizen of 1967

By BARBARA BURNS

Rose Marie Clement, 17, burst into tears Wednesday when she won the Massachusetts Good Citizen of 1967 award, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Clement, the Barnstable High School senior was chosen from over 200 Good Citizen candidates attending an opening session of the DAR state conference in the Sheraton Plaza.

State regent Mrs. George S. Tolman, III, Hingham, is presiding at the two-day conference.

Three hundred DAR delegates —representing 6,000 members in 87 chapters across the state — voted at an afternoon session to accept the following resolutions:

● To commend Boston radio and television stations WHDH and WBZ for their panel discussion and documentary programs of educational, historical and patriotic nature, all in the public interest;

● To oppose legislation that would change the dates of historic events (specifically House Bill 3583, which would have Patriots Day celebrated on the third Monday in April rather than on April 19):

● To urge Congress to enact a law establishing a loyalty oath that is constitutional;

● To commend the Massachusetts House of Representatives for defeating Bill S655 (Fluoridation Referendum);

● And to commend comedian Bob Hope for his continuing efforts to entertain U. S. servicemen and women overseas.

Honorary state regent Mrs. Willard F. Richards, Plymouth, presented the resolutions.

The state regent announced that officers will delay their decision on a real estate entanglement involving the DAR State Forest at Goshen until midsummer. In question is a swapping of acres between the state, which now owns the forest, and a private landowner nearby.

"We gave the land—1020 acres of forest—to the state in 1929, with restrictions that it be maintained for conservation and preservation of wildlife," Mrs. Tolman explained.

"Private landowners would like about 75 acres of the frontage on Highland Lake to expand a boy's camp. In return they have offered seven acres of reservoir frontage the state would like to own, and they've asked us to lift our reserictions on the State Forest property, opening it for recreational purposes."

A DAR committee will have to view the land before making a decision — and they'll have to wait until weather permits, Mrs. Tolman said.

Guest speakers at the morning session focused attention on the young Good Citizens who had been elected by their own classmates and sponsored by local DAR chapters. Both City Council president Barry T. Hynes and Lt. Gov. Francis Sargent congratulated the girls and praised the DAR for fulfilling an obligation and responsibility to the younger generation.

The Jonathan Hatch Chapter, DAR, sponsored Miss Clement, their second winner in a row. Dianne Purpra of Orleans, the 1966 Good Citizen, took time from classes at Westbrook Junior College in Portland, Me., to be at the meeting and draw her successor's name from among the finalists. State chairman of the good citizens program, Mrs. Theodore J. Yusko, Hingham, took all 200 girls to luncheon and on a tour of Historical Boston following the meeting.

Mrs. H. Grady Jacobs, executive secretary of the Kate Duncan Smith School DAR in Alabama, addressed the afternoon meeting and outlined the workings of the national school committee.

An evening banquet featured entertainment, a formal processional and a reception for state officers and guests.

The conference reconvenes at 10 a.m. Thursday for final reports and an address by national DAR historian Mrs. Forrest F. Lange.

Conditions In Far East Described at DAR Meeting

LOWELL — Mrs. Elsie Howell, introduced to members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR by Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent, was the guest speaker at the March meeting of the group held at the Spaulding House. She gave a revealing illustrated lecture on conditions in the Far East.

Mrs. Darling presided at the business meeting held prior to the lecture and Mrs. Walter Morse led devotions. Patriotic exercises were conducted with piano accompaniment by Mrs. George Morse.

Mrs. Howell, a nurse, whose station was Sarawa, gave detailed descriptions of the poverty and disease which prevail there. She spent three years in a small mission hospital on the tropical island of Borneo, three degrees from the equator where the temperature never goes below 71 degrees and where 100 degrees of humidity are often recorded. She told her audience about the population, the majority of which is Chinese and she gave examples of the difficulties encountered because of the lack of communications and roads.

She deplored the lack of health standards and those of cleanliness and said the life expectancy of the average individual there is 35 years. She described the difficulty of living amid disease where there is no organized supervision of any kind, and she told how children who have never played with toys, start very young to do chores, sell rice, pineapple or whatever they can. While very young they have full responsibility of those younger than they.

Adults, said Mrs. Howell, are always busy fishing or making fish nets, and as many as 30 to 50 people live in cramped quarters together. Less than one per cent of the people are Christians.

Concluding her remarks, Mrs. Howell said we are about 500 years ahead of people in that area where only two of 50 babies born can be expected to live, and she said conditions are such that there is no time to teach only to heal.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Walter B. Morse, Miss Edith Baldwin, Mrs. Charles Talbot II, Mrs. Benjamin Mahoney, Mrs. George Morse and Miss Glennes Ranlett. Mrs. Ralph Duncanson presided at the silver urns during the tea.

THE LOWELL SUN, THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1967

Chicken Jubilee, Rice Ring Ideal For Summer Functions

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL — When Mrs. Ray E. MacAusland, widely known musician, plans a menu, the courses blend harmoniously, and are served somewhat in the rhythmic sequence that one naturally associates with music.

Mrs. MacAusland is the former Marjorie Lake. A native of Lowell, she was educated at Lowell High school, Boston University and the New England Conservatory of Music. She also studied music under Richard Hallinger, renowned Metropolitan Opera Co. accompanist, in Salzburg, Austria, where she attended the famous festivals, while on some of her many travels on the continent with her husband, Ray E. MacAusland, now retired. He was an instructor in the Chemistry department at Lowell Technological Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. MacAusland, who make their home at 528 Westford St., spent six summers in Europe and visited Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, France and East Berlin. Their travels also took them as far north as Alaska and beyond the border to Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay.

The couple has four children. All married, they are: Calvin, an industrial engineer who makes his home in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Douglas, who owns and operates an automobile business in Pittsburgh; Donald, assistant principal of Darrian High school, Wilton, Conn., presently spending the summer in Hawaii with his family, and Mrs. Robert (Ruth) Mullarkey, a teacher in the Wilmington school system. The MacAuslands also have 11 grandchildren.

Mrs. MacAusland, who takes great pride in the fact that she is a direct descendant of Capt. Zachariah Fitch, who led the Minute Men and for whom Fitchburg was named, holds membership in the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Middlesex Women's Club and the Lowell General Hospital Women's Association.

A MUSIC teacher and linquist, having studied German and Spanish extensively, Mrs. MacAusland formerly wrote a music column for a Lowell daily and several of her articles have appeared in weekly magazines.

She firmly believes that the Pilgrims may have been the first to barbecue a turkey when they spit-roasted theirs over an open fire, but her favorite meats are chicken and steak. She is an expert at combining unusuals in casserole cookery and her salads are as eye appealing as they are delicious.

Soup, she refers to, not only as a magical restorative but a marvelous seasoner, too. An excellent recipe for club or circle functions or for summer entertaining at home is Chicken Jubilee made with chicken rice soup mix, chicken breasts and a special sauce full of plump dark, sweet cherries.

It's the delicious sauce which gives the poultry such delicate, delicious flavor—and the sauce starts with an envelope of chicken, rice soup mix. Chicken jubilee is the kind of dish one would expect to find in a fine restaurant, but it's simple to prepare at home and proves itself a favorite with the most difficult to please.

CHICKEN JUBILEE

4 chicken breasts, boned, skinned, halved

1 jar (1 pound 1 oz) pitted dark cherries drained (reserve liquid)

2 tablespoons kirsch

¼ cup flour

½ teaspoon salt

⅛ teaspoon white pepper

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 envelope (1½ oz) chicken rice soup mix

1½ cups boiling water

⅓ cup dry wine

In small shallow bowl, sprinkle cherries with kirsch; set aside and turn occasionally. Kirsch may be substituted by 1 tablespoon brandy extract with 1 tablespoon of water.

Combine flour, salt and pepper; dredge chicken breasts in this seasoned flour. In a large deep skillet, melt butter and saute chicken breasts on both sides until delicately browned.

In medium bowl, combine chicken rice soup mix, boiling water, and ¾ to one cup of the reserved cherry liquid. Stir and add to sauteed chicken breasts. Cover; simmer about 20 minutes or until tender. Remove chicken breasts to platter and keep warm.

Add wine to liquid in skillet; cook over high heat, stirring frequently until liquid thickens. Add cherries and kirsch; heat thoroughly. Pour cherry mixture over chicken breasts on platter. Makes eight servings. A buttered green peas rice ring is an excellent accompaniment.

For a salad change, try this impressive lemon mushroom delicacy sure to please the most discriminating palates.

LEMON MUSHROOM SALAD

1 head lettuce

½ pound fresh mushrooms thinly sliced.

2 tomatoes sliced

½ cup salad oil.

⅓ cup bottled lemon juice

2 teaspoons seasoned salt

½ teaspoon sugar

½ teaspoon cracked pepper

½ teaspoon basil

¼ teaspoon marjoram

¼ teaspon oregano

¼ teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon garlic powder

Wash mushrooms; slice thinly in a jar, combine oil, bottled lemon juice, seasoned with salt, sugar, pepper, basil, marjoram, oregano, salt and garlic powder. Shake mixture well. Four marinade over sliced mushrooms. Cover lightly and marinate overnight to allow mushrooms to absorb the flavors, Serve over wedge of lettuce topped with tomato slice.

Garnished ham rolls are ideal for club luncheons, bridge parties or as a special dinner course. Ham slices may be filled depending on the occasion, with asparagus spears brushed with mayonnaise; with potato salad; with a variety of cream cheese mixtures or with crabmeat, and served with a fruit gelatin mold, hard cooked eggs, olives and buttered, thinly-sliced rye bread.

Lemon Mushroom Salad

Try A Porcupine Beef Ball

Make Ahead Salad

This tempting and delicious make ahead fruit and nut salad is ideal as a refreshing summer dessert. Canned sliced peaches with jellied cranberry sauce is the complementary combination in this time-saving recipe. Especially good in hot weather, it may be featured on year round menus.

Crab Corn Bake Casserole The DAR Way a Summer Treat

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL—It's that time of year when hot weather appetites need to be brought out of the doldrums said Mrs. Dewey S. Darling of 105 Beacon St., widely known grand regent of the Molly Varnum chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Nothing could do this more effectively than a glance at the tempting dishes traditionally prepared by the women of this national organization, for their regularly held social events.

Just the thing for entertaining at luncheon or for a family meal is a crab corn bake casserole or porcupine beef balls served with potato salad, chilled, crisp condiments, hot rolls and butter, topped with make ahead fruit salad or Mrs. Darling's special strawberry pie.

A fruit salad is cool, simple and refreshing and when a dish has the combination of those qualities, one can not fail to please every member of the family or guests. A salad can always be the grand finale of a meal and can be as pretty to look at as it is good to eat.

Make ahead fruit salads are extremely popular with the busy DAR women. Of course there are always a few last minute fixings necessary but with a molded fruit salad in the refrigerator, ready and waiting for attractive service, the success of any luncheon or dinner party is assured. A special favorite with the Molly Varnum chapter members is a combination of sliced peaches and jellied cranberry sauce. The unusual flavor and color combination is complementary and makes an especially nice accompaniment for any kind of meat or fish

Another DAR member, Mrs. G. Russell Dana of 9 Lantern Lane, Chelmsford, an excellent cook, suggests the following casserole for a luncheon menu.

CRAB CORN BAKE CASSEROLE

1 cup flaked crab meat
1 (12 oz.) can whole kernel corn.
3 chopped hard cooked eggs
1 tablespoon snipped parsley
2 teaspoons lemon junice
1 tablespoon minced onion.
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

In 1½ quart casserole, toss crab meat with corn, eggs, parsley, and lemon juice. In saucepan, cook onion in 3 tablespoons butter for 3 minutes. Stir in flour, mustard, milk and cook stirring until thick. Add salt and Worcestershire sauce. Turn into casserole, and toss with fork.

Melt 1 tablespoon butter: stir in crumbs and cheese and sprinkle on top of casserole. Bake uncovered at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes six servings.

To prepare ahead, refrigerate unbaked casserole until 40 minutes before serving. Then bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes.

Always popular at a party are these porcupine beef balls according to an old fashioned recipe which Mrs. Charles E. Watt generously shared with us.

PORCUPINE BEEF BALLS

1 pound hamburg
½ cup raw rice
1 can tomatoes or tomato soup
Salt and pepper to taste
Chopped onion

Mix meat, rice, onions, salt and pepper. Form into balls and place in baking dish. Pour tomatoes over all. Bake 1 hour at 400 degrees. When done, rice sticks are like porcupine quills. Recipe may be doubled, if desired.

Voted the DAR's most popular year round salad was this delicious combination of peaches, cheese, walnuts and cranberry sauce.

MAKE AHEAD FRUIT SALAD

1 can (1 pound 12 oz.) sliced peaches
1 package (3 oz.) black raspberry flavored gelatin
2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
1 cup cottage cheese
¼ cup chopped walnuts
1 can (1 pound) jellied cranberry sauce
chopped mint

Heat 1 cup of the syrup drained from the peaches to boiling point; remove from heat. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice, cottage cheese and nuts; mix well. Gently stir in the cranberry sauce, cut in cubes. Pour into a ring mold and chill until firm. To serve, unmold the salad on a plate and fill the center with chilled peach slices. Sprinkle with chopped mint and serve with your favorite dressing. Makes eight generous servings.

There is probably no dessert more typically American than pie . . . particularly those crisp, golden-crusted, fruit filled creations that grace the finale of a meal. Mrs. Darling, the DAR's grand regent, masters the art of making crisp, flaky pastry and can turn out what everyone calls a perfect pie. When making her crusts or shells she keeps the dough soft and pliable but never sticky or wet. She has a repertoire of pie recipes but she especially likes this one and so do all who have tasted it.

FRESH STRAWBERRY PIE

9 inch pie shell baked
1 quart fresh hulled strawberries
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
lemon juice (Optional)

Line baked shell with whole strawberries. Combine sugar and other ingredients cook over low heat slowly until thick and clear. Pour glaze over the strawberries and chill. Serve whipped cream and garnish with whole berries.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

— William Tyler Page

Daughters of American Revolution To Observe Constitution Week

LOWELL — Mrs. Dewey S. Darling, grand regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has announced that members of the chapter will take active part in various ways next week to mark the observance of Constitution week.

President Johnson has proclaimed the week of Sept. 17 to 23 a time for the entire nation to be grateful to our Revolutionary freedom fighters at Valley Forge, whose courage and bravery made our American heritage secure.

The entire week will be observed by patriotic citizens throughout the land, and on this the 180th anniversary, of the adoption of our unique Constitution, special attention should be given to its sound provisions, high principles, and unsurpassed ideals. Our Constitution is not merely a Bill of Rights, it is a Bill of Obligations. It is a covenant binding citizens as well as the Government to its support and all citizens should continue to protect the Constitution so that it may continue to protect us.

The purpose of Constitution Week so declared by an Act of Congress and a Proclamation of the President is to revitalize appreciation for the Law of the Land and stress in words and spirit the "blessings of Liberty."

THE Daughters of the Revolution ask all organizations and all citizens to give thoughful consideration to the events that led to the framing of the Constitution and emphasize the study of it in their homes, schools, churches, civic groups and community centers.

The week affords opportunity for the schools and churches to hold appropriate ceremonies to inspire all citizens to keep the faith of our Founding Fathers. This is a religious Nation made up of religiuos people, and running through all American history are the golden threads of religious conviction. The DAR request that all be mindful that our country will survive as long as she remains loyal to her spiritual heritage. Members of the organization also ask that citizens recognize the Constitution concept that all men are free and equal, endowed by their Creator with the unalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for this American ideal embodies the sum total of the wisdom, the religious faith, the courage and the sacrifice of our Founding Fathers.

At Autumn Tea

Molly Varnum

"Mrs. Nobody Goes Somewhere" Featured Topic At DAR Meeting

LOWELL — The Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR held it's first meeting of the season at the Spalding House with a record number of members and DAR visitors from Methuen. They were greeted by the local chapter board members and standing committee chairmen.

Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, vice regent presided in the absence of Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent. Mrs. Walter B. Morse gave the invocation and the secretary, Mrs. Charles Watt gave her report. Miss Emily Wiggin, curator, told the members of the vast amount of improvements that were made in the Spalding House this past year. Mrs. John Crowe was received as a new member.

The speaker was, Mrs. Louise Morse, and her subject, was "Mrs. Nobody Goes Somewhere". Mrs. Morse has delighted many audiences with her illustrated talks and she was well received by the DAR.

Her pictures took the audience through Venezuela, its virgin forests and to the largest waterfall in the world-the Angel Falls. These falls are three times the height of Niagara Falls but not so wide. She showed a picture of the thatched roof huts, where the natives lived. The houses are practically bare except for a chair, table and a hammock for sleeping. On her tarvels Mrs. Morse always carries 30 pounds of babies' clothing which she collects from friends and organizations to distribute in the village. Her pictures are most unusual. They demonstrate the joy of the mothers, as they receive the gifts brought them.

Mrs. Morse also talked about India and showed pictures of people in Jeipour. Here the children in the schools are given pamphlets on birth control to take home.

She also showed pictures of the Leper Colony in India. Money was raised, through the work with C A R E, for a well, which the people urgently needed. Despite the misfortunes of the colony, the people still seem to have high ambitions to better themselves.

Refreshments were served, after the meeting, by Miss Glennis Ranlett chairman and Miss Blanche Gray co-chairman of the hospitality committee. Mrs. Albert Catherwood was the pourer.

DAR Membership In State Looking Up

By BARBARA BURNS

Reuben Sprague, born in Hingham, was a drummer boy in the Revolutionary War. Seth Sprague of Duxbury — no relation to Reuben —was a private in America's fight for freedom.

Over a century and a half later, two of their descendants —Ann Sprague and George Sprague Tolman III—met, carried on a courtship sometimes confusing since he was called by his middle name, married and settled in Hingham.

They live in a fine old house that was built well before 1800 —and some day they'll find the time to trace the house's geneology as carefully as they have their own.

"THE HOUSE was probably built on State Street in Boston," Ann Sprague Tolman says. "A lot of homes there were moved when State was widened in 1890. They floated them down to Hingham on barges."

The Tolmans have furnished their home mostly in Colonial period pieces. "We love to go antiquing," Mrs. Tolman says. "But we won't buy anything we can't sit in safely."

Because she was a descendant of Reuben, the drummer boy, she was eligible to join the Daughters of the American Revolution. She joined 21 years ago through the Old Colony Chapter of Hingham.

This year Mrs. Tolman is in her third and last year as State Regent of the Massachusetts DAR. Behind her are terms as state treasurer and vice regent.

Ahead of her, perhaps, is a term as National Librarian.

"Mrs. Irwin Symmes of Delaware, has declared herself a candidate for National Regent, and asked me to be on her slate," Mrs. Tolman says. Should she win, she would be custodian of the third largest geneological library in the country.

"It's a well known, often used library," she says. "It's in Washington, D.C., and open to any citizen who wants to trace his family tree.

"MASSACHUSETTS Daughters made one of the first major contributions to the library. They purchased the 1850 U.S. census for it.

"States have quotas they have to fill, collecting family geneologies and town histories for the library. And of course, we do lineage research for potential DAR members who apply."

There has been a marked increase in applications for DAR membership in Massachusetts, Mrs. Tolman says, just as there has been a net gain all over the country. The state roster is at 4,600.

"I'm especially glad to see increased membership among the Junior DAR groups in the state," she says. "They're members between 18 and 35 years old. They function as separate junior units and also within senior DAR chapters.

"I think membership in all kinds of groups goes in cycles," Mrs. Tolman adds. "We're on the upswing.

"PART OF THE reason, I believe, is the general appeal of our educational objectives. National DAR owns two schools, supports seven others, and annually gives a $1000 scholarship to an outstanding high school student. Projects with great appeal are St. Mary's School for Indian Girls in So. Dakota and Bacone Indian College.

"Locally, the Massachusetts DAR awards scholarships to outstanding girls, and supports the Hillside School for Boys in Marlboro."

Increasing scholarship aid at Hillside, in fact, will be one of the strong suggestions Mrs. Tolman will make when the fall DAR meeting is in session Wednesday and Thursday at Oak'n Spruce Lodge, South Lee.

Mrs. Tolman says delegates will also be asked to vote on resolutions urging the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to find a way of preserving The Cliffs at Gay Head on Martha's Vineyard, where erosion has begun to take a toll; reaffirming their stand for keeping patriotic holiday observances on the date of the historic event; and urging a study of the Constitution in hopes of changing the letter of the law dealing with civil disobedience.

SPECIAL speakers at the conference sessions will include: Mrs. Charlotte W. Sayre of Pennsylvania, DAR recording secretary general; Mrs. Amanda A. Thomas of Ohio, organizing secretary general; and Mrs. Carl W. Ketzman, State Regent of Ohio.

Traveling to South Lee for the conference will be routine for Mrs. Tolman, who plans to have visited each of the 86 DAR chapters in the state before her term ends in April.

"I stand a good chance of making it," she says. "The turnpike makes it possible for me to visit almost any chapter in a one-day trip.

"I won't be away from my family a full day," she says. "I manage at least either to have breakfast with them or put my daughter to bed at night."

Deborah Tolman is 10, and she belongs to the CAR—Children of the American Revolution.

Children are eligible from birth to age 21; they have their own officers, and conduct their meetings with the help of senior officers as advisors. The aim is patriotic education and leadership in support of American ideals.

Discussing The Pyramids

Discussing such highlights of his talk on "Cities of the Middle East," as the pyramids, the sphinx and the Moslem mosques, at the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR meeting held at the Spaulding House is Rev. Egbert Jenkinson, guest speaker with, left to right, Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent; Mrs. Joseph Hartley and Mrs. Harold Bartlett, hostesses of the DAV.

Molly Varnum

"Cities Of The Middle East" Topic Of DAR Meeting

LOWELL — The regular monthly meeting of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR was held at the Spalding House, appropriately decorated with fall flowers.

Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent, presided at the meeting and Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary, gave her report. A poem was read in memory of Mrs. Roger Gage, by Mrs. Walter B. Morse, who also gave the invocation. Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer, reported on generous gifts to the DAR along with her regular report. Mrs. George Morse was pianist for the occasion.

Speaker of the afternoon was Rev. Egbert Jenkinson, pastor of a Methuen church. He gave an illustrated lecture on "Cities of Africa or in the heart of Egypt. Here he showed the Sphinx and Pyramids and pointed to places where these had been vandalized and later repaired.

Also shown were roads with cars. This was surprising because in former years people only saw these wonders after riding on the backs of camels. The camel drivers still make good wages from foreign visitors, said the speaker and they live in beautiful· homes. They not only receive good wages but receive fountain pens and valuable trinkets.

Here, also, is to be found a mixture of religion—Judaism and the Christian and Moslem religions. The Moslem Mosques are white with gold domes and no one goes in without removing shoes or placing white cotton bags over their shoes. This not only is a religious factor but it protects the beautiful hand made oriental rugs from heel marks. Before entering, one also must wash hands and face.

In Jerusalem, there are one and a half million refugees which present many problems. Here, a church of historical value, built by the crusaders was shown as were the olive trees said to be hundreds of years old, and the Dead Sea.

After the meeting and Rev. Jenkinson's most appreciated talk, a social hour was enjoyed during which dainty sandwiches and home made pastry were served. Hostesses were Mrs. Harold Bartlett, Mrs. Joseph Hartley and Miss Rose Macauley.

The Topic Is History

February is American History month and this was the subject being discussed by Rev. Joseph H. Giunta, pastor of the Grace Universalist Church, guest speaker at the meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding House. Shown with him left to right are Mrs. Chester Runels, historian, Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent and Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary.

Brotherhood

Navy Chaplain Describes His Rescue At DAR Meeting

LOWELL — Rev. Joseph H Giunta, pastor of the Grace Universalist Church and former U.S. Navy Chaplain, opened his interesting address before a record number of DAR members at the February meeting of the Molly Varnum Chapter held at the Spalding House with the question, "What is there in a man, when he faces danger that makes him want to help someone else?"

After quoting multiple examples of the brotherhood of man in present times, Rev. Giunta told the DAR that when his ship was hit, he had to help serve as doctor. He too was wounded as he went down with the bombed ship. Out of nowhere came a man who tried to save him. Thinking the attempt would fail, he told the man to save himself but the latter answered, "Perhaps we can both make it." Later Rev. Giunta learned the man was Lt. Thomas Aquinas Kelly, a Roman Catholic, who in the act of saving a Protestant Chaplain's life, lost his own. The speaker stressed the fact that, "Lt Kelly gave up his life for someone else and this was simply displaying the Kingdom of the Divine."

Continuing Rev
as he was left fl
water, covered w
his face badly torn, he saw another man covered with oil, swimming toward him. Just as the man took him in his arms to help him swim, the chaplain fainted, but he was brought to safety. After 36 hours of unconsciousness he awoke aboard a destroyer. This time Lt. Robert Harris of Jewish faith, had saved him.

Rev. Giunta concluded his talk reiterating his strong beliefs in the brotherhood of man and citing examples of how people in peril seek to save others before themselves.

MRS. ELMER Truesdale, regent, presided at the business meeting and welcomed members and guests. Following the DAR's custom to observe February as American History month, the Molly Varnum chapter announced the winners of awards for outstanding work in American History. Medals were awarded to Joseph McDermott of the Moody School and Deborah Klowski of the Joseph Pyne School. Certificates went to Lee Allen of the Moody School and Janice Miele of the Joseph Pyne School.

Klosowski

Mrs. Walter E. Morse, gave the invocation and read a tribute to Mrs. Dewey Darling, late regent of the DAR for her untiring efforts in behalf of the organization. A moment of silence was observed in her memory.

Reports were given by Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary, and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer. Mrs. George Morse was pianist for the program.

After the meeting, a coffee hour featuring delicious refreshments was enjoyed. In keeping with the historical theme of the day, cakes were decorated with tiny hatchets, cherries and hearts.

Hostesses were Mrs. George Morse, Mrs. Clayton Jennison and Mrs. Frederick Chenery. Miss Glennis F. Ranlett was chairman of hospitality.

The national prestige of the Daughters of the American Revolution is at an all-time high, according to State Regent Mrs. George S. Tolman 3rd, of Hingham. Addressing delegates at the opening session of the state conference yesterday in the Sheraton Plaza, Mrs. Tolman said the national membership of 187,000 shows a three-year net gain of 3,500.

"The quickest way to lose the good image built up during this national administration," Mrs. Tolman said, "is to repeat rumors of financial and membership loss, neither of which is true." Massachusetts membership has reached 4,600, but has not shown a net gain. Of 305 new members, 117 are juniors — and juniors are most welcome, she said.

"We must put our young women to work in DAR. Don't let them get involved only in women's clubs, the PTA or PTO." Mrs. Tolman advised. Retiring as state regent, Mrs. Tolman will be a candidate for librarian general at the national DAR Continental Congress, next month in Washington.

BACK TEACHER OATH

In a business session, delegates representing 85 state DAR chapters heard nominations for new state officers and voted on resolutions presented by Mrs. Willard F. Richards, of Plymouth.

They passed resolutions to:

—Go on record as strongly opposed to legislation repealing the law requiring teachers in Massachusetts to sign a loyalty oath;

—Request that the commissioner of education require all schools to include in their schedules assembly programs emphasizing American heritage and the American way of life;

—Send letters or resolutions of condolence to families of local men and women killed in the service of the country;

—Urge individual members to support efforts to repeal by referendum the law changing dates for celebration of national holidays.

—Request the Boston daily newspapers to print, weekly, a schedule of bills pending before the U. S. Congress and the State Legislature as a public service to citizens of the commonwealth who might wish to study and voice opinions on the issues.

Delegates also passed a resolution commending Mrs. Tolman on her three-year term as State Regent.

Sue Ellis, 17, a senior at Nauset Regional High School, was chosen from over 200 candidates as 1968 Good Citizen. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ellis, East Brewster. Most of the candidates, nominated by their classmates, were at the meeting. They received Good Citizen award pins, and were taken on a tour of historic Boston. Chairman of the DAR Good Citizen project, Mrs. Theodore S. Yusko, of Hingham, presented the awards.

Lt. Col. Mitchell Mulholland (USAF Ret.), teacher of history at Berkshire Community College, addressed the high school girls. "Meet the issues of 1968 with your heads, not your hearts," he said. "You need the ability to recognize when enough is enough, to cooperate after all-out controversy, to respect the rules of a democracy. Now, you must learn to appreciate the rules." "Tomorrow, you apply them."

OFFICERS HONORED

Retiring and newly elected officers were honored last night at a reception and banquet in the hotel ballroom. Mrs. H. Hamilton Sweet, of Falmouth, is the new State Regent, heading a slate of 13 officers.

State Regents, Mrs. Robert Crane, of Machias, Me., and Helen C. Malmstead, Providence, are conference guests.

Delegates adjourn today after hearing state officers' and committee chairmen's reports.

Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, regent, welcomed the speaker, members and their guests and presided at the business meeting during which reports were read by Mrs. Charles E. Watt, secretary and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer. The invocation was given by Mrs. Walter E. Morse, Mrs. George J. Morse was the pianist for the occasion.

In addition to a very interesting lecture members were given the oportunity to view a most unusual display of the speaker's antiques. She explained that she became interested in collecting when she was a child. Being the daughter of a sea captain, the first things she collected were sea shells.

Much to the delight of the DAR members she commented at length on the hand blown window panes which [illegible] the Spalding House. She [illegible] new uses for the old "[illegible] receivers" so popular at the turn of the century, and said they are now very much in demand as table centerpieces, candleholders and buffet ornaments. She displayed New England pineapple glass over 100 years old and Flint goblets made in 1865 to commemorate President Lincoln's death. She also showed lovely cherry colored scent bottles of the Victorian era; red block glass made in Sweden late in the 19th century, and the heavy etched and very valuable Heissy glass made in Boston in 1840.

Much attention was focused upon a one-inch thick glass pen, now a cherished conversation piece, and on a variety of tubular glasses. These were used to save the tears of wives and sweethearts whose loved ones were away at sea, and became tangible expressions of how the women wept and grieved till the men came home.

IN THE varied collection were Civil War bottles, Lincoln, Washington and Valentine bottles; little cups without handles made in 1740 and in which tiny flat china dolls were placed so that children would drink the cup's content in order to get the doll at the bottom.

Sparkler Salad, Independence Torte For Glorious Fourth

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — Salmon and green peas make a combination as American as Yankee Doodle himself and serving this dish is part of the tradition of the Fourth of July. For a slight change this year, what could be more appropriate than a holiday salmon mousse a la Daughters of the American Revolution?

In anticipation of their favorite holiday, members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held their annual luncheon at the Spalding House and served a variety of fare that proved ideal for indoors or outdoors celebrations. From their treasury of recipes for patriotic occasions the members plan to prepare such culinary delicacies as may be enjoyed at the beach, on the boat, in the park, on the patio, in the backyard or anywhere you choose to celebrate the birthday of the nation.

Wherever you celebrate, be sure the flags are flying, and plan your decorations in the good old red, white and blue. When all is ready use a drum and bugle instead of the customary dinner bell or chimes to call the family and guests to the table. After all have enjoyed the holiday meal and given three cheers for you, and good measure, get set for the rockets, and the memory of the day will be something to treasure.

For those of you who would like a slight change from the traditional boiled or poached salmon and green peas, Mrs. Ray MacAusland, publicity chairman of the local DAR chapter, suggests a baked salmon mousse with egg sauce. The following is an excellent recipe that comes from Old Sturbridge Village, and was part of the elaborate President Adams dinner given there recently, as a re-creation of what the second president of the United States used to enjoy.

BAKED SALMON MOUSSE

1 pound fresh salmon
2 tablespoons butter
1 rounded tablespoon flour
¼ cup milk
2 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon salt
½ pint heavy cream

COOK SALMON in water with salt to taste. Flake salmon with a fork and remove skin and bones. Blend flour and butter over low heat and stir in milk. Stir constantly until thick and smooth. Cool. Add egg yokes. Add salmon. Whip egg whites with salt until stiff but not dry, and fold into mixture. Whip the cream and fold in. Pour into well greased fish mold or nine-inch ring mold. Garnish bottom of mold with slices of green pepper or pimiento if desired. Place in pan of hot water and cook at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes. Cool slightly before turning out on hot platter. Garnish with lemon wedges and parsley and serve with egg sauce.

EGG SAUCE

1 cup milk
1 cup light cream
2 small onions, sliced thin
½ bay leaf
1 whole clove
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash White pepper
2 hard cooked eggs

Heat milk and cream together with the onion slices, a whole clove and bay leaf until a film forms. Skim the surface. Melt butter in a saucepan, stir in flour, keeping it smooth, and cook over very low heat for a few minutes. Pour in scalded milk mixture and cook over a low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture bubbles. Remove from heat, season with salt and pepper, and strain into a saucepan. Add coarsely chopped eggs and heat thoroughly. Do not cook any further. If the sauce seems too thick, add a little more light cream. Serve egg sauce separately in a warm sauceboat.

FOR COLOR Mrs. MacAusland suggests beets piquante for the holiday.

BEETS PIQUANTE

2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup cream
1 can sliced beets
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon pepper

Add flour to melted butter; stir in seasonings. Add beet juice from a number two can of sliced beets and cook until clear and thick. Add vinegar and pour cream in, slowly, stirring constantly. Pour over beets and heat.

If you plan to have a picnic by all means serve a Sparkler Salad. This has every thing in it and glows with a zesty salad dressing. Chill thoroughly before leaving for the picnic grounds.

SPARKLER SALAD

1 envelope (1⅓ ounces) seasoning mix for Sloppy Joes
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
1 cup water
¼ cup vinegar
1 pound frankfurters, cooked
3 cups cooked elbow macaroni
2 cups sliced celery
1 package (10 ounces) peas, cooked.

Combine contents of seasoning mix envelope, tomato paste water and vinegar in saucepan. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Slice frankfurters into one-inch pieces. Combine frankfurters, macaroni, celery and peas in a large bowl. Pour sauce over mixture, tossing lightly. Chill. Garnish with lettuce. Makes six generous servings.

Ideal for Fourth of July dessert is Independence Torte which can be made easily with graham cracker crust, a layer of strawberries, one of blueberries and a topping of whipped cream.

Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, regent of the chapter, has a preference for marble cake and this is her favorite recipe.

MARBLE CAKE

⅓ cup of shortening
1 cup of sugar
1 teaspoon of vanilla
2 cups of cake flour (sifted 3 times)
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
⅔ cup of milk
3 stiffly beaten egg whites
2 melted squares of cooking chocolate
2 tablespoons of hot water
¼ teaspoon of baking powder

Cream the shortening. Add the sugar, and the vanilla, add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Fold in the egg whites, combine chocolate, water and soda and add to half of the batter. Alternate light and dark batters by spoonsfuls into greased 4 by 8 pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for 75 minutes.

To top off any party Miss Glennis Ranlett suggests Coffee Marlo. The following recipe which may be doubled will make four servings. Miss Ranlett is hospitality chairman and a past director of the chapter.

COFFEE MARLO

24 regular size marshmallows
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon instant coffee
1 cup heavy cream
¼ teaspoon vanilla
4 walnut halves or 4 cherries

Place marshmallows in medium size saucepan with water. Cook over medium heat, stirring often, until marshmallow melt. Remove from heat. Stir in instant coffee and vanilla. Chill until thick and syrupy. Whip cream, fold into marshmallow mixture, spoon into 4 sherbet glasses and chill. Just before serving, garnish with half walnut or cherry.

Old But He Likes It

—that is, the 120-year-old hand carved maple crib in which Steven Robert Wolf, 17 months, is shown. With him are left to right, his great grandmother, Mrs. Walter Morse, his mother, Mrs. Richard Wolf and his grandfather, Lester A. Morse who spent their first year in the same gift crib, which has been in the family since 1879 and for four generations.

Gift Crib In Greater-Lowell Family For Four Generations

By Marguerite Lyons

NORTH BILLERICA—Little did the late John Mannahan think that the crib he gave to his dear friend, the late C. Oliver Barnes in 1879 would still be in use and in demand for future use, 89 years after that day.

The names Mannahan and Barnes are widely known in Greater-Lowell. John Mannahan was a real estate agent, who lived at the corner of Branch and Mannahan Sts., the latter named in his honor. Today his three grand-children, Mrs. Stuart Murphy, Mrs. Josephine Lamb and Mrs. Clarence Garlick are residents of Chelmsford.

Mr. Barnes, also widely known, held claim to a long line of patriots, the first of which, Thomas Barnes, settled in Hingham in 1636 and whose descendants fought in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Civil War, Spanish-American War and World Wars I an II.

Interest was revived recently in the unusually interesting crib which Mr. Mannahan gave to Mr. Barnes in the last quarter of the past century when the latter's first child, Leslie, who became Mrs. Edward S. Colton, was born. The gift was something Mr. Mannahan cherished. It had been the household furnishing that had meant play, rest and security for his six children, and had served its purpose well. Having no further use for it, he gave it to his friend, Mr. Barnes and it has since then cradled the children of four generations in the Barnes family.

The renewed interest came about when another member of the Barnes' family, Mrs. Walter (Helen Barnes) Morse, of 488 Chelmsford St., Lowell, chaplain of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR, having called a Mrs. Eli Burbeck of Chelmsford pertaining the DAR bsinuess, was asked by the latter, "Mrs. Morse, what ever became of my crib—the one my father gave your father when your oldest sister was born?" — From then on many a tale has been told by Mrs. Morse, who incidently is the keeper of the precious hand-carved maple heirloom, which has traveled many a time and mile from Lowell to Pelham, N.H., to Deerfield and Dover, N.H., Berwick, Me., and back and forth to Lowell, Chelmsford and Billerica, where it is presently being used by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wolf of 37 Pollard St., North Billerica for their first child, Stephen Robert, who is 17 months old. Mrs. Wolf is the former Dorothy Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Morse and granddaughter of Mrs. Walter Morse. Her late grandfather had been a local florist for 40 years.

GOING back over the years, Mrs. Morse, who is now 83, recalls when her parents moved from Mannahan St., to London St., and the family numbered four. During the summer evenings as her mother sat by the crib and the open windows she would listen to the services conducted at the House of Prayer next door to their home. After the four Barnes children, Leslie, Carrie, Helen and Charles had outgrown the crib it went back and forth to the homes of their cousins.

When Mrs. Morse married, the crib was entrusted to her and it could always be located at her house. It was used by her seven children, Walter, Jr., Mrs. William (Ruth Katrine) J. Hoare, Jr., Mrs. Vernon S. (Marian Isabel) Cook, Lester A. Morse, Mrs. Albert H. (Cynthia) Burtt, Elizabeth) Popplewell, and Mrs. Berkeley R. (Barbara Mrs .Harold P. (Virginia Evelyn) Edwards.

The crib was also used by all the children of the Morse children and now is being used by their grandchildren.

Though he's still a baby, said Mrs. Morse of her great grandchild, Steven Robert Wolf, he'll soon be outgrowing his crib to take to the ways and romping of all children. Then the crib will be on its way to Dunstable where it is awaited at the home of another grandchild, William James Hoare, III, and his wife, whose little five-month-old Deborah, will become the 40th member of the Morse-Barnes family to use the cherished heirloom.

Reminiscing, Mrs. Morse said that the crib did not come alone to her parents home from Mr. Mannahan, there was a cradle, too. The latter was kept downstairs in the Barnes home, and when "callers" came, said Mrs. Morse, they had a tendency to rock and swing the cradle. "My mother did not want nervous, fidgity, babies, so she tied the cradle, making it impossible for the visitor to go on rocking unconsciously. Then one day, it was loaned to a neighbor. It was never returned.

Recently, said Mrs. Morse, it was learned that a matching cradle to the Mannahan-Barnes crib is to be found in Manchester, N. H. She often wonders if it is the one that came with the crib she would never part with, and she would love to know how its service compares with that given by the crib.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

Written by William Tyler Page, Clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives, in 1917, and adopted and promulgated by the Government's Committee on Information. Accepted by the House of Representatives on behalf of the American People, April 3, 1918.

I believe in the United States of America as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

A Board Of Harvest Treats

—typical of the kind that will be featured through autumn at the various parties being sponsored on the local scene is being enjoyed by Mrs. Robie Johnson of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR. Specialties made by the chapter members and temptingly displayed include cheese potato balls, vegetable casseroles, relishes, ham roll-ups, sausage, mixed salad greens, drop cookies, chicken loaf and fudge cake. At right is delicious autumn harvest lamb roasted to the slightly pink stage and served on a bed of rice tossed with toasted filberts and pineapple chunks.

Racks Of Lamb With Filbert Rice For Autumn Entertaining

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — Now that the morns are meek — the summer heat has given way to perfect autumn clear, crisp days, the time is ideal for entertaining. The crops are being harvested, nuts are plentiful and good, and all seems just right with every new day.

Lowell's numerous women's organizations will be featuring harvest suppers, pot luck and covered dish events, and members will be contributing the best of their culinary specialties to enhance the festive boards that will grace the local scene through October and November.

Mrs. Ray McAusland of the Molly Varnum chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution suggests that the homemaker fashion her menu around autumn harvest lamb that is young, tender and so succulent. Be sure to choose racks of lamb as the special cut when you entertain. Roast them to the slightly pink stage and serve on a bed of rice tossed with toasted filbertts and pineapple chunks. Filberts are sometimes called hazelnuts, so if one name isn't familiar the other should be. These nuts have a marvelous flavor when toasted and they are exceptionally good with the rice because their crispness' provides contrast to the softer-textured grain.

Many filberts come from the states of Washington and Oregon, others are imported from Turkey, but they are available everywhere, and are so versatile that every homemaker should keep on the pantry shelf.

There are times when loin lamb chops will be your "pice de resistance," and when served with a wild rice the dish is superb.

In addition to the lamb recipe DAR members have suggested several others that make excellent accompaniments for a lamb dinner.

The following lamb dish makes six generous servings.

Hasn't there been the most wonderful round of parties held so far? . . . and there are as many if not more scheduled for this week. No wonder it was so successful, just about everyone was at that traditional Eggnog party for the benefit of the Poor Clare Nuns for which Mary C. O'Meara served as general chairman. Last week the League of Catholic Women held a very successful party, too, as did the Jeanne Mance Circle, the AEFA, the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, the Mothers of Twins Association, the numerous Veterans Auxiliaries, the local parish sodalities; the Golden Age and Senior Citizens Clubs, all of which were simply wonderful to attend.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

By His Excellency

JOHN A. VOLPE

A PROCLAMATION

1969

WHEREAS, American history is a steady record of growth, even in the face of disasters; it is a heritage created by all men and women which has become the privilege and the responsibility of present and future generations; and

WHEREAS, February is the month in which we celebrate the birthdays of two of our greatest Americans and Presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, whose personal lives and ideals equalled the greatness of their leadership and statesmanship; and

WHEREAS, We would do well to study and follow the example of such outstanding men, for a sound knowledge of our history and the ability to apply the lessons it teaches will be an invaluable aid to those now living who have a part, however small, in forming the history of the future; and

WHEREAS, Since its beginning, Massachusetts has made many contributions to American history as the scene of great events in the story of our country and home of leaders in every field. It is an integral and most important part of our national heritage and was, in fact, the first State in the Union to proclaim February, by statute, as American History Month;

NOW, therefore, I, JOHN A. VOLPE, Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in accordance with Chapter 44 of the Acts of 1957, do hereby proclaim as

AMERICAN HISTORY MONTH

February, 1969

GIVEN at the Executive Chamber in Boston, this eighth day of January, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and sixty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and ninety-third.

A Place in... THE SUN

By Frances Berg

Legislative hopscotch with the calendar notwithstanding, to the descendents of those who were there when it happened, [illegible] April 19. The 194th commemoration of the Battle of Concord will be tomorrow, not Monday . . . and will be, in fact, among observances resoundingly concluding a week long Patriot's Day celebration for those in the towns where the "shot heard 'round the world" was really heard . . . As it happens, we're among the descendents of a signer of the Declaration . . . and of a few who fled famine in Ireland, and a few more that fled religious persecution in France, and one who cut out of the Baltic Provinces before they were devoured by dear Mother Russia (and fortunately, since his entire family and everyone he knew rather mysteriously disappeared and were never heard from again) . . . So we trust you won't mind if we join the Concord and Lexington set in figuring that a date that, in principle, marked the beginning of our nation isn't all that "relative" . . . And we can't help wishing it were a little less "relative" to our legislators . . . There's nothing relative about freedom . . . Either you've got it or you haven't . . .

Meanwhile . . . could there be a better time to note that Acton's Captain Isaac Davis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, has just been awarded the George Washington Honor Medal from Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge for one of its perennial projects. The award is for 6000 replica scrolls of the line of march of the Acton Minutemen from the home of Capt. Davis to the Old North Bridge in Concord, which were presented by the chapter to all who retraced those six miles during 1968. Actually the Davis Chapter, DAR, has presented a total of 19,000 of these replica scrolls since it began the project in 1960. Along with the scrolls marking the six miles of old roads traversed by Acton's 38 Minutemen, recipients also receive an historical account of their participation in those fateful events of April 18-19, 1775, plus a resume of the many places here and abroad to which the story has spread through DAR efforts . . .

These replica scrolls are presented each April 19 . . . and the volume presented to Freedom's Foundation for judging will be on display at the Acton Town Hall during scroll presentations tomorrow, along with many relics of historical interest and items noting modern interest in our history . . . One of the scrolls, incidentally, inscribed "For the Presidents of these United States, that they may be inspired, strengthened and sustained," was taken to the White House by former Gov. Endicott Peabody. Former Senator Leverett Saltonstall and numerous governors are among other recipients. The scrolls have traveled to Denmark, Australia, even Africa . . . If you, too, would like to have one, they're available to anyone —from chapter members or during observances tomorrow at Acton's Town Hall . . . Not free, though . . . For that, you have to be sturdy enough to hike the six miles like the Minutemen . . . who did quite a bit more than that . . .

Dairy foods, drinks, salads refreshing summertime treats

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — June is dairy month — traditionally a peak period for the abundance of dairy products that so flavorfully enrich daily meals. When one stops and thinks about it, seldom do we go through a single meal, and sometimes even one course of a meal, without enjoying at least one dairy product in some delectable form or other. All dairy foods, drinks and desserts are refreshing summertime treats and every garden salad is improved by the dressing, topping or dairy product enhancement usually a cheese, cream or sour cream.

At their annual June garden party members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR featured numerous dairy dishes. and all were delicious specialties rich in nutrition and and ideal for entertaining.

Mrs. George B. Reed of 212 Dalton Road, Chelmsford, an excellent cook. knows the value of dairy products and uses them in a variety of appetizing ways.

Mrs. Reed is a secretary in the administration office at Lowell Technological Institute. Her husband, George B. Reed, is president and treasurer of Surgical Products, Inc., of Lowell and they have three children: Duncan of Derry, N.H.; Mrs. William (Barbara) Martell of Laurel. Md., and Richard, who lives with his parents

A graduate of Simmons College, Mrs. Reed belongs to its Merrimack Valley Club, and to the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR.

ONE OF the most refreshing summer drinks one could ever invent is a Waikiki Nog, and if you've been thinking of nogs as winter's special sipping pleasures, think again. This light and cool one is designed with summer in mind. It's simple to make and has that fluffy lightness with an unusual combination of creaminess and tart-sweet citrus flavor that makes for such wonderful sipping.

WAIKIK NOG

2 cups milk
4 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups pineapple-grapefruit juice drink
4 egg whites
1 quart vanilla ice cream
Nutmeg

In a large bowl, combine milk, egg yolks, sugar and salt; beat until foamy. Stir in pineapple-grapefruit drink. In large mixer bowl, beat egg whites until stiff; fold in fruit juice mixture. Ladle into glasses. Add scoop of ice cream to each glass. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes eight, eight-ounce glasses or punch cups.

Cheese, one of the most important dairy products lends itself beautifully to the preparation of main courses as well as to salad dressings and hors d'oeuvres. Though Cheddar cheese had its humble beginnings on a small farm near the English village of Cheddar, its reputation has spread over the centuries so that today many consider it a top-ranking noble in the cheese hierachy.

Because of the widespread use of Cheddar in cooked dishes in which it is usually shredded. Cheddar is now available pre-shedded in the package. A Cheddar beef round illustrates how good a meat-cheese combination can actually be. Cheese melts during the baking for pleasing taste and texture. Shortly before it is completely cooked, the beef round is treated to a topper of more barbecue sauce and cheese for extra flavor and color highlights.

CHEDDAR BEEF ROUND

2 pounds ground beef
1 (4-ounce' package shredded sharp natural Cheddar cheese
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 egg
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup barbecue sauce

Combine meat, one-fourth cup cheese, bread crumbs, egg, celery, onion, seasonings and one-fourth cup barbecue sauce. Shape into nine-inch round loaf in shallow baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Pour off drippings. Pour remaining barbecue sauce over meat. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake 15 minutes longer. Makes eight servings.

GARDEN DIP

½ cup cottage cheese
1 tablespoon finely grated carrot
2 tablespoons finely grated onion
1 teaspoon finely grated green pepper
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper
1 cup plain yogurt

In a small mixing bowl beat cottage cheese and blend in carrot, onion, green pepper, salt, garlic salt and pepper. Beat until fairly smooth. Fold in yogurt. Cover and chill. Use as a dip for chips or raw vegetables. Yields approximately 1½ cups.

FROZEN LIME PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

Molly Varnum

"Deeds" topic of DAR luncheon

LOWELL — The lovely gardens of the Spalding House, 383 Pawtucket St., served as the setting for the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR's annual lawn party and spring luncheon meeting.

The house was decorated with garden flowers and the tables were laden with assortments of home cooked food, beverages, desserts and candies.

After the luncheon, Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent, introduced Mrs. Elizabeth H. Spiller who gave an interesting and informative talk about a few of the "Deeds" and other fascinating data of the Chapter home, which was built in 1760. The oldest deed on record is dated Oct. 26, 1790, and reads . . . from Nathaniel Ropes of Salem, who had bought it from Captain John Ford previously, to Joel Tyler Spalding with land and buildings thereon, from the blacksmith shop leading from Tim Brown's to a saw mill of Daniel Coburn at the mouth of the Concord River and about and on the Merrimac River to Clarke's Ferry, (foot of Baldwin Street, Middlesex Village) with other boundaries of various numbered poles, stone banks and rods. Much of this land was sold later by Joel's son Jonathan.

Another deed showed a 10 foot strip of land was bought in 1856 from Miss Prudence Ford by Jonathan Spalding. It was at the river bank between the Locks and Canals and the Lambert land.

The Molly Varnum Chapter deed and other important papers were read. Mrs. Spiller showed an old map of 1794 which outlined all the old country roads and canals. She also showed many LOWELL SUN clippings of 1906 and 1907 with pictures of the house and interesting stories of the dedication of it by the Chapter.

Mrs. Spiller displayed the large history book which she has written of National and Chapter information compiled from research over the last few years going back to the founding of the National Society in 1890 and the local chapter in 1894; also early pioneer history of this vicinity.

Puddings

Strawberry and cream souffle delicious summer dessert

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — Imagine an organization of women dedicated to the cause of promoting the glories of America whereever they go; of encouraging the study of its history by awarding coveted prizes and historical tours and trips annually students who excel in the subject; who devote their talents and energy to all good causes and who constantly display the pride they take in their Mayflower ancestry and heritage and you have a typical chapter of the DAR. In Lowell the group is known as the Molly Varnum chapter and in addition to all the above mentioned characteristics its members have several others in common. One of these is their cooking expertise, the secrets of which they graciously share with one another and their guests whenever requested to do so but especially at their annual luncheon party when their special art is displayed in such edible ways as strawberry and cream souffle, tea cakes, puddings, cobblers and pies.

One of the DAR blue ribbon experts is Mrs. Raymond B. Clogston of 152 Wentworth Ave. and widely known in Lowell circles. The widow of Raymond Clogston, who was superintendent of the dyeing department at the Merrimack Manufacturing Co., for 40 years, Mrs. Clogston has two sons, Benjamin Clogston, manager for Montgomery and Ward in Elkins, W. Va., and Samuel Clogston, a manager for Lockport Felt Co., in Newfane, N. Y. Both are married. Mrs. Clogston also has six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She greatly enjoys cooking and she always looks forward to planning menus for the family gatherings held at her summer homes at Cobbets Pond.

Mrs. Clogston has held membership in the Middlesex Women's Club for several years. She also belongs to the Philathea Class of the First Congregational Church. She had an interesting secretarial career having been a private secretary in the employ of a Haverhill business establishment prior to her marriage.

DAR MEMBERS have repertories of recipes many of which are prize winning salads, main course specialties and luscious desserts. One of the latter, a strawberry and cream souffle is referred to as a delightful pink happening to top summer meals. There's always an element of suspense in the air when a souffle is in the oven. Guests, well trained for such occasions, wait patiently . . . perhaps a little anxiously. Some completely unaware, drum their fingers on the table. Then there's that nervous titter. Will the souffle fall?—or will it emerge in triumph from the oven—properly puffed—its interior tender, moist, warm and full of kitchen mystery: Who knows? Maybe it will and maybe it won't. So the DAR members suggest skipping all the storm and strife and have a cold souffle, the ultimate refinement in summer desserts—cool and delicate to the eye and to the palate. A cold souffle has the grace to wait for you and your guests—chilling away in the refrigerator where you have placed it hours or days before your dinner party, instead of requiring your guests to wait for it. Also it is very difficult to have a disaster with a cold souffle.

The simple trick achieving a high-rise souffle is to turn your mixture into a dish that is too small for it (as 8 cups of liquid in a six-cup dish). A waxed paper collar secured around the rim of the dish contains the excess. The mixture is forced to rise above the top of the dish and there it stays—firm and upright—after the collar is removed.

STRAWBERRY AND CREAM SOUFFLE

1 pint fresh strawberries hulled and crushed
1¼ cups sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
4 eggs, separated
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

FOR A HIGH souffle cut a strip of waxed paper about four inches deep, and long enough to extend around the outside of a 1½ quart souffle dish; fasten with a string. Lightly brush inside surface of collar with oil.

Force crushed strawberries through food mill or sieve. There should be about one and one-third cups puree. Stir in one-half cup of the sugar. Remove one-quarter cup sweetened puree; sprinkle gelatine over top to soften. Combine egg yolks with one-half cup of the sugar in top of double boiler. Stir over boiling water until thickened. Stir in gelatine mixture until dissolved. Cool. Then blend in remaining strawberry puree.

Beat egg whites and salt until foamy. Gradually add remaining one-quarter cup sugar and continue beating until mixture is shiny and holds stiff peaks. Fold in whipped cream, then strawberry mixture. Turn into prepared souffle dish and chill until firm. Remove collar and serve if desired with brandied strawberry sauce.

BRANDIED STRAWBERRY SAUCE

(Makes about 1½ cups)

1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 pint fresh strawberries, hulled and crushed
2 tablespoons Cognac or brandy

In saucepan, blend sugar and cornstarch; stir in lemon juice. Add strawberries. Stir over medium heat until thickened and clear.

MRS. CLOGSTON'S LEMON SAUCE PUDDING

1 rounded tablespoon butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
1 lemon
1 cup milk

Cream butter and sugar. Add flour and lemon juice. Beat egg yolks with milk and add to mixture. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Cook in baking dish, set in pan of hot water in moderate overn for 35 minutes at 350 degrees. Batter will form cake on top, thus making cake and sauce in one dish. Makes five servings. Serve cold.

INDIAN pudding has always been a favorite American dessert. The following is the recipe graciously shared by another Molly Varnum chapter member, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Spiller, to whom it was handed down by her grandmother.

GREAT GRANDMOTHER'S INDIAN PUDDING

2 quarts milk
7 tablespoons Indian meal
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 cup molasses
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour

Scald one quart milk. Mix Indian meal and flour and stir gradually into the scalded milk. Add molasses, salt and ginger. Butter pudding dish and pour in one pint of cold milk, then the above mixture, then the other pint of cold milk. Put into moderate oven without stirring. Bake about three hours.

BOHEMIAN CREAM

4 pints fresh strawberries
¼ cup confectioners sugar
1/3 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons cream sherry
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
1 teaspoon vanilla

Slice two pints of the strawberries. Toss with confectioners sugar and sherry and chill. Puree remaining strawberries, using electric blender or food mill. Strain. Combine with sugar. Soften gelatine in cold water. Add boiling water and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Blend with strawberry puree. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Turn into one and one-half quart (six-cup) mold and chill until set. Turn out onto serving plate and heap sliced strawberries in center or around edge.

Cheese mold

Fruit topped ice cream pie like tonic for kitchen fever

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — Members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR have been solving the malaise and problem of kitchen fever from which most homemakers suffer during the good old summertime, by graciously sharing some of their "beat the heat" recipes, most popular of which seems to be a fruit topped ice cream pie.

Of course they advocate plenty of outdoor cooking, barbecues, patio and poolside meals featuring prepared-on-the-spot specials or leisurely-made-in-advance dishes, topped by the ice cream pie, date and nut cake or fresh fruit desserts.

Mrs. Joseph A. Hartley the former Elizabeth Baldwin of 183 Methuen St., has a wealth of dessert recipes, all excellent for summer meals, luncheon or bridge parties.

Mrs. Hartley is the mother of three children, Mrs. Howard (Patricia) Hansen of Wellesley Hills; Mrs. Richard (Elizabeth) Goode of Hingham and Gardner Thompson of Chelmsford. Her husband is a retired engineer who formerly owned and operated a plumbing and heating business.

A member of the Eastern Star, the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR and of the Fidelis Club of the First Congregational Church, Mrs. Hartley greatly enjoys classical music and she likes to travel. Favorite on her list of household duties is cooking and she loves to experiment with new recipes, such as those providing the variations of hot flavoring and cool temperature, nicely contrasted in refreshing salad molds designed to dress up July and August meals. Taste buds invariably wake up to the intriguing flavor and color, texture and temperature, of, let's say a Chili Cheese mold, that's spicy but not really hot, and cool because it's well chilled in order to set firmly. What's more, Chile Cheese mold is an attractive salad in blush-pink with wee bits of red tomato and green pepper showing through.

A CHEESE mold may serve as a very pretty and tempting centerpiece at a luncheon or summer "plan-for-fall" meeting. An ideal main course for summer entertaining according to Mrs. Charles E. Watt is Polynesian chicken, an elegant dish, served with fluffy rice and crispy noodles topped with exotic condiments.

POLYNESIAN CHICKEN

2 (2½ pounds) fryers
Boiling water
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
Onion and celery salt to taste
1 teaspoon sugar
Rosemary and Savory
½ teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon accent
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup milk

Section chicken, put in water and bring to boil. Skim top. Add seasonings and simmer for 40 to 45 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken from bones. Strain chicken stock and thicken to gravy consistency with corn starch dissolved in milk, using more or less depending on amount of stock and desired consistency.

Cut chicken in bite-size pieces and add to gravy. Prepare rice according to directions on package.

Place the following accompaniments in separate dishes and let guests help themselves. Arrange dishes in this order: fluffy rice, Chinese

Beat the heat with cool, crisp salads

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — Cool, crisp salads, ever since they have been discovered, have been the answer to how to beat the heat. Salads have a way that revives weather wilted appetites, and there are so many salad varieties that one can live and live well on salads alone. Many salads are meal-in-one concoctions that provide solid protein food.

Specialists in the art of preparing eye appealing as well as nourishing salads, the members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR always present a few new ones at their lovely luncheon parties, and this year they also introduced a few summer desserts one of which was Mrs. Bowers Fuller's frozen fruit cake.

Mrs. Fuller is the wife of Bowers Fuller, a teacher in the Lowell Trade High School machine department. The Fuller residence is on Willowdale Road, in Tyngsboro. Her family and home are Mrs. Fuller's first interests. There are two children in the family, Ann, who graduated from Lowell State College, and Gregory employed at the Lincoln Laboratory of MIT experimental department, Bedford.

Mrs. Fuller loves to cook and attend all meetings and activities sponsored by the DAR. She also holds membership in the Historical Society of Tyngsboro and Dunstable and in the Eastern Star. Her preferred hobby is stone rubbing.

According to Mrs. Fuller and Mrs. Raymond McAusland, publicity chairman of the chapter, a good example of an easy to prepare and refreshing and filling salad is this meal-in-one speciality combination of ham, turkey, cheese. sliced hard-cooked eggs, lettuce, cherry tomatoes and pickles. The dressing base is mayonnaise and sour cream that is enlivened with prepared yellow mustard. Worcestershire sauce and anchovy paste. Served with crusty rolls or French bread sticks, the meal needs only a cool dessert to top it off.

MEAL-IN-ONE-SALAD

¼ pound each:
Sliced cooked turkey
Ham
Swiss cheese
6 cherry tomatoes
4 large gherkin pickles
4 hard-cooked eggs
1 head lettuce
Tangy Green Goddess Dressing

CUT TURKEY, ham, Swiss cheese and pickles into strips about two-inches long. Slice eggs. Break lettuce into bite-size pieces; add cherry tomatoes. Toss all ingredients lightly in a bowl. Pour Tangy Green Goddess dressing over salad. Makes 6 servings.

TANGY GREEN GODDESS DRESSING

1 Cup mayonnaise
½ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
2 teaspoons herb seasoning
1 teaspoon minced green onions
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon anchovy paste

Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly; chill. Pour over tossed salad. Makes about 1 cup dressing.

Mrs. McAusland, who likes to think of food combinations in terms that mean harmony or symphony, being the musician that she is, says that a perfect theme for tuna can be achieved with a scale of greens and a medley of fresh vegetables. Tuna, said Mrs. McAusland is a versatile performer and when the weather is sultry, a refreshing note can be introduced into party salad with fruit.

Her version of the popular Tuna a la Waldorf has citrus as that new note instead of the traditional apple.

TUNA CITRUS WALDORF SALAD

(10 to 12 servings)

3 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
3 cans (16 ounces each) grapefruit and orange sections, well drained
2 cups diagonally sliced celery
1 cup broken walnut pieces
1 medium avocado
3 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup water
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
Salad greens

Drain tuna, reserving one-third cup oil for dressing; add extra salad oil if necessary. Flake tuna or cut into chunks; combine with grapefruit and orange sections, celery, and walnut pieces. Reserve. Peel avocado, remove pit and cut into small pieces. In small bowl, mash avocado with lemon juice. Add reserved tuna oil and all remaining ingredients except salad greens; beat together until smooth and creamy. Or combine in blender container and blend on high speed until mixture is smooth. Line salad bowl with salad greens. Add reserved tuna-citrus mixture. Serve with avocado dressing.

MRS. RUSSELL Dana of the DAR chapter says melon bowl is a reliable prescription for curing hot weather appetite blues and its therapeutic qualities increase when it's accompanied by generous applications of fluffy mint dressing.

MELON BOWL SALAD

Assorted fresh fruit
Watermelon shell
Mint sprigs
Fluffy mint dressing

FLUFFY MINT DRESSING

1 cup salad dressing
½ cup mint flavored apple jelly
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Gradually add salad dressing to jelly, mixing until well blended. Fold in whipped cream.

Mrs. Fuller's preferred summer dessert is frozen fruit cake, and this recipe will make eight generous servings.

FROZEN FRUIT CAKE

1 cup whiped cream or evaporated milk

Spread a few of the whole fruits and nuts over bottom of waxed paper - lined and greased mold. Stir raisins, crumbs and the rest of the fruit and nuts into the cooked mixture. Whip chilled cream and fold in. Pour into 1½ quart mold or pan. Freeze over night.

Do you have a Revolutionary ancestor?

LOWELL—Many people are surprised when they learn that they have a Revolutionary ancestor. They don't realize that they have two parents, four grandparents, eight great grandparents and 16 great, great grandparents, which would take may people back to the Revolutionary time.

They often know the dates of their parents' births but have not been too interested in dates that came before their parents' time. Mrs. George Morse of the Molly Varnum Chapter of DAR has just completed a record of all the members of the DAR and their revolutionary ancestors. The booklet will be published for the 75th anniversary of the Molly Varnum Chapter House. In it there will be the name of every person who has ever become a member of the chapter and the name of her revolutionary ancestor. This will aid many people who are curious about their ancestors and the tracing can be done from the ancestor to the present living person.

Births, deaths and marriages throughout the Commonwealth from the 1800's up to 1850 were compiled long ago by the state, with a copy being sent to every library and historical society in the state. It is easier to trace people during this early period than those between 1850 and 1900. Early gravestones help in this case along with school and church records. Also records are held in the Boston State House.

This new booklet was compiled by Mrs. Elizabeth Spiller assisted by Mrs. George Morse, registrar. There were 657 members from 1894 through 1969. Ancestors traced do not have to be fighting soldiers but can also be those who assisted in the cause of the war. Anyone interested in these ancestors can call Mrs. George Morse, 32158; Mrs. E. Spiller, director, 33432 or Mrs. Raymond MacAusland, publicity chairman, 24924.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a Republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; obey its laws; to respect its flag and to defend it against all enemies.

Written by William Tyler Page, Clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives in 1917 and adopted and promulgated by the Government's Committee on Publication. Accepted by the House of Representatives, on behalf of the American people; April 3, 1918.

MRS. F. L. GREENHALGE
Founder and First Regent

MOLLY VARNUM CHAPTER, DAR

1894 - 1969

October 30, 1894, the Chapter was organized with thirty ladies present at the home of Governor and Mrs. Frederick L. Greenhalge, Wyman Street. The first elected officers were: Regent, Mrs. F. L. Greenhalge; Vice Regent, Mrs. J. M. G. Parker; Treasurer, Miss Mary Nesmith; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Henry M. Thompson; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Nancy P. Robbins; Registrar, Mrs. Thomas Nesmith. It was voted to be called The Molly Varnum Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, after Molly Butler Varnum who was a very courageous, self sacrificing and loyal Patriot of the Revolutionary War and a hard-working faithful wife to her husband, General Joseph Bradley Varnum of Dracut, as well as being a very devoted mother.

Meetings were held in the members homes until the membership grew too large, then Memorial Hall was rented. Energetic committees were formed. They actively engaged in compiling data, writing patriotic and historical papers and gave lectures regarding the Revolutionary era. They were also busy with community affairs too numerous to mention, except for a few highlights.

In 1899, in the Chelmsford village square, the Chapter unveiled a large boulder with a bronze plaque attached, in memory of the Chelmsford soldiers who had fought in the Revolutionary War. It was a memorable occasion with national and state officers, SAR officers, dignitaries, chapter members and a large number of people in attendance.

In 1900, the State Conference was held in Highland Hall with the Chapter members being the hostesses. It was a well attended affair with all chapters being represented. It was a very successful business and social meeting with the hostesses being highly commended.

In 1904, the chapter members were busy collecting books and raising money toward the beginning of the town of Dracut Library. Two members gave a small plot of land. Later, as a Memorial, a very beautifully bound book containing a list of Dracut Revolutionary Patriots was presented by the Chapter to the Dracut Library. In 1906, the Chapter Historical Committee presented to the Dracut Library a framed portrait of Louis Ansart as a Memorial to this famous Patriot.

What a special year 1906 was for the Chapter. Mrs. Henry D. Lambert, a member, bought the old Spalding House, Pawtucket Street, with the Chapter in mind. She invited the members to visit the house and inspect it. After hearing the terms of sale and a discussion period, a committee was formed to look into the financial arrangement. At the next meeting, the committee reported and it was voted to purchase the house. The Regent, Mrs. Henry M. Thompson had great executive ability and leadership and intelligently coped with every problem. Committees were formed for house restoration and the raising of money. Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Burton H. Wiggin along with their committee toiled early and late opening up all the fireplaces that had been sealed. The ceiling in the Raftered Kitchen was taken down so that the old beams could be seen. They were so thickly covered in grease the members thought they would never get them clean but perseverence won. The house had been a Tavern in early days so there must have been plenty of cooking in the huge fireplace.

Exploring, they found a tiny door beside the Raftered Kitchen fireplace which led via a ladder to an underground tunnel in the cellar which was probably a part of the underground railway for runaway slaves trying to reach Canada.

The house is situated on a part of the old Indian Reservation, known as "Great Neck" and when the tribes numbers dwindled they moved to Penacook, N. H. and sold the land to a group of white men, known as "The Wamesit Grant." The house was built in 1760 by Robert Hildreth and was sold to Reuben Hamblett, then to Moses Davis, the Inn-Keeper; years later, to Joseph Tyler, Jr., one of the five organizers of the Locks and Canals; to Andrew Fletcher, Selectman; to Capt. John Ford; to Nath'l Ropes of Salem and then to Joel Tyler Spalding in 1790. Three generations of Spaldings lived in this house. Most of the owners had fought in the Revolutionary War. The old country road wended its way by the Spalding House and in the days when it was a Tavern, the stage coaches stopped to allow their weary passengers to rest. The loggers who floated their logs down the Merrimack River always stayed here. How the walls and rafters must have rung with the click of tankards in the Tap Room and it must have been filled with laughter and merriment with the tall tales and stories told by the travellers and loggers. The West Parlor where the ladies gathered must have resounded with the clicking of the knitting needles and their chatter, exchanging gossip and latest news. The chapter members worked with great zest to restore much of the old charm and atmosphere. Many antiques of furniture, pictures, china, pewter and bric-a-brac were donated joyfully by many members. There have been over 600 items numbered and catalogued during the seventy-five years of our Chapter.

For ten years, the members toiled ardously to pay off the $2,500.00 mortgage. Too many members worked so diligently to accomplish this, I regret I cannot name them all. I will name only Mrs. Mary G. Morrison who spurred them on and she gave generously, ($750.00). Her dedicated purpose inspired them and thus it was achieved. The Burning of the Mortgage, Tuesday, February 29, 1916 was a jubilant meeting of joy and thanksgiving.

The Historical Committee in the early days compiled records and local history. Plaques and markers were attached to many old homes of Patriots in Billerica, Chelmsford, Dracut, Tewksbury and Tyngsboro. A Marker is still standing beside the Pow Wow Tree, Clark Road, which is a memorial to the Indians who held their Pow Wows under this tree. Many Bas-Reliefs were presented to public schools including the high school. An oil portrait of Molly Varnum was presented to the Varnum school. There were many other community projects.

In 1915, the Lowell Cemetery Corporation gave the chapter a plot of land so the members bought a two ton boulder with bronze plaque attached and had it placed on the lot as a Memorial for Revolutionary soldiers and sailors who lie in unknown graves. A very impressive service was conducted with State officers, our Regent, and other dignitaries taking part. Two other Memorials were: 50 Cherry trees were planted a mile up the Pawtucket Boulevard in 1925; and a large boulder with bronze plaque attached was placed near the corner of the Pawtucket Bridge and Riverside Street in 1935.

Turning back to the World War I days, the Spalding House was a hive of activity with Red Cross work and sewing going on all day. The members took part in Bond Drives also. They proudly marched in the Armistice Parade with a caption stating, "DAR, For Home and Country." They wore white dresses crossed with red, white and blue sashes and a white continental hat. One member, Miss Florence Nesmith, was with the Red Cross Canteen in France, serving at Dijon, Toul and a hospital near Brest. During World War II, our members rendered every valuable service they could.

Over the seventy-five years of the Molly Varnum Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the members have always tried to live up to the aims and purposes of our National Society and it would be impossible to enumerate the many achievements accomplished. We, the members of 1969, will always be grateful to the devoted, dedicated members of the past that left us this charming and lovely old home we cherish, as a heritage that will ever inspire us to carry on in the same tradition and move progressively onward "For Home and Country."

THE AIMS AND PURPOSES OF THE DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

"The object of our Society cannot fail to be a constant inspiration to all who are familiar with it. This body is for patriotic, historical and educational purposes; to perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American Independence. By the acquisition and preservation of historical spots and the erection of Memorials. By the encouragement of historical research in relation to the Revolution; by the celebration of all patriotic anniversaries and to true patriotism and love of country, and so, to aid in securing for all mankind ALL THE BLESSINGS OF LIBERTY."

"To Cherish, maintain and extend the institutions of American Freedom, to foster patriotism and love of country; and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty."

Molly Varnum DAR chapter re-enacts living in the 90's at its 75th anniversary party

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL — The Molly Varnum chapter of e DAR, a progressive segment of that great istorical family-like organization of 188,000 members, whose roots and ties go back to the days of the American Revolution observed its 75th anniversary last week at the Spalding House, with a play re-enacting the spirit that animated their ancestors to form a local chapter in 1894.

In numbers challenging the capacity of the chapter's Spalding House, members arrived with their guests to renew acquaintances and be part of the diamond jubilee celebration at which Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, regent presided.

After socializing in the steeped-in-history atmosphere that prevailed in the downstairs rooms of the Lowell landmark, members took their places in the upper rooms to enjoy a delightful afternoon taking them back to 1890.

Mrs. Truesdale welcomed members of the state and visiting chapters, and Councillor Ellen A. Sampson. She then introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller, who wrote the play and served as narrator of the day. Attired in a typical 1894 style green and brown plaid silk dress featuring basque waist and very full skirt, which has been in the Holt family for over 100 years, and was complemented by a black beaded cape and vestee worn by her grandmother, Elizabeth Willman, and a black beaded bonnet with green plumes and velvet bows, worn by her mother, the late Flora Willman Holt, Mrs. Spiller, gave a summary of the events that took place Oct. 30, 1894. She then introduced the cast of the play entitled, "Our Chapter — Yesterday — Today."

The National organization was founded in Washington by four women led by Mrs. Mary Smith Lockwood, a member of the National Press in 1890, and Mrs. Caroline Scott Harrison, wife of President Harrison was the first president general. At the outstart, the DAR's treasury amounted to $33. Four years later the Lowell chapter was founded at a meeting of some 30 women at the home of Gov. and Mrs. Frederick L. Greenhalge on Wyman St. Mrs. Greenhalge, once first lady of the Commonwealth, became the first regent of the chapter, named in honor of Molly Butler Varnum, daughter of Jacob and Mary Butler of Pelham, N.H. She was born in 1750 and became the wife of General Joseph Bradley Varnum in June of 1773.

WEARING HER mother's blue print silk dress, her grandmother's black velvet cape, a blue taffeta bonnet that belonged to one of her ancestors, Mrs. Chester Runels, in the part of Mrs. George W. Palmer at the founding meeting in 1894, told how Molly Varnum toiled and labored early and late spinning the cloth for her husband's clothes and cloth and blankets for the Dracut troops while her husband was off to war.

Enumerating the qualities of loyalty, fidelity, courage, self-sacrifice and patriotism of this brave woman, her suggestion that the chapter bear the name of Molly Varnum was unanimously accepted and voted upon in the way they did before the turn of the century.

Mr. Truesdale, regent, in the role of Mrs. Frederic L. Greenhalge, wore a long black silk crepe skirt with accordion pleated train, a black velvet hat with plumes and a mink muff as she re-enacted the role of the then first lady of the commonwealth hosting and presiding at the first pre-founding meeting of the chapter.

Mrs. Ray MacAusland in a long black skirt with short train and ruffled-yellow, heavy lace shirt waist and small purple and black bonnet was featured as Mrs. Charles D. Palmer, wife of a Lowell mayor.

Mrs. Brabrook Walsh as Mrs. Thomas P. Ivy of 1894 wore a black taffeta brocadeddress with long sleeves, and black sailor hat, and Mrs. Ralph E. Duncanson in black and white striped taffeta gown with seal cape that belonged to her great, great grand-mother, Julia Wadsworth, cousin of the poet Longfellow, portrayed the part of Mary Nesmith.

Mrs. Kenneth E. Lawson, as Miss Mary Ann Webster of the 90's, wore a long black skirt and beaded cape handed down by her Shedd ancestors, a white shirt waist and flat black bonnet trimmed with white flowers.

Mrs. G. Russell Dana as Miss Nancy P. Robbins and Mrs. J. Edgar Pullen, was attired in a brocaded purple and gold dress highlighted by a lace collar and cameo. Her bonnet was in matching colors.

As she re-enacted the roles played at the founding meeting by her grand-mother, Mrs. William H. Wiggin, and her mother Mrs. Burton H. Wiggin, the chapter's curator of today, Miss Emily Wiggin, proudly wore a grey changeable silk creation with quaker ruffled collar and cameo pin. Her typical-of-the-era bonnet to match was tied with flowing ribbons under her chin.

MRS. GEORGE J. Morse, chapter registrar, was featured in the roles. Mrs. Thomas Nesmith and Mrs. Sarah Swan Griffin played in the history of the initial meeting and she wore a long black taffeta skirt with French lace panel and a real paisley shawl. Complementing her gay nineties attire was her mother's tremendous chapeau enhanced with a sweeping plume.

The activities of Mrs. Henry M. Thompson 75 years ago were brought to the local scene of today by Mrs. Gharles E. Watt, who wore a cream colored suit with black satin collar and cuffs with braid trim. Her accessories were a hat with wired black bow and an old fashioned bar pin and bracelet, heirlooms in the Watt family.

Mrs. Bowers Fuller, chapter chaplain, wore a long black skirt, taffeta corded jacket, black bonnet with plumes and carried an ear trumpet as she portrayed Mrs. Charles E. Adams and Mrs. Charles E. Howe.

On the scene as Lucy Nesmith, Miss Edith Baldwin, hospitality co-chairman for the chapter, was attired in a lace front blouse, checked black and white taffeta dress with side hung-matching pocketbook. Completing her costume was a large black hat with heavy veiling.

Changing inconspicuously from her 1894 outfit, Mrs. Spiller appeared between scenes in a 1916 high collared long sleeved lace shirt waist and green satin skirt with beaded border worn by her mother in that year. Her wide brimmed black velvet hat was adorned with velvet rosettes and long red plume. In her third appearance, Mrs. Spiller wore a red and silver grey plaid suit with high crown velour hat of matching grey.

In the play, at the meeting held at the home of former mayor and Mrs. Palmer, 125 Fairmount St., the chapter members of that time had much to report on the markers they secured for the School St. Cemetery, their interest in Dracut historical matters; their book collections; memorial donations and presentation of a land deed. Reviewing the year 1902 and 1906 much emphasis was played on the acquisition of the chapter's meeting place of today, the Spalding House on Pawtucket St. The burning of the mortgage highlighted this sequence.

One after another, the ventures and successes of the chapter were enumerated. All stood at attention while the names of departed chapter members were read and all proudly bowed as the narrator described the three-buildings-in-one headquarters in Washington which is the largest and most beautiful structure in the world owned and maintained exclusively by women.

The program came to a close with a salute to all the chapter's officers of yesterday. Comparing them to those of today, Mrs. Spiller said, "Their skirts are shorter but their hearts are the same—" and in keeping with the theme of the jubilee play said, "We are inspired by our chapter's officers of yesterday — today."

Festivities were brought to a close with tea and dainty refreshments served in family style typical of the pioneer Molly Varnum chapter days.

Doing the honors

— in the grand and gracious way of the days of the chapter's founding is Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, Molly Varnum chapter regent, in the role of Mrs. Frederic L. Greenhalge, first lady of the Commonwealth in 1894 pouring tea for Mrs. Chester Runels, who played the part of Mrs. George W. Palmer.

"Happenings along the Merrimack" topic of DAR chapter meeting

LOWELL — Mrs. Lester H. Fox gave an interesting talk on "Happenings Along the Merrimack" at the November meeting of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the D.A.R. held at the Spalding House.

Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent, opened the meeting and welcomed guests. She then introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Fox showed maps and deeds of the land around the Merrimack River dating back to 1764. Primitive man lived near this river where narrow pathways followed, and they built homes on the river banks. The river, formed from local mountain glaciers, changed its course many times. It was believed that at one time, Christian Hill and Belvidere was one hill until the river cut its way through, leaving high banks on either side, the speaker said.

It was about 100 years after Columbus came to America that Champlain discovered this strem of water, which was eventuaily named the Merrimack, an Indian name meaning a river of strong current. Massachusetts Bay Colony used it for shipping goods which were later shipped to England. At one time 30 ships of cattle arrived in Ipswich from England and they were later shipped to different towns around the Merrimack.

Mrs. Fox told the members that the diet of the Colonists and Indians consisted often of fish, which were so plentiful in the river that one could hardly place his hand in the water without touching eel or shad. These fish sold at 10 cents but when the fish became less plentiful, fishing was only allowed three days weekly.

Lumber was later used by floating logs down the river to markets in Newburyport and Boston. The lumber was cut in the winter and then sent to these ports in the spring. When the logs came to river falls they were collected on one side by the farmers, hauled by horses around the falls and then placed back in the river again.

She said that in 1794 Boston wanted a water way to Lowell and the Locks and Canals were started but not opened until 1803. In 1814, the first passenger service started and boats were also equipped with sails and the boats went through to Concord. Later water power was used for the mills around Lowell.

Mrs. Bowers Fuller closed the meeting with a short talk on National Defense.

After the meeting, a luncheon was served in the dining room. Table decorations were made by Mrs. Charles Watt and room decorations were made by Miss Emily Wiggin. Hospitality chairman was Mrs. Roy A. Merrill and co-hcairman, Miss Glennis Ranlett. Assisting were Mrs. Celia Gordon and Miss Edith Baldwin. Hostesses for the day were Miss Blanche Gray, Miss Emily Wiggin, Mrs. T. Burne and Mrs. Dorothy Richardson.

Local DAR chapter makes annual awards

LOWELL—Each year the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) awards medals and certificates to outstanding history students from two area schools.

This year, the presentations were made at the February meeting, at the Spaulding House, Pawtucket Street.

Taking top honors was Virginia Archibald of 9 prospect St., a student at the Butler Junior High School. Mary-Jo Cunha of 61 Chapel St., was the certificate winner of second highest rank. She is also a student at the Butler Junior High School.

At Pawtucket Junior High School, George Czernienko of 74 Sparks St., received the highest honors, while Sara Huntley of 215 Textile Ave. was certificate winner.

Presenting the awards was Mrs. Kenneth E. Lawson, historian, and pupils were congratulated by Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent.

GUEST SPEAKER for the occasion was Rev. Dr. Thomas E Dipko. His topic was entitled "Patriotism for Today and Tomorrow."

He stated that in our country's historical events, it was easier to look back and be certain what was right or wrong than to look forward to our politics of tomorrow and to be sure of our decisions. Even the Pilgrims were not too sure of the best thing to do, he said, but they were grateful for their independence.

In their earliest Compact, informed the guest speaker, they lawfully made a freedom of religion.

Rep. Dipko also spake about what a scientist thought the outlook for the year 2000 would be wth hundreds of voyages to the moon, synthetic foods, and electronic books that would pass from book to brain with no need of reading or studying.

In closing, he said that with our feeling of patriotism, we should be well informed of the past, whether good or bad, and know our errors. We should admit our faults and let integrity lead us to better things for the future.

MRS. BOWERS Fuller, chaplain, gave the vocation, and Mrs. Charles Watt read the secretary's report. Mrs. George Morse was pianist for the colorful patriotic singing.

At this time it was voted that Mrs. Albert Catherwood would be chairman of the nominating committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Chester Runels, Mrs. Harold Bartlett, Miss Glennis Ranlett, and Miss Louise Thompson.

Following the luncheon, a delicious luncheon was served with Mrs. George Morse as pourers at the colorful table enhanced by red, white, and blue flowers with small drum favors in commemoration of the patriotic month.

Hostesses were Mrs. Chester Runels, Mrs. G. Russell Dana, Miss Emily Wiggin and Miss Elizabeth Baldwin.

Honored Guests

National Defense discussed DAR

LOWELL—Major Edward J. Land USMC was the guest speaker at the April meeting of the Molly Varnum, DAR held at the Spaulding House. He gave an illustrated talk on National Defense.

Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent, welcomed the members and guests and Mrs. Bowers Fuller, chairman for National Defense and charter chaplain gave the invocation. Reports were given by Mrs. Charles E. Watt, secretary, and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer. Patriotic singing was accompanied by Mrs. George Morse at the piano. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Chester Runels, Mrs. Lewis Putnam and Mrs. Frederick Chenery.

Major Edward Land told about his background as a child living in Nebraska, where he attended school with only 11 students in one room, representing all grades. He joined the Marines at 17 after graduation from High School. His early life on a farm prepared him for the rugged life of a Marine.

He told how the Marines helped the people in Vietnam by building a school because of their interest in education. However the school was rejected because the proud natives did not help to build it and the school was left empty.

Later the natives were asked to help with an addition to the school and when it was completed the school rooms became crowded. The Marines, who could speak the language, became teachers and they also paid for the education of some of the natives to enable them to teach.

Maj. Land said he felt many of our young men are misunderstood because of so many riots. However, 23 members of a Nebraska College have given blood for Vietnam soldiers. He said love and understanding in our homes, especially discipline, good example and respect for the law and government are needed. We especially need faith in our youth for they deserve it, he added.

The four good citizen girls Sharon Tierney, of Dracut; Patricia Mary McHugh of Chelmsford; Mary Kay Baggs of Tewksbury and Gayle Greene of Lowell gave short talks on their recent trip to Boston.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and the regent, Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, presided at the silver urns.

350 th anniversary

Lowell families proudly trace ancestry to the Mayflower

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL — There could be more in the Greater-Lowell area, but we have interviewed mothers of four families who proudly trace their ancestry to the Mayflower and are enthusiastically looking forward to the celebrations this year in observance of the 350th anniversary of its sailing to America.

"My first ancestor in America was Henry Samson, the 10-year-old boy, who came over on the Mayflower," said Mrs. Ray E. MacAusland, the former Marjorie Lake, a widely known Lowell piano teacher, whose late husband was an instructor at Lowell Technological Institute. Mrs. MacAusland has four children, Calvin of Acton; Douglas of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Donald of Wilton, Conn., and Mrs. Robert (Ruth) Mullarky of Wilmington.

Her ancestor, said Mrs. MacAusland was a cousin of Edward and Anne Tilly, who accompanied him on that voyage in 1620. Both died during that first year in 1621 and Henry was brought up by William Brewster. Because of the many deaths during that first winter in America, there are only 23 names to which people can trace ancestry to the Mayflower. On one of her many travels, Mrs. MacAusland viewed a letter in the Fredricton, New Brunswick art museum, written to Sir Leonard Tilly in England by the Pilgrims requesting a keg of nails. Henry Samson's grand-daughter, Mrs. MacAuland's early great-grandmother, Mercy Sprout, married Thomas Oldham, Jr., whose father and grandfather were captured on Block Island by the Indians. "Because they chopped off the head of my early great-grandfather, the Pequot War" was started," said Mrs. MacAusland.

To this she added "there were nine marriages between the Samsons and the Delanos, the latter the ancestor of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

"Mercy Oldham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Oldham, Jr. married Andrew Newcomb,." said Mrs. MacAusland, and it is through the Newcomb line that she and the famous four-star Gen. James A. Van Fleet trace themselves as cousins.

Mrs. MacAusland's great - great - grandfather, Col. David Potter and his wife rode on horseback from Groton to Sebago, Me., where they settled, and her Revolutionary grandfather, Capt. Zachariah Fitch led the Minute Men. Tracing further into the Potter family, Mrs. MacAusland said, her colonial grandfather, Anthony Potter, was taken to court to be fined because his wife Elizabeth Whipple had worn a silk bonnet to church. But he didn't have to pay the fine, because he proved he had enough money to afford such things.

MRS. MacAUSLAND has already made plans to make the 350th anniversary trip to Europe this year, for descendants of the Mayflower. To date she is the only Lowellian listed on the official anniversary trip being sponsored by the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, destination of which will be Holland.

MRS. ELIZABETH Holt Spiller of 445 Merrimack St., mother of Willis Spiller of North Chelmsford; Robert Spiller of Tewksbury and Mrs. Albert Gongloff of Chelmsford, traces her ancestry to John Aldren, who at 20, joined the passengers sailing on the Mayflower in 1620. The Alden family moved to Duxbury in 1638. John Alden and his wife Priscilla's father, William Mullins, were two of the 27 signers of the Mayflower compact. Alden was the last surviving signer of the compact which was conceived in the principle that "the will of the majority of the people shall govern." In 1802, Mrs. Spiller said, the compact was rescued from oblivion by John Quincy Adams and it was hailed as a great charter of Freedom. Mrs. Spiller is especially proud of and grateful to her brave Pilgrim ancestors whose indomitable spirit still lives on.

Mrs. Spiller says she always took delight in telling her sons and daughter about her lineage and today does so when she's with her 11 grandchildren and her little great-grandson. She says the records of her ancestral line disclose such names as the Adams of Braintree, ancestors of President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; the Buckminster's of Brookline and the Holt's of Newbury to moved to Andover, and to Peterborough, N.H. where her father the late Willis S. Holt, lived in his early youth.

Mrs. Chester M. Runels of 818 Andover St., the former Margaret Thompson, proudly claims ancestry to the Mayflower through Richard Warren and Francis Cooke who sailed on it in 1620.

Her husband the late Chester M. Runels was a widely known architectural engineer, and the three children of the Runels family are Mrs. Peter (Miriam) DeMallie of Westport, Conn.; Mrs. John (Mary Elleanor) DeMallie of Simsbury, Conn., and Mrs. Robert (Elizabeth) Eggleston Doylestown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Runels were present in 1958 at one of the ceremonies luring the reconstruction of the Plimoth Plantation, early Pilgrim village, where there is a "Warren House" and a "Cooke House", and Mr. Runels placed a wooden peg into the foundation of the Warren house at its dedication.

A GRANDDAUGHTER of Richard Warren married William Harlow, whose house built in Plymouth in 1677 from timbers of the "Old Fort" is now open to the public Mrs. Runels said, another descendant of Francis Cooke also married into the Harlow family, and their descendants moved to Amherst and took part in the Revolutionary War. Through her grandmother, Mary Jane Batchelder Mack, Mrs. Runel's family came into possession of a bit of tea from the Boston Tea Party and with it is a letter describing how the chest containing the tea was brought in bv the tide on the evening of Dec. 16, 1773.

It is to Francis Cooke and Henry Samson that Mrs. Bowers Fuller of Willowdale Road, Tyngsboro, the former Barbara Schulte of Boston, claims her ancestrv to the Mavflower. She has two children, Anne Elizabeth Fuller of Tyngsboro and Gregorv Fuller of Lowell.

Mrs. Fuller's earliest ancestor, Francis Cooke, was part of the congregation in Levden, Holland where many of the English had fled for religious freedom. He married Hester Mayhieu, called a Walloon because she was a descendant of the old Gaelic Belgae who occupy part of Belgium and northeastern France and speak a French dialect containing Gaelic and Low German words.

Going back to that time, Mrs. Fuller relates that another passenger on the Mayflower, Experience Mitchell, then a lad of 14, later married Francis Cooke's daughter, Jane. They settled in Duxbury as part of a population of 180 people.

Another member of the Mitchell family, Elizabeth, married John Washburn listed as one of the six men who went from Duxbury in the expedition to quell an uprising of the Narragansetts, in 1645.

Mrs. Fuller's lineage includes such names as the Hutchinsons whose house was of special interest because it had gunpowder in it. Her Edward Colburn ancestors were the first settlers of Dracut. Another, Major Simon Willard was a surveyor and Indian fighter. Josiah Richardson and Stephen Pierce were early officals in Chelmsford. Mrs. Fuller's other ancestors Joseph Butterfield with his neighbor, Joseph Parham, purchased the Scarlett grant of 1000 acres on the east side of the Merrimack River in the present town of Tyngsboro. Where today are all branches of the family.

Many of the dishes featured popular tuna as the main ingredient. Mrs. Bowers Fuller, left, and Mrs. Harold K. Bartlett discussed the versatility of tuna displayed in olive centered pinwheel sandwiches, roll-ups, salads, casseroles and knishes.

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Food Editor

LOWELL — The versatility of tuna was "deliciously" defined at the annual garden luncheon meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR members of which proved that this popular food from the sea is tops as the main ingredient of "do your own thing" dishes.

In addition to its famous quality of blending with other ingredients, as well as standing on its own for a main course, tuna spells value, and supplies the basic nutrients indispensable to a well balanced diet.

An average serving of tuna provides complete protein comparable to lean red meat. An average serving supples a good portion of iodine, the element which prevents development of goiter; of fluorine, which helps to prevent tooth decay and of phosphorous, which is valuable for bone building.

Tuna ranks high in vitamin B and other recognized growth factors which help to build body protein and vital red blood cells. It also has other vitamins important for maintaining normal metabolism (the rate at which the body burns up food) and growth. One serving contributes eight percent of the daily riboflavin requirement and at least half the daily requirement of niacin.

And members of the DAR are prompt to remind one that tuna has a lower calorie count than an equivalent amount of popular meat cuts.

Mrs. Bowers Fuller, regent, and Mrs. Harold K. Bartlett, active members of the chapter readily agreed that tuna can be the basis for a wide variety of stick-to-the ribs dishes that fill the bill for robust appetites. Best of all tuna is easily digested by very young children, the elderly, and those in all age ranges between them.

Mrs. Fuller, who presided at the luncheon makes her home with her husband, Bowers Fuller, a teacher at the Lowell Trade School, on Willowdae Road, Tyngsboro. She is the newly elected regent of the Molly Varnum chapter and is former chaplain. A native of Boston she was educated in the Fitchburg schools and is a graduate of Lowell High School and the University of Massachusetts.

A woman of many interests first of these are her family and her home. An excellent cook ,she loves to experiment with new recipes and generously shares favorites from her culinary treasure ches, with friends.

At the luncheon favorite meat and vegetable casseroles, salads, tuna specialties, and desserts were enjoyed, but tuna was highlighted, and some of the recipes featuring it as the main ingredient, exchanged among members, included Swiss tuna treat, Tuna Rice dish, Golden Gate Salad and Tuna Melon boats.

Fruit, vegetable and jellied salads enhance summer meals

LOWELL — Salads go a long way in menu planning. There are the kinds that you plan a meal around: the kinds that, in culinary harmony, blend with different meats and fish dishes: the kinds that stand on their own as the main course and the kinds that are so decorative they are meant for high style entertainment. All in all, whether they are fruit, vegetable, jellied, or aspic salads, the colorful combination of greens and fresh summer produce enhance summer and year round meals.

Salads can be conversation pieces according to Miss Edith Baldwin, widely known retired teacher, who makes her home at 374 Beacon St., and is definitely an authority on the history of salads as well as on so many other subjects with which she can hold one's interest for hours.

A native of Lowell, Miss Baldwin is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Baldwin and a graduate of Lowell High School. She furthered her studies in stenography and commercial subjects at Boston University and Simmons College. Her 56-year career in the teaching profession began at Nashua Business College in 1916. Miss Baldwin also taught typewriting, shorthand and economic geography at the Reading High School and Leominster High School before she became a member of the faculty at Lowell High School in 1930. Since her retirement in 1966 she is enjoying her home, travel and doing some of the things her busy schedule in the professional world would not allow her to find time for. She greatly enjoys driving through the White and Green Mountains, the Canadian Rockies and has just returned from a trip to Whitefield, N.H.

Current events are her main interest and she reads the daily papers thoroughly. Miss Baldwin holds membership in the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR and the Puritan chapter of the Eastern Star. She is an active member of Christ Church United.

COOKING is one of Miss Baldwin's favorite home duties and salads rate high on the long list of her culinary specialties. She enjoys the historical associations attributed to certain foods such as the fact that the ancient Greeks believed salads were a favorite of the gods and patterned their own menus to include roasted or boiled meat, bread, cheese and salad. During the Persian reign, a salad was served after the meat course to diners lounging on bright, woven carpets in lush private gardens. Their salad dressings often began with yogurt, called mast, made from the milk of sheep or goats and flavored with spices and herbs. In Iran today, mast still dresses relish salads.

The British, always noted for their beautiful gardens, during the 1700's created salads of rose petals, marigolds, nasturtiums and violets and dressed them with oil, acid and pepper. Salads in early America had an international flavor typical of our culinary melting pot. The introduction of powdered gelatin in the early 20th century added impetus to salad creativity. Today salads are an important course on the menu, and there is a constantly growing variety of them. The following salad easily stands on its own as a main course summer specialty.

Market report

CHICKEN and chicken parts are the specials at the meat counters at most area markets this week. The local markets are also featuring some steak sales with most of the inexpensive cuts in the forefront. The economic housewife can easily make her own steaks from eye of the round which is also a special this week. An easy way to cut steaks from the roast is to freeze it then cut the steaks. This way makes the cutting simple and the thickness uniform. Other meat buys of the week are ground beef, lamb fores, lamb shanks, legs of lamb, veal, pork, sausage, ham, bacon and cold cuts.

The Massachusetts Department of Agriculture reports that the first native sweet corn of the season has arrived at the roadside stands and markets. It is of top quality and very tasty. The season has been ideal for growing sweet juicy kernels and most of the fields are in excellent condition. When buying fresh corn, the best quality has a fresh green color, while the kernels are tender, milky and sufficiently large enough to puncture rather than easily split when slight pressure is applied. Ears should be generously filled to the tip with no rows of missing kernels.

Other fresh vegetables, all reasonably priced for the season, are green and wax beans, beet greens, cabbage, carrots, chickory, escarole, dandelions, kale iceberg, cucumbers, radishes, tomatoes, Romaine and garden lettuce, parsley, peas, scallions, yellow squash and zucchini.

Native cultivated blueberries are beginning to bear heavily. Fruit buys include apples, bananas, oranges, lemons, grapes, cherries, grapefruit, and melons, all priced right.

LOWELL — Everyone likes dainty cakes, tasty cookies and brownies, and Mrs. Walter E. Morse of 488 Chelmsford St., knows how to make them. These and her authentic recipe for Lafayette Gingerbread, the kind that George Washington's mother served the French marquis when he visited her after his return to America in the fall of 1784, and which, since then has been known by his name, are favorites for which Mrs. Morse is famous at all DAR events and other socials to which she so often contributes [illegible].

Mrs. Morse, who will celebrate her 86th birthday Sept. 10, is a native of Lowell and a graduate of Lowell High School, class of 1903. She is the widow of Walter E. Morse, for many years a local florist.

A deeply patriotic woman, Mrs. Morse, the former Helen I. Barnes, is proud of her ancestry and heritage and she is especially proud that Dr. Joseph Barnes, born in 1726 in Hingham is her Revolutionary ancestor. For years she has been trying to find his grave. Last week her efforts were rewarded when her son, Walter, Jr., drove her to Litchfield, N.H., where they found the grave in the Hillcrest Cemetery. Dr. Barnes was one of four sons of Thomas Barnes who settled in Hingham in 1636.

Mrs. Morse has seven children, Walter, Jr., a North Chelmsford florist: Mrs. William J. (Ruth) Hoare of 293 Boylston St.; Mrs. Vernon (Marion) Cook of Manchester, Conn.; Lester A. Morse of Pelham, N.H.; Mrs. Albert (Cynthia) H. Burtt, Deerfield, N.H.; Mrs. Berkeley (Barbara) Popplewell of Chelmsford; Mrs. Harold (Virginia) Edwards of Fowler Road, Lowell, whose husband is owner of Riverview Fruit Farm, Tyngsboro. She also has 24 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

A PAST REGENT of the now dissolved Lydia Darrah chapter of the DAR, Mrs. Morse is a past chaplain of its Molly Varnum chapter; past president of the Sam Walter Foss Literary Club and a member of the YMCA Auxiliary. She is a member of Christ Church United and she served for 17 consecutive years on the DAR state board of directors, was state chairman of the Pilgrims Girls Club and a member of the Credential committee. She loves antiques and trinkets and has impressive collections of both. For the past two years she has been compiling lineage books for all her grandchildren and has in her research, gone back to 1601.

She has a treasury of recipes topped by her Lafayette ginger bread which everyone likes all the way down the line from her contemporary DAR friends, to her great-grandchildren. She who gets the recipe from Mrs. Morse may count herself a friend —and so may all our readers with whom she is happy to share it.

Market report

This week the meat markets are offering excellent values on beef and lamb chops. Lamb is an excellent source of high quality protein. Since, in most of the cuts, the fat is easibly separable from the lean, calories can be held down where this is desired. Lamb is also easily digested and is ideal for diets of all age groups. Top sirloin steak, chicken breasts, whole chickens, pork, sausage hams and bacon are also on the good buys of the week list.

The wait for sun-ripened tomatoes has been a long one, but it certainly was worth it. All area vegetable stands and counters are now well stocked with excellent quality tomatoes. Also available in plentiful suppply at good prices are artichokes, beans, beets, broccoli, cabbage of the Chinese, Red, Savoy and green varieties, carrots, cauliflower, celery, chicory, chives, cucumbers, eggplant, kale, lettuce, onions, scallions, peppers, radishes, and squash.

At the fruit stands there are plenty of apples, oranges, lemons, pineapples, pears, peaches, grapes, cherries, melons, plums and watermelon all available at reasonable prices.

at hand. It wasn't real sauerbraten any more, but it was good pot roast.

Kraut, Frank and Fruit Pot

¾ cup chopped onion
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
3½ cups undrained sauerkraut
1 package (11 ounces) mixed dried fruit
12 frankfurters, cut into thirds
1½ tablespoons dark brown sugar
1½ teaspoons caraway seed
Dash freshly ground pepper
2 teaspoons bottled steak sauce
2¼ cups apple juice
1½ tablespoons cornstrach
2 tablespoons cold water
Mashed or boiled potatoes

Cook onion in the butter in dutch oven or large saucepan until tender, stirring occasionally. Add sauerkraut and cook a few minutes. Remove cores from dried pears and cut large pieces of fruit in half. Add fruit, frankfurters, brown sugar, caraway seed, steak sauce and apple juice to sauerkraut. Cover and cook 30 minutes or until fruit is tender, stirring occasionally.

Drain about two cups liquid from sauerkraut mixture. Place sauerkraut mixture in serving dish; cover and keep warm. Return liquid to pan. Blend water with cornstarch. Stir into sauerkraut liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils two minutes. Serve with sauerkraut and mashed or boiled potatoes. Makes six servings.

Chop six whole pickles into small pieces. Set aside. Fry bacon in large pan. Remove bacon, add meat and brown well all over. Strain marinade, pour over meat and roast in a 325 degree over until meat is tender. Baste frequently with marinade.

Remove meat from pan to serving dish. Thicken each cup of remaining marinade with two and one-half teaspoons flour. Cook until thickened. Add sour cream, if desired. Sprinkle with chopped sweet pickle. Serves six to eight.

DAR Meets in Auburn

By POLLY PRUNEAU
Of The Telegram Staff

Mrs. Donald Spicer of Coronado, Calif., Historian General and candidate for the President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution, addressed the state convention at the Sheraton Yankee Drummer Inn, Auburn, yesterday.

Mrs. Spicer's speech, "What is Past is Prologue" was an attempt to tie together the history of the West Coast and the American Revolution. "The mission of San Juan Capistrano was founded in 1776 and San Diego mission was founded in 1769." When the Franciscan Friars founded these missions, they founded California."

Mrs. Spicer said the people of this period were equally dedicated "whether they wore the habit of the Franciscan or the equally ragged uniform of the Continental Army."

Constantly Aware

"We, too, must be constantly aware, alert to opportunities to give appropriate answers and correct errors diplomatcially. We must be diligent and patient. We must have faith and confidence, that is, one nation under God. But above all, as the greatest one of all told us, we must "Be Not Afraid."

One of the concerns of the DAR is contributing to the support of the St. Mary's Episcopal School, Springfield, S.D. Kenyon Cull, headmaster of the school spoke to the convention last night about the special needs of the Indians and their unique culture. "From Indian Blanket to Electric Blanket," his talk pointed out the way the Indian is making the transition from his culture to ours.

"People must develop an understanding about the Indian so the Indian is given the power to make his own decisions. He should have a say in his own destiny," said Mr. Cull.

"The Indians need greater educational opportunities. They need better housing and medical facilities. There are so many things they need; these are just the basics," he said.

A very important factor was added by Mr. Cull. "They need their own land instead of having the white man looking after it for them. They are steeped in tradition and pride. They have their own heritage and they want to preserve it."

When asked if he was addressing the women to plea for help, Mr. Cull replied "I don't have to. They make such a great contribution to the Indian program already."

A Place in... THE SUN

By Frances Berg

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Duncanson of 164 Parker St. were especially busy this summer upon retirement and a trip to London, England, Billerica, Plymouth, and Holland, and other points to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the coming of the Mayflower I to the U.S.A. in 1620.

Mr. Duncanson retired from Boston and Maine Railroad after 45 years of service and Mrs. Duncanson resigned from nine years as treasurer of Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Duncanson is very proud of her "perfect record" as she has not missed a meeting since becoming a member 20 years ago, and has attended all board meetings since becoming the treasurer nine years ago. She is a member of the state board in Boston, and has attended all state board meetings.

Mrs. Duncanson belongs to the Massachusetts and National Mayflower Society of Plymouth, a member of Plimouth Plantation in Plymouth, and the Old Plymouth Colony Descendants, the Manning Family Associates of Manning Manse in North Billerica, and the Puritan Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, and flag chairman for Molly Varnum, Chapter, DAR. She is in "Who's Who of American Women," and is also in the English book of "Who's Who of England Women," since all her relatives on both sides come from England. Mrs. Duncanson has traced her line from Elder William Brewster of Mayflower I, 1620, up to William the Conqueror and down to cousin of the present Queen Elizabeth.

Mrs. Duncanson was Vera Mumford Stevens and visited the Edward Stephan-Stevens home in London, England, while there.

A Place in... THE SUN

Nov - 1970

By Marguerite Lyons

For weeks church, lodge and club suppers featuring the theme of harvest bounty have set the tone for the day of days in November when all Americans recall the time of our Pilgrim fathers and in their spirit of gratitude to the Almighty, give thanks for the abundance with which generations in this country have been blessed since the first Thanksgiving Day in 1621.

In keeping with tradition families gather to feast together and enumerate the blessings for which they render thanks. All the holidays have their symbols and Thanksgiving's is the lavishly laden table, with roast stuffed turkey, as the popular and preferred mets de resistance.

Strange as it seems in this land of plenty which is ours for many, Thanksgiving Day will be just another day of hardship and want and it is in the name of these underpriviledged that the voices of church and civic leaders throughout the land have called out to those who can, to make this day one of sharing.

In his holiday proclamation President Nixon calling upon all Americans "to give thanks in homes and places of worship for the many blessings our people enjoy" urged us to remember the nation's people in want. He also urged the nation's families to make Thanksgiving meaningful for senior citizens and those who are alone by inviting them to be special participants in the day's festivities.

One Lowellian Mrs. Raymond MacAusland of Westford St., will be among the members of the Society of the Mayflower descendants who are observing the 350th anniversary of the time the Pilgrims left Holland to come to America, by having Thanksgiving dinner there this year.

Bon voyage

—said Donald MacAusland and his daughter, Kyle of Wilton, Conn., to his mother, Mrs. Raymond MacAusland of Westford St., moments before she boarded a jet at Kennedy Airport, N.Y. for Amsterdam with members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants.

Mrs. MacAusland, a widely known musician and teacher, for several years an officer and active committee worker of the Molly Varnum chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution left Kennedy Airport last Wednesday arriving in Amsterdam from where she flew to London where the pilgrimage group was feted at a dinner party at the Piccadilly Hotel. After a tour of the city special trips were made to the Pilgrim Fathers' Memorial Church in Southwalk and to Rotherithe, where the Mayflower was built. Saturday the group traveled by train to Plymouth for a civic reception and a dinner with the local dignitaries. Sunday was spent exploring the Pilgrim Country as was Monday. Today the group will sail from Harwich for Holland and arrive in Hook tomorrow. Programs will recall that many of the Pilgrims had left England in 1608 to go to Holland for freedom of religious worship and lived there 12 years before they joined relatives in England to come to America.

The trip's numerous highlights will be climaxed Thursday when the group will attend a special Thanksgiving service in the Pilgrim Fathers' Church, then enjoy cocktails by the open fire and dine by candlelight at the enchanting Kasteel Oud—Wassenaar. Shortly after breakfast Friday morning the group will make its return flight to New York arriving at Kennedy Airport in mid afternoon.

Heritage Day program highlights DAR meeting

LOWELL — The Molly Varnum Chapter DAR held its November meeting at the Spaulding House with the regent, Mrs. Bowers Fuller presiding.

The day's program centered around Heritage Day and readings on the meaning of the Thanksgiving holiday and the pilgrims were given. Mrs. Fuller reminisced about the country's fore fathers, their struggles, accomplishments and contributions to the country. Little known facts about our fore fathers were discussed including the recent discovery of the grave of Dr. Joseph Barnes, who was a regiment surgeon and had walked to Bunker Hill and Fort Ticonderoga.

One of the members of the group produced a General Moses Bible which camouflaged a flask so that the minister could take a sip or two during the long hours of discourse for which he was noted. Photographs taken here and abroad were shown including one of a ten-foot fireplace which heated all rooms and was probably the fore runner to central heating. Scrapbooks both of local interest and one from a Billerica pilgrim traveler, were displayed as was a family Pilgrim days teapot and plate.

Other interesting pieces on display included an individual communion set used by a W.W. I chaplain, Lt. Col. G.B. Cornish, modern design rugs, 1711 maps, grave stone rubbings, family pictures and relics

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Harold K. Bartlett, and Mrs. Joseph A. Hartley, hostesses, and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, pourer.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party to be held Dec. 8 at 2 o'clock with Mrs. John H. Sargent as guest speaker. Mrs. Sargent will speak on the "Treasures" of the Past — Old fashion dolls.

WHEREAS, American history is a steady record of growth, even in the face of disasters; it is a heritage created by all men and women which has become the privilege and the responsibility of present and future generations; and

WHEREAS, February is the month in which we celebrate the birthdays of two of our greatest Americans and Presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, whose personal lives and ideals equalled the greatness of their leadership and statesmanship; and

WHEREAS, We would do well to study and follow the example of such outstanding men, for a sound knowledge of our history and the ability to apply the lessons it teaches will be an invaluable aid to those now living who have a part, however small, in forming the history of the future; and

WHEREAS, Since its beginning, Massachusetts has made many contributions to American history as the scene of great events in the story of our country and home of leaders in every field. It is an integral and most important part of our national heritage and was, in fact, the first State in the Union to proclaim February, by statute, as American History Month;

NOW, therefore, I, FRANCIS W. SARGENT, Acting Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in accordance with Chapter 44 of the Acts of 1957, do hereby proclaim as

February, 1971

GIVEN at the Executive Chamber in Boston, this twenty-first day of September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and seventy, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and ninety-fifth.

Imaginations soared at Pyne School's colorful social studies fair

LOWELL — The history of the roaring 20's illustrated with pictures and costumes of that era took first place honors yesterday at the social studies fair presented by seventh and eighth grade students of the Joseph G. Pyne School.

This particular display was crafted by Eileen Malloy and her twin sister Evelyn along with Sharon Keefe of the eighth grade. The girls added to the excitement of the project by wearing costumes to suit the subject.

In all, there were 70 projects, and sharing first place honors for the seventh grade were Thomas Sager and Mark Fecteau with a project entitled "Battle of Bunker Hill."

The assignment was given to the students prior to Christmas under the direction of social studies teachers William J. Samaras and Robert A. Dempsey, working in conjunction with the school's principal, Francis P. McGee.

Mr. Samaras explained the children were advised by the administration and given numerous topics from which they could select their project, but the subject choice was entirely up to the student.

He further informed us the basic purpose of the assignment was to acquaint the students with the local library and the school library and how to use reference material properly.

Spending several hours at the school to judge the outstanding artistic and historical displays were Mrs. Elizabeth H. Spiller and Mrs. Bowers Fuller, representing the Daughters of the American Revolution, Molly Varnum Chapter; Miss Eleanor Donahoe, head of the history department for the City of Lowell; Dr. Harold A. Miner who represented Title III Innovative Programs. School committeeman Ernest L. Hermann visited the fair and expressed his admiration at the work done by the students.

Other winners announced were: Eighth grade students, Jean Cull, second place for her "Child Labor" which showed the unreasonable conditions children were forced to be a part of in the local cotton mills; Susan Bourassa and Denise Goyette, third place for "Norway and Sweden."

Seventh graders sharing the winner's circle were Thomas Curran, second place honors for "The First Three Revolutionary War Campaigns": Renee Goyette, third place title for "Australia."

Receiving honorable mention were seventh graders Jay Stamp and Ronald Gelineau with "A Map of the World and Routes of Explorers"; Barbara Geddes and Virginia Janeiro with "Pilgrims in America"; Michelle Desroches, Kathy Scomis, Deborah Muldoon, "First Thanksgiving"; John Bujnowski and Ronald Brun, "Indians and Indian Weapons"; Patricia Knust, "Pioneer Life"; Helen Walton and Joanne Malloy, "Covered Wagons"; Linda Paglieroni, Sue Mrozowski, Elizabeth Boulanger and Barbara Delehanty, "History of the American Flag"; George Buott, "Farming Tools"; Linda Silva, Donna Machado and Sandra Surprenant, "Jamestown."

Eighth graders receiving honorable mention were Patricia McGrath and Cheryl Sylvester, "Slavery"; Joanne Wingood and Patricia McCray, "Andrew Carnegie"; James Hodgson and James Brown, "Iwo Jima"; Mark Boucher and David McEneny, "Turning Point of the Battle of Gettysburg"; Nancy Robard and Carol Jankowski, "Steam"; Kathy Geddes and Debbie McAvoy, "Klu Klux Klan"; Richard MacKenney and George Nault, "Charles Lindberg"; Allen Nestervich, "Factories"; Judy Anderson, "The Meat Packing Industry"; Richard Gagnon, "1920 Depression"; Karen Lovetere and Sharon Lynche, "Sod Houses"; Richard James and Brian Trainor, "Oil Wells."

Presentation of awards for the winners will take place at the school PTA meeting in April.

Nixon defenas Asia policy

By MICHAEL PRENTICE

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon defended his Indochina policy again last night on the eve of Senate hearings on the war.

Speaking also as new anti-war demonstrations began in the capital, Nixon implcitly rejected any immediate and complete withdrawal of U.S. forces.

He said he believed the American people would support his policy for ending U.S. involvement in the conflict.

"The killing in Asia must stop — all of us want that desperately. That fervent desire unites the nation, whatever else may divide us," Nixon told the 80th continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

But the verdict of history, Nixon said, would depend on how the killing was stopped.

"Shall we move now in a way that ends the death toll only for Americans and only for a brief time?" Nixon asked.

"Or shall we act in a more difficult but wiser way to leave behind a South Vietnam able to defend itself against Communist aggression and a Southeast Asia where peace is possible over the long term?"

"I BELIEVE THAT Americans will support the wiser course, so that our grandchildren can remember the 1970s . . . as a decade of honor, of hope, of new birth for America," he said.

The focus of congressional concern over Vietnam switches today to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which opens hearings on legislative proposals to end or limit American involvement in the war.

While the hearings are in progress, Vietnam veterans who oppose the war will be lobbying congressmen and parading around Congress. At present there are about 1,000 veterans taking part in the week-lond protest, but this number is expected to increase as they move toward a big protest march through Washington at the weekend.

Among the first opponents of the war to appear before the Senate committee will be Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota co-author of a bill designed to get American troops out of Vietnam by the end of the year. He also is the only man so far to have declared his candidacy for the party's presidential nomination next year.

Tomorrow, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will open hearings of his subcommittee on refugees on the effects of the Indochina war on the civilian population, especially in Laos.

HIS ARGUMENT, and that of one of his principal witnesses, Republican Congressman Paul McCloskey, of California, that even if the ground fighting is winding down, the air war is continuing at full blast, taking a heavy toll on civilians, whose homes and villages have been destroyed by bombing raids.

McCloskey, a 43-year-old ex-Marine already has said he is ready to oppose Nixon for the Republican presidential nomination next year if no one else does.

The veterans, thwarted yesterday in their attempt to lay a wreath at Arlington National Cemetery for comrades killed in Vietnam, won court permission to spend the night legally on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

The government had obtained an injunction banning them from pitching tents there but an appeals court last night modified the restriction to permanent camp sites on the monument grounds.

On Thursday night, McGovern will join other leading Democrats — including presidential hopefuls Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and former vice-president Hubert H. Humphrey — on nationwide television to respond to Nixon's latest statement on Indochina.

At the scene

...of escape via the underground and clad in the fashion of night attire of the era stands Mrs. George J. (Marion Davis) Morse, whose Revolutionary War ancestor once lived in the Spalding House. Through the tiny door of the old raftered kitchen, where she stands, went the refugees and run-away slaves which Dr. Spalding would allow to hide there until dark when they would flee and be on their way to Canada.

Not enough punk is still too much

By MARY SAMPAS
Sun Correspondent

LOWELL — If you know anything about punk-rock groups, it's that they've got to look, and act and BE horrible to become successful, right? Well, there was this cartoon recently in the New Yorker, picturing a really foul quartet of goons, ragged and dirth and disgusting as though they'd just surfaced from a month's wallow in one of the filthier sewers, and they were sitting in a booking agent's office. Looking them over thoughtfully, the booking agent was saying, "You're punk, all right, but you're not punk ENOUGH . . ."

I like to think that when punk comes to Lowell (it's supposed to be a world-wide movement, and we ARE part of the world), Lowell will somehow manage be not-punk-ENOUGH. In the past, Lowell has shown an airy indifference to (or perhaps a blissful ignorance of) some of the wilder life styles — and their accompanying fashions. But punk A-PLENTY is what they have in London — where punk rock's nauseous side-kick, punk fashion was born. The Jack Eliots, just back from a month's stay in London, say the King's Road area has become a big tourist attraction, everyone flocking there to gawk at the hideous-looking young fellows and femmes wearing clothes featuring huge holes and stains, held together with safety-pins and chains, or strapped around one in too-faithful imitation of straightjacket chic. Remember the Hell's Angels' clothes we used to see around here once? By comparison to punk, the motorcycle macho's duds would look Jackie Onassis elegant . . .

ANNE ELIOT SAYS the safety-pin (punk rock's symbol) fad is not to be believed. Cuts have been made in arms, so safety-pins can form living bracelets . . . ears have been pierced several times each, so a crowd of safety-pins may dangle and jangle . . . and worst of all, cheeks have been perforated so safety-pins can be attached, via the lips. To go with all this is the most surreal make-up: multicolor lips, green hair, lemon rouge. The youngsters adopt dead, hopeless expressions, like zombies, and they don't have much fun, even when they dance. No wonder! A favorite punk rock dance routine has dancers choking one another so realistically that often someone drops in a faint . . .

This is all pretty sick — but sicker yet, I think, is high fashion's cashing in on this hopelessness, this deadliness, that has been the domain of London's young poor. English designer Zandra Rhodes thinks punk fashion will be the next big rage, so she's already whipped up dresses with big rips and ragged ends, held together with bathtub plug chains and studs as well as the ubiquitous safety-pin. But Rhodes dresses start at $600 each, the rips are hand-embroidered, and the safety-pins, of course, are gold-plated . . .

THIS COMING WEEK'S stint as one of "The Sunshine Boys" won't be popular Father Jon Martin's first appearance at Salem, N.H.'s Town and Country Playhouse. He starred in last season's "Never Too Late," and he was Ben Franklin in "1776", both times donating his salary to Camp Fatima in Wolfeboro, N.H.

Lowell's DAR— longtime genealogists

By MARGUERITE LYONS
Sun Staff

LOWELL — Long before the "Roots" craze hit the American public, the Daughters of the American Revolution were interested in genealogy, tracing their members' ancestors back to the patriots of the American Revolution

In Lowell, the DAR chapter, formed in 1894 and named after patriot Molly Varnum, has 90 members and owns the history-rich Spalding House on Pawtucket Street

THE MOLLY VARNUM Chapter of the DAR was named in honor of the wife of General Joseph Bradley Varnum of Dracut. She was the daughter of Jacob Butler of Pelham, N.H., and of Mary Eames Butler.

Born June 4, 1750, Molly Varnum, like other patriotic women during the struggle for independence was devoted to the cause for which her husband and father fought. She wove the cloth to equip the Dracut troops and she toiled early and late, denying herself the comforts of life and home, that she might give more time to the defenders of her country

The Molly Varnum chapter was founded Oct. 30,1894 by Mrs. Frederick L. Greenhalge, wife of Gov. Greenhalge and the first meeting was held at their home on Wyman Street with 30 ladies attending. As founder, Mrs. Greenhalge was also the first regent of the chapter Meetings were held in the homes of the members until membership grew too large, and Memorial Hall was rented.

IN 1906, the chapter purchased the Spalding House from Mrs. Henry Lambert, a descendant of Capt. John Ford, who led the Minute Men from Chelmsford against the British at Lexington and Concord and who took part in every succeeding battle of the Revolution.

The last residents of the Spalding House, built in 1761, were Dr. Joel Spalding and his sister, Miss Sarah Spalding. Joel was the father of Jonathan who bought the house in 1790. He was a member of the Chelmsford Company during the Revolution. Owners of the house from the time it was built until it came into the possession of the Spaldings included Andrew Fletcher, Joseph Tyler, Moses Davis, who also had an interest in the sawmill located on the bank of the Merrimack River near the rear of the old house. It was also owned by Nathaniel Ropes, Capt. Ford, Reuben Hamblett and Dr. Robert Hildreth. All these names are closely connected with the history of the City of Lowell.

Situated on Great Country Road, now known as Pawtucket Street, the Spalding House was a famous stopping place for the old stage coaches which travelled through this area.

During the years when it was known as the "Davis Tavern" the house was renowned as a rallying place for the sturdy raftsmen whose rafts of logs being poled from the New Hampshire forests to Newburyport were often broken up by the Pawtucket Rapids. After the raftsmen had retrieved their logs, placed them on great ox teams waiting to carry them below the rapids and remake them into rafts to continue their journey to the sea, they sought a few hours of relaxation at the tavern before resuming their venture down the Merrimack.

REPLETE WITH history and legend, the house was also the haven for many a slave and refugee who was helped to escape by Dr. Spalding. Chapter members tell how he would open a tiny side door in the raftered kitchen and let the runaway slaves hide in the secret passage way behind the fireplace until dark when, after having been fed by the kind doctor would vanish and be on their way to Canada.

Bought by the Molly Varnum Chapter for $3500, the house underwent its initial repairs at a cost of $900. Since then the chapter has maintained it and today the Spalding House, a veritable museum of Revolutinnary era memorabilia, is filled with beautiful antiques and over 800 catalogued items bequeathed to the chapter by its members of the past and of the present.

DAR members are not women who live in the past,(as they have so often been labelled) but rather women who possess a great spirit of patriotism and who wish to share it and pass it on to their own and future generations.

Elizabeth Holt Spiller, who has written the history of the chapter for both it 50th and 75th anniversary observances and who has compiled its records over the years, will mark her 80th birthday next month. An active member, Mrs. Spiller knows the history of every item in the Spalding House and delights in relating stories about the happenings under its roof.

HER UNCLE, Algie A. Holt, town clerk of Peterborough, N.H. for 35 years, was the first member of the Holt family to become interested in tracing the family lineage to the immigrant ancestor. "Through diligence and much research he traced every generation back to John and Priscilla Alden," said Mrs Spiller

She explained that her uncle's aunt, Mrs. C Spalding of Nashua, N.H. had authentic lineage back to the Revolutionary ancestor so that she could be a member of the DAR. Nashua chapter. This ancestor, she said, was Christopher Thayer, Jr. After her uncle's death, her aunt gave her all his precious papers so that she could continue further research of John and Priscilla Alden lineage in England. Doing so she completed family lineage for other family lines, namely Adams, Buckminster, Dyson, Holt, Thayer and Willman.

"'Roots' is a very fascinating and challenging subject and a most pleasant pastime and it is delightful to know that so many people of today's younger generation are interested in theirs," said Mrs Spiller.

"I JOINED the DAR in 1938, using the papers of my aunt, Mrs. Susan Sprague," said Miss Louise Thompson, current regent of the Molly Varnum chapter. Her ancester was Francis Libby.

She originally joined the Old Bay State chapter and served as its secretary and later as its regent holding membership until that chapter disbanded. Miss Thompson has been vice regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter and its regent since 1973

"Moses Davis, a soldier in the Revolutionary War and the owner of the Spalding House in 1766 was my ancestor," said Mrs. George J. (Marion Davis) Morse, who joined the chapter in 1941 and served as its pianist, registrar and recording secretary

'It was my ancestor who, while be owned and lived in the Spalding House conducted a tavern, later moving it to Davis Square, (Central, Gorham and Thorndike Sts.) later named Gallagher Square," said Mrs. Morse She has been interested in genealogy and historical events all her life and is especially interested in those events relating to the City of Lowell, its residents and industries.

Mrs. Morse's sister, daughter and three granddaughters are members of the Molly Varnum Chapter.

MRS. LOUIS A. Biron, the former Doris Russell, daughter of the late Robert Dustan Russell, prominent Chelmsford businessman, and of Mrs. Elva Bicknell Russell of Dalton Road, says it was growing up with the story of Hannah Dustan, her sixth generation great-grandmother that inspired her to look into the genealogy of her family. Doing so she discovered that a Nathaniel Currier (1741-1826) was indeed a patriot and ancestor. He lived in Pelham.

...and wearing her great-grandmother's party dress, Mrs. Louis A. (Doris Russell) Biron, whose ancestry dates back to Hannah Dustan, opens the corner cupboard in the Tap Room. It contains a helmet pitcher which belonged to Molly Varnum, a Benjamin Franklin mug and a silver mote spoon which belonged to Dr. Amos Bradley's great, great-grandmother. Also in the cupboard is a powder horn flask used in battle at Concord and several gold, blue and ruby lustre plates and sugar bowls. To the left hangs a large globe lamp and between the flags is an antique china punch bowl and ladle on a mahogany table.

Reliving the history

...with which the Spalding House is filled Elizabeth Holt Spiller, left, who will be 80 next month and whose ancestry goes back to John and Priscilla Alden, tells the story of the familiar scene in the large entrance hall. Mrs. Spiller is wearing a black sweeping floor length homespun alpaca basque dress with short train and beautiful old red satin cape with padded lining. The dark red petit bonnet of velvet with rhinestone trimming and jawstrings were the touches of fashion enhancement in her great-grandmother's day. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns, muskets, swords and a powder horn. On each side hang a powder shell knapsack and water canteen. In the fireplace are the Hession Soldier Andirons and antique hanging kettles, a copper teapot and bellows. Left, the current regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, Louise Thompson, seated in the front room parlor, describes a segment of its treasures. From left a century old viol, and on the mahogany table a globe lamp on brass stand with prism pendants flanked by two brass candlesticks with prism pendants. In forefront are a set of pewter candleholders and a pewter tea pot which belonged to General and Mrs. J.B. Varnum.

DAR in city has rich history

One of the newer members of the DAR, Mrs. Biron was accepted in 1975 and has served the chapter as publicity chairman and treasurer. She fondly recalls the household items belonging to her grandmother and which had long before belonged to Hannah Dustan, the doughty Indian slayer of 280 years ago.

Mrs. Biron feels that the DAR and its numerous chapters throughout the country have been and will continue to be instrumental in the development of a spirit of patriotism among this generation and perpetuate that spirit in generations to come

"I became interested in the DAR as a girl encouraged by my mother and my aunt, who were really interested in our geneology," said Nancy Elizabeth Pickett Harrison, also one of the newer members of the chapter

"My maternal side of the family descended from some of the very earliest settlers who arrived in Salem Harbor on the ship Arbella", she said "The Revolutionary War record of Thomas Stearns is a part of the family legacy passed down to me and it is on his record that I joined the DAR," she said

MRS. FRANCIS McNamara, the former Ruth Martin, says it was by accident in 1955, while driving to Lovel, Maine with her parents Mr and Mrs. Charles Granville (Mabel E. French) Martin to visit relatives that she discovered the key that admitted her to the DAR

As elderly relatives explained their degree of ancestry she sketched an ancestral chart on the back of an envelope. Intrigued by the anecdotes related by her relatives, she continued to delve into the genealogy and before long the scribblings on the back of the envelope developed into findings that filled a whole roll of shelf paper

"From that day I was hooked," she said. She bought Oscar Stetson's book titled "The Art of Ancestor Hunting" and traced her ancestry to Andrew French, Jr Shortly after having been accepted by the DAR in Washington she became a member of the Molly Varnum Chapter

Turning to her 10-year-old grand-daughter, Meredith Louise Bradstreet Whitaker, who is visiting here from Monte Sereno, Calif., Mrs. McNamara said she plans to share much of the fun of ancestor-hunting with her during her stay.

Meredith Louise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus H (Carolyn Rand) Whitaker and the direct descendant of Governors Dudley, Wiggin and Bradstreet

THE LOCAL CHAPTER has 90 members and it meets once a month from September to June. It is committed to observe American History Month in February by sponsoring essay contests on given historic subjects for students in grades five through eight and to recognizing the excellence in the study of American History by awarding DAR certificates of Award and DAR American History medals

The chapter awards a medal to the top ranking ROTC student at the University of Lowell an annual basis, and it also rewards its Good Citizenship Girls from all the high schools in the Greater-Lowell area

The chapter, along with all others in the National Society aids St. Mary's School for Indian Girls in Springfield, S.D. and gives scholarships to other Indians who need help. It also contributes to the Tamassee, S.C. DAR School and to Hillside School for boys from broken homes.

Upon request the chapter, will provide American Flags to any institution and it distributes material on patriotism on a regular basis for the purpose of honoring the past, carrying out services in the present and building a firm foundation to safeguard the future.

Officers of the Molly Varnum Chapter include Miss Louise E. Thompson, regent; Mrs. Bert Harless, vice regent; Mrs. William Smith, chaplain; Mrs. George Morse, recording secretary; Miss Helen Butler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis A. Biron, treasurer and Mrs. Francis McNamara, assistant treasurer

Miss Pauline F Varnum is registrar, Mrs Charles Watt, historian, Miss Edith Baldwin, librarian and Mrs Benjamin F Ashworth, curator.

THE NATIONAL Society for the Daughters of the American Revolution was formed on the efforts of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the president. The group promotes the preservation of documents and relics and the records of individual soldiers in the Revolution

To be eligible, a woman just be at least 18 and be a descendant of aman or woman who, with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American independence, served as a soldier, sailor of civil officer in one of the several colonies or of someone who rendered material aid to the Revolutionary cause. An applicant must also be found to be personally acceptable to the society

The National Society owns an entire city block, between C and D Streets, in Washington D.C, including the Memorial Contineta! Hall completed in 1910, the Administration Building and Constitution Hall, dedicated in 1929. The buildings are the largest in the world built and financed entirely by a women's organization

Spalding House is rich in historical treasures

LOWELL — The 216-year-old yellow house at 383 Pawtucket St., is the pride and joy of every member of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American revolution. Known as the Spalding House, it enshrines the hundreds of treasures and memorabilia with which the chapter has been endowed to make it veritable museum of Revolutionary War era mementos.

The Spalding House stands on part of what was an Indian Reservation known as "Great Neck." According to Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller, 79-year-old chapter member who has written and rewritten records pertaining to the chapter and its home, the land was sold by the Wamesit Tribe of Indians to Robert Hildreth who built the house in 1761. He later sold it to Reuben Hamblett who in 1768 sold it to Moses Davis who used it as as inn.

The next owner, Joseph Tyler sold it to Capt. John Ford who kept it for about 13 years and sold it to Andrew Fletcher. In 1790 Nathaniel Ropes of Salem became its owner and he sold it to Joel Spalding who passed it on to his family. After the death of the last member of the family, Mrs. Henry A. Lambert bought the property and graciously invited members of the Molly Varnum chapter to hold their meetings there, later convincing them that they should own the house, because it had belonged to the families of three Revolutionary War soldiers and four other patriots.

Restoration of the house began almost immediately after the chapter purchased it for $3500. It was opened and dedicated Dec. 18, 1906.

FROM THE front door, one steps into the large entrance hall and immediately sees the corner fireplace with its antique hanging kettles, copper teapot, bellows, Hessian Soldier Andirons, powder shell knapsack and water canteens. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns, muskets, swords and a powder horn.

On the walls hand pictures of the Declaration of Independence, several of George Washington and an original copy of one of the first War department claims given in 1781 to Joseph David. A private, he was to receive the amount of $76.66 twice a year.

In the corner to the right of the door stands a very old tall grandfather clock. The room has two tables topped with brochures pertaining to the membership and its wide painted floor boards are covered with a bright braided rug.

The front room parlor to the left of the entrance hall is furnished with a horsehair sofa, a Chippendale table with folding legs, a very old two-drawer sewing table, an old mahogany secretary, a mahogany card table with lyre centre standard, a Windsor rocking chair, and a Chippendale mirror with brass eagle. It is a mecca of silhouettes, paintings and pictures of the Continental Congress, cupboards of old pitchers, bowls, pewter and china. Commanding the visitor's attention are the old Haskell Family's viol, a brass warming pan, a shell box, hanging lamps, the James G. Butrick family bible and a 1839 Lowell Directory to mention but a few.

HIGHLIGHTING the Spalding Room are portraits of the Spalding Family, the old secretary which was in this room when the family lived in the house and the mantel and fireplace with its brass tablet, candlesticks, and lamp enhancements.

Describing the Tap Room, Mrs. George Morse, whose ancestor Moses Davis was innkeeper back in the days when the Tavern which became the Spalding House was the first stop for raftsmen on their river journey to the sea, said that on those occasions the rafters rang with laughter, tall stories and gossip

The Tap Room's old fireplace is filled with Revolutionary relics and its corner cupboard is replete with colonial china treasures Of special interest in the room is the portrait of Mary Greeley Morrison, a devoted chapter member who left a trust fund for the maintenance and insurance of the house.

Walking into the West Parlor, Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller held everyone's interest as she related her ancestors' accounts of how the ladies of the era congregated and chatted in this room while their men gathered in the Tap Room on stop overs on their journeys to Boston or to points north

The bracket lamps on the wall are very old and were the original oil lamps from the Reade home on Lakeview Avenue. Among the scores of other itmes of interest are candle snuffers, an egg cooker, an old footstove, fluting irons, candle molds and canes belonging to Gen Joseph Bradley Varnum and Col Dimon

IN THE OLD historic raftered kitchen is the fireplace along side of which is the tiny door with steps leading upward to what was the hiding place of run-away refugees who used this secret passageway to escape to Canada. The cupboard holds the dishes currently used for chapter meetings. The kitchen walls are covered with pictures of Martin Van Buren, George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

...with which the Spalding House is filled Elizabeth Holt Spiller, left, who will be 80 next month and whose ancestry goes back to John and Priscilla Alden, tells the story of the familiar scene in the large entrance hall. Mrs. Spiller is wearing a black sweeping floor length homespun alpaca basque dress with short train and beautiful old red satin cape with padded lining. The dark red petit bonnet of velvet with rhinestone trimming and jawstrings were the touches of fashion enhancement in her great-grandmother's day. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns, muskets, swords and a powder horn. On each side hang a powder shell knapsack and water canteen. In the fireplace are the Hession Soldier Andirons and antique hanging kettles, a copper teapot and bellows. Left, the current regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, Louise Thompson, seated in the front room parlor, describes a segment of its treasures. From left a century old viol, and on the mahogany table a globe lamp on brass stand with prism pendants flanked by two brass candlesticks with prism pendants. In forefront are a set of pewter candleholders and a pewter tea pot which belonged to General and Mrs. J.B. Varnum.

One of the newer members of the DAR, Mrs. Biron was accepted in 1975 and has served the chapter as publicity chairman and treasurer. She fondly recalls the household items belonging to her grandmother and which had long before belonged to Hannah Dustan, the doughty Indian slayer of 280 years ago.

Mrs. Biron feels that the DAR and its numerous chapters throughout the country have been and will continue to be instrumental in the development of a spirit of patriotism among this generation and perpetuate that spirit in generations to come.

"I became interested in the DAR as a girl encouraged by my mother and my aunt, who were really interested in our geneology," said Nancy Elizabeth Pickett Harrison, also one of the newer members of the chapter.

"My maternal side of the family descended from some of the very earliest settlers who arrived in Salem Harbor on the ship Arbella", she said. "The Revolutionary War record of Thomas Stearns is a part of the family legacy passed down to me and it is on his record that I joined the DAR," she said.

MRS. FRANCIS McNamara, the former Ruth Martin, says it was by accident in 1955, while driving to Lovel, Maine with her parents Mr and Mrs. Charles Granville (Mabel E. French) Martin to visit relatives that she discovered the key that admitted her to the DAR.

As elderly relatives explained their degree of ancestry she sketched an ancestral chart on the back of an envelope. Intrigued by the anecdotes related by her relatives, she continued to delve into the genealogy and before long the scribblings on the back of the envelope developed into findings that filled a whole roll of shelf paper.

"From that day I was hooked," she said. She bought Oscar Stetson's book titled "The Art of Ancestor Hunting" and traced her ancestry to Andrew French, Jr. Shortly after having been accepted by the DAR in Washington she became a member of the Molly Varnum Chapter.

Turning to her 10-year-old grand-daughter, Meredith Louise Bradstreet Whitaker, who is visiting here from Monte Sereno, Calif., Mrs. McNamara said she plans to share much of the fun of ancestor-hunting with her during her stay.

Meredith Louise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus H. (Carolyn Rand) Whitaker and the direct descendant of Governors Dudley, Wiggin and Bradstreet.

THE LOCAL CHAPTER has 90 members and it meets once a month from September to June. It is committed to observe American History Month in February by sponsoring essay contests on given historic subjects for students in grades five through eight and to recognizing the excellence in the study of American History by awarding DAR certificates of Award and DAR American History medals.

The chapter awards a medal to the top ranking ROTC student at the University of Lowell an annual basis, and it also rewards its Good Citizenship Girls from all the high schools in the Greater-Lowell area.

The chapter, along with all others in the National Society aids St. Mary's School for Indian Girls in Springfield, S.D. and gives scholarships to other Indians who need help. It also contributes to the Tamassee, S.C. DAR School and to Hillside School for boys from broken homes.

Upon request the chapter, will provide American Flags to any institution and it distributes material on patriotism on a regular basis for the purpose of honoring the past, carrying out services in the present and building a firm foundation to safeguard the future.

Officers of the Molly Varnum Chapter include Miss Louise E. Thompson, regent; Mrs. Bert Harless, vice regent; Mrs. William Smith, chaplain; Mrs. George Morse, recording secretary, Miss Helen Butler, corresponding secretary, Mrs Louis A. Biron treasurer and Mrs. Francis McNamara, assistant treasurer.

Miss Pauline F. Varnum is registrar, Mrs Charles Watt, historian, Miss Edith Baldwin, librarian and Mrs Benjamin F. Ashworth, curator.

THE NATIONAL Society for the Daughters of the American Revolution was formed on the efforts of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the president. The group promotes the preservation of documents and relics and the records of individual soldiers in the Revolution.

To be eligible, a woman just be at least 18 and be a descendant of aman or woman who, with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American independence, served as a soldier, sailor of civil officer in one of the several colonies or of someone who rendered material aid to the Revolutionary cause. An applicant must also be found to be personally acceptable to the society.

The National Society owns an entire city block, between C and D Streets, in Washington D.C, including the Memorial Continetal Hall completed in 1910, the Administration Building and Constitution Hall, dedicated in 1929. The buildings are the largest in the world built and financed entirely by a women's organization.

Spalding House is rich in historical treasures

LOWELL — The 216-year-old yellow house at 383 Pawtucket St., is the pride and joy of every member of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American revolution. Known as the Spalding House, it enshrines the hundreds of treasures and memorabilia with which the chapter has been endowed to make it veritable museum of Revolutionary War era mementos.

The Spalding House stands on part of what was an Indian Reservation known as "Great Neck." According to Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller, 79-year-old chapter member who has written and rewritten records pertaining to the chapter and its home, the land was sold by the Wamesit Tribe of Indians to Robert Hildreth who built the house in 1761. He later sold it to Reuben Hamblett who in 1768 sold it to Moses Davis who used it as as inn.

The next owner, Joseph Tyler sold it to Capt. John Ford who kept it for about 13 years and sold it to Andrew Fletcher. In 1790 Nathaniel Ropes of Salem became its owner and he sold it to Joel Spalding who passed it on to his family. After the death of the last member of the family, Mrs. Henry A. Lambert bought the property and graciously invited members of the Molly Varnum chapter to hold their meetings there, later convincing them that they should own the house, because it had belonged to the families of three Revolutionary War soldiers and four other patriots.

Restoration of the house began almost immediately after the chapter purchased it for $3500. It was opened and dedicated Dec. 18, 1906.

FROM THE front door, one steps into the large entrance hall and immediately sees the corner fireplace with its antique hanging kettles, copper teapot, bellows, Hessian Soldier Andirons, powder shell knapsack and water canteens. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns, muskets, swords and a powder horn.

On the walls hand pictures of the Declaration of Independence several of George Washington and an original copy of one of the first War department claims given in 1831 to Joseph David. A private, he was to receive the amount of $76.66 twice a year.

In the corner to the right of the door stands a very old tall grandfather clock. The room has two tables topped with brochures pertaining to the membership and its wide painted floor boards are covered with a bright braided rug.

The front room parlor to the left of the entrance hall is furnished with a horsehair sofa, a Chippendale table with folding legs a very old two-drawer sewing table, an old mahogany secretary, a mahogany card table with lyre centre standard, a Windsor rocking chair, and a Chippendale mirror with brass eagle. It is a mecca of silhouettes, paintings and pictures of the Continental Congress, cupboards of old pitchers, bowls, pewter and china. Commanding the visitor's attention are the old Haskell Family's viol, a brass warming pan, a shell box, hanging lamps, the James G Butrick family bible and a 1839 Lowell Directory to mention but a few.

HIGHLIGHTING the Spalding Room are portraits of the Spalding Family, the old secretary which was in this room when the family lived in the house and the mantel and fireplace with its brass tablet, candlesticks, and lamp enhancements.

Describing the Tap Room, Mrs. George Morse, whose ancestor Moses Davis was innkeeper back in the days when the Tavern which became the Spalding House was the first stop for raftsmen on their river journey to the sea said that on those occasions the rafters rang with laughter, tall stories and gossip.

The Tap Room's old fireplace is filled with Revolutionary relics and its corner cupboard is replete with colonial china treasures. Of special interest in the room is the portrait of Mary Greeley Morrison, a devoted chapter member who left a trust fund for the maintenance and insurance of the house.

Walking into the West Parlor, Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller held everyone's interest as she related her ancestors' accounts of how the ladies of the era congregated and chatted in this room while their men gathered in the Tap Room on stop overs on their journeys to Boston or to points north.

The bracket lamps on the wall are very old and were the original oil lamps from the Reade home on Lakeview Avenue. Among the scores of other itmes of interest are candle snuffers, an egg cooker, an old footstove, fluting irons, candle molds and canes belonging to Gen. Joseph Bradley Varnum and Col. Dimon.

IN THE OLD historic raftered kitchen is the fireplace along side of which is the tiny door with steps leading upward to what was the hiding place of run-away refugees who used this secret passageway to escape to Canada. The cupboard holds the dishes currently used for chapter meetings. The kitchen walls are covered with pictures of Martin Van Buren, George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Dear Abby

Ten tips for wives

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are always so short and to the point. Have you a list of 10 tips for wives to follow if they want a successful marriage?—NEW BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: No. But I'll compose one.

1. Don't keep telling him about all the other men you could have married.

2. Don't bring out the bills at breakfast time.

3. Don't try to start a conversation with him while he's reading or watching a sports event on TV.

4. Don't correct him in front of other people.

5. Don't try to make him jealous.

6. Don't bad-mouth his relatives.

7. Don't put a shirt in his drawer with a button missing.

8. Don't call him at work unless it's absolutely necessary.

9. Don't use his razor.

10. Don't threaten to leave him unless you have a better place to go.

And next week, I'll print my 10 tips for husbands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old woman who was divorced last year after a miserable 20-year marriage. I get $800 a month alimony. I have one daughter who is 19 and away at college.

Three months ago I met a young man at a church singles' meeting and it was love at first sight. He's the most sensitive and charming man I've ever met. He says I'm the only woman he's ever loved, and in bed, on a scale of one to ten, he rates a ten.

He's recently divorced and has a 4-year-old son living with his ex-wife. He moved here from the Midwest and is looking for a job.

Now the problem: He's only 27, but he's very mature for his age and says the age difference doesn't bother him.

He wants to marry me, but if I accept, I'll lose my alimony. I've considered having him move in with me, but it might cost me the respect of my daughter and parents, which means a lot to me. What are your thoughts on this?—IN LOVE

DEAR IN: The age difference may pose problems later on, but I see bigger problems now. Since he's unemployed, moving in with you might be a great move for him, but feeling as you do about your daughter and parents, I don't advise it. If it's love, it will last. Take your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUFFERED A SETBACK": It's no disgrace to slip and fall, but you aren't really a failure unless you say, "Somebody pushed me."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dinosaur "roar" in Boston

BOSTON — A "reasonable facsimile" of the roar of a Tyrannosaurus Rex of 70 million years ago will be heard at Boston's Museum of Science, Science Park, on Wednesday, Aug. 3, the fifth anniversary of the arrival here of the Museum's 20-foot high model of the Age of Reptiles' most fearsome dinosaur.

Also featured will be drawings of the dinosaur sent by its many fans, along with a sneak preview of a scale model "diorama-in-process" showing a Tyrannosaurus attacking an Anatosaurus. The day's first 200 visitors will receive dinosaur games telling how Rex came to arrive at the Museum. The dinosaur roar? It's the call of a bull alligator — the biggest, loudest most likely candidate for a dinosaur stand-in the Museum could find.

Seaweed hikes garden's crops

By PETER TONGE
© Christian Science Monitor

WALDOBORO, MAINE — Robert Morse wanted to harvest only the best of crops from his garden. So he took to harvesting a crop of the sea as well — seaweed. And because it did so much for the fruits and flowers in his own backyard, he now harvests far more than he ever could use himself so that others might benefit, too.

Every day truckloads of seaweed, the most common types seen clinging to the rocks up and down the Maine coast, arrive at Atlantic Laboratories here to be processed into a seaweed powder. The powder is the base for a liquid fertilizer every gardener or farmer can readily make up.

Morse calls his product Sea Crop and it joins Maxicrop (a British-made product that has been available for several years now) and another U.S. line, Sea Power, as the only seaweed concentrates marketed at present.

WHEN NEWLY married Bob Morse planted his first garden a few years back, he asked a neighbor, with better than six decades of gardening experience behind him, what made his yard so productive. "Seaweed," was the terse reply — so Morse went mossing.

He quickly found what coastal farmers have known for centuries, that seaweed added to the soil boosts production. Research at the Norwegian Seaweed Institute, the Scottish Institute of Seaweed Research, and here in the U.S. at Clemson and Rutgers Universities, all show that seaweed benefits plants in a multiplicity of ways: it stimulates growth, improves both taste and keeping qualities of fruits and vegetables, improves soil structure, and stimulates the activity of beneficial soil organisms.

Tests also show — though the exact reasons are still to be fully understood — that seaweed checks pests and other problems in crops, increases frost resistance in plants, and revives plants stressed by heat, cold, or thirst.

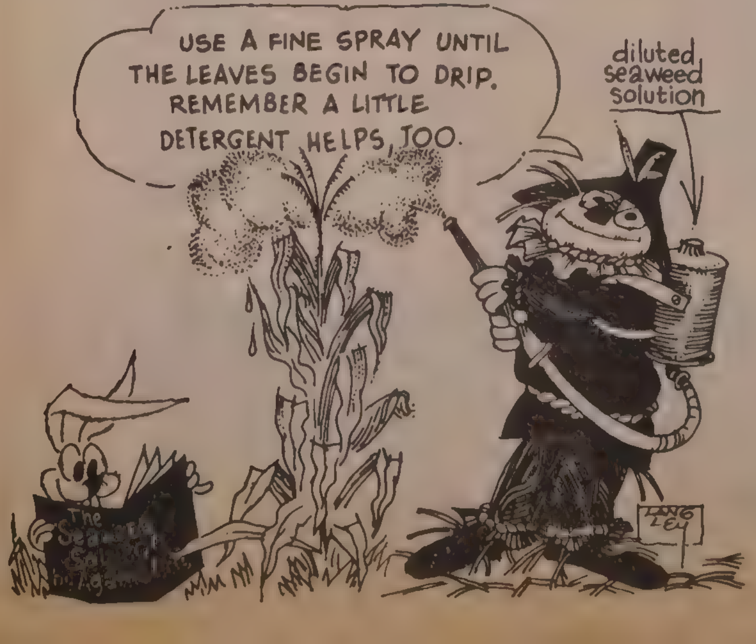
SEAWEED, nourished by the sea, contains some 60 minerals, many of them trace elements, beneficial to plants. But it is not the complete fertilizer, being short of phosphates. Composting it with chicken or rabbit manure is said to produce an ideal plant food.

While seaweed applied directly to the soil is good, it is as a liquid foliar fertilizer that it is most beneficial. Seaweed extract, in fact, has been found to be eight times more effective when sprayed on leaves of the growing plants than when applied directly to the soil.

It is best to apply the seaweed solution in a fine spray, until enough of the solution has gathered on the leaves so that it begins to run off. Apply the solution preferably in the morning' when plant energy is at its peak, or in the late afternoon. It also helps to add a biodegradable detergent (one-quarter teaspoon to the gallon) to the solution. As a wetting agent the detergent helps leaves and seeds absorb the solution more freely.

WHILE SEAWEED concentrate might seem expensive, it is diluted so that a little goes a long way. One small bottle should last an average home an entire season. A once- or twice-a-month spraying is all that is necessary. The solution also can be used to pre-soak seeds, as a rooting solution, and when transplanting takes place.

Another advantage of seaweed concentrate is that it can be mixed in with any other spray you might wish to use.



USE A FINE SPRAY UNTIL THE LEAVES BEGIN TO DRIP. REMEMBER A LITTLE DETERGENT HELPS, TOO.

How to check your home for safety

By RODGER DEAN DUNCAN
© Christian Science Monitor

"Safe at home" is more than the call of a baseball umpire. It signifies the security we can feel in our homes or apartments when we follow even the most basic do-it-yourself safety inspection.

The following checklist, developed from materials furnished by the National Safety Council and other sources, is designed to help you make a room-by-room safety check around your home. It may not be all-inclusive, but should help you reexamine your home with safety in mind. Answer each query Yes (safe) or No (unsafe) to rate your home.

LIVING ROOM, BEDROOM

1. Is there a spark screen in front of the fireplace?
2. Have you allowed sufficient ventilation space around your TV set?
3. Do small ruqs have nonskid backing or are they tacked down?
4. Are the walking lanes kept free of low furniture (foot stools, magazine racks, etc.)?
5. Do all your appliances, including electric blankets, bear the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) seal for electrical safety?
6. Do you avoid running electrical cords under rugs or furniture where they may become frayed?
7. Are the beds within easy reach of lamps or light switches?
8. If you hang pictures or other items over your bed, are you sure they're anchored firmly to the wall?
9. Is your home equipped with smoke alarms?

KITCHEN

1. Do you immediately wipe up water and grease spills from the floor?
2. Are pots and pans placed correctly on the stove, with handles parallel to the range front so they won't snag on clothing?
3. Do you use nonskid wax on your floors?
4. Is your gas oven equipped with a device that automatically cuts off the gas if the pilot light goes off?
5. Do you always light a match before turning on the gas?
6. Do you keep cabinet doors and drawers shut to prevent bumping into them?
7. Do you use a sturdy stool or ladder instead of a wobbly chair to reach high shelves?
8. Do you keep a dry chemical fire extinguisher handy (baking soda or salt will put out small grease fires)?
9. Do you keep sharp knives on a rack where children cannot reach them?
10. Are insecticides and cleaning compounds stored separately from food items, preferably in a locked cabinet?

BATHROOM

1. Do you use suction-type mats or nonskid adhesive strips in your tub or shower?
2. Have you installed sturdy safety grab bars on the wall next to the tub?
3. If your shower has a door instead of a curtain, is it made of shatterproof glass or plastic?
4. Do you avoid using electrical appliances such as hair dryers, heaters, and radios in the bathroom?
5. If you have young children, do you make sure the bathroom door can be easily opened from the outside?
6. Do you avoid leaving an infant or toddler alone in the tub?

LAUNDRY ROOM

1. Are your washer and dryer grounded to avoid electrical shock?
2. Do you avoid carrying loads of clothes so large you can't see where you're going?
3. Is your ironing board rigid and well balanced?
4. Does your ironing board have a noncombustible cover?
5. Do you rest the iron on a metal stand or on its heel?
6. When you've finished using an iron, do you unplug it and place it far enough from the board that a young child can't pull it down?
7. Do you keep aerosol containers away from sources of heat?

Matches

...should be lit before, not after, turning on the gas. It is just one of several safety hints for the home.

STAIRWAYS

1. Are the stairways adequately lighted, with switches at both the top and bottom of the stairs?
2. Are toys and other objects kept off the stairs?
3. If you have small children, are the stairs blocked by gates at both the top and bottom?
4. Do you avoid carrying large packages up or down stairs?
5. Do you use the bannisters while going up or down stairs?
6. Do you keep stairway runners, railings, treads, and carpeting in good repair?

BASEMENT

1. Do you know where the main water and gas valves are and how to close them?
2. Have you labeled fuses or circut breakers to identify the outlets and fixtures they protect?
3. If a fuse blows, do you unplug the appliance that caused the trouble and pull the main electrical switch before you replace the burned-out fuse?
4. Do you avoid using the basement as a storage area for old newspapers and other flammable odds and ends?
5. Do you keep paint solvents in tightly closed metal containers, well away from the furnace, water heater, and other sources of heat?
6. When you're not using power tools, do you always disconnect them and keep them out of reach of small children?
7. Do you avoid using power tools while standing on a wet surface or even when your hands are perspiring?
8. Is your workshop well ventilated, well lighted, and equipped with a dry-powder, carbon dioxide, or all-purpose fire extinguisher?

Your bathroom can be exciting

By CAROLE EICHEN
Copley News Service

Who says the interior design of your bathroom can't be as exciting as your living room or den?

Bathrooms need as much decorating help as any room of your apartment, yet undertaking a complete remodeling is often out of the question.

Instead, size up your apartment bathroom and determine what look you wish to give it. Should it be a departure from the decor theme used throughout or should it blend with an overall scheme?

Frankly, I think the bathroom should stand out and have its own image.

For example, if your living room is contemporary with white or bright colors and modern furniture, warm up the bathroom with hardboard wall paneling. A paneled bath, especially in a condominium, is practical and easy to work with and has a rustic charm.

TO GIVE IT an extra "woodsy," yet custom touch, eliminate the shower curtain and mount standard window shutters on tracks with louvers sloped inward. Varnish the shutters and keep them waxed and oiled. You'll have little difficulty with watermarks from a splashing shower.

Finally, carry the theme another step by putting shutters at each end of the bathroom mirror over the glass.

This novel treatment gives further depth to the room, does not swallow light and gives you the feeling you are tucked away at a mountain retreat.

A less-expensive, but equally dramatic, treatment more suitable for apartments is achieved by painting the walls a single eye-catching color and using that same color as an accent shade for the normal bathroom accessories. For instance, a rich emerald green on the walls is not your normal bathroom color. That's what makes it so striking. Find a window shade with that same color in the pattern and see if there is a matching shower curtain.

NATURALLY, you'll have to shop around to find emerald green and white towels, but the search is well worth it. But don't stop there.

Green soaps, small bottles with green liquids, green finger towels and green plants can turn your bathroom into a rich rain forest.

When you think wallpaper for a bathroom, let your imagination wander. Avoid the section in the wallpaper store which is designated "kitchens and baths." Instead, choose a bold, colorful vinyl wallpaper and combine it with a shower curtain of a matching fabric. In one easy stroke, your whole bath has a coordinated decor.

Want to be a little daring? Add mirror on one wall from floor to ceiling then stand back and watch the bathroom magically expand. It will capture the image and bounce it around the room, but even more important, the bathroom becomes lighter and brighter.

PLUS, YOU can give that mirrored bathroom even more impact by using a small-scaled geometric pattern or patterned wallpaper in several shades of blue. Then combine it with thick, solid blue towels and either a blue bath mat or, better yet, deep-pile, solid blue carpeting.

The message here is obvious: no longer does the bathroom have to be the Cinderella of your apartment. Imagination is the magic wand.

Brownstones head old-home revival

By GEORGE MONEYHUN
© Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, N.Y. — A Cindrella-like rags-to-riches transformation of brownstones is under way in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, and Chicago.

Once-elegant turn-of-the-century brownstone and row houses, survivors of the big-city exodus and neglect after World War II, and the urban renewal bulldozers of the 1960s, could become the wave of the future for many older U.S. cities, some housing experts say.

The movement of middle-class familie's back into older city homes began quietly on a small scale 10 years ago and has gradually and continually gained momentum. The energy crisis and soaring costs of suburban housing have helped make these well-built, sometimes ornate old homes an attractive alternative, particularly to growing numbers of younger professionals happy to forego the long commute to the suburbs.

REVIVAL OF two or three brownstones on a single block in a badly deteriorated area has sparked the rebirth of entire neighborhoods. Community organizations such as the Brooklyn Brownstone Conference, a coalition of 16 community volunteer groups dedicated to neighborhood revival, have sprung up to help foster these Cinderella changes.

"The children of the people who fled the cities 20 years ago are coming back," says Everett Ortner, president of Back to the City, Inc., representing neighborhood groups in cities across the U.S. "It isn't just brownstones," he stresses. "There is increasing interest in old houses as old houses."

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1976 is providing further impetus by offering funds for cities to use in preserving older structures of possible historical value.

"ALMOST every day you find a new neighborhood being revived. It's catching, and people have a good feeling of community and belonging. It's like the small town I grew up in in Vermont," explains Nat Hendericks, president of the Brooklyn Brownstone Conference and one of Brooklyn's pioneers of the brownstone revival.

Dear Abby

Ten tips for wives

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are always so short and to the point. Have you a list of 10 tips for wives to follow if they want a successful marriage?—NEW BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: No. But I'll compose one.

1. Don't keep telling him about all the other men you could have married.

2. Don't bring out the bills at breakfast time.

3. Don't try to start a conversation with him while he's reading or watching a sports event on TV.

4. Don't correct him in front of other people.

5. Don't try to make him jealous.

6. Don't bad-mouth his relatives.

7. Don't put a shirt in his drawer with a button missing.

8. Don't call him at work unless it's absolutely necessary.

9. Don't use his razor.

10. Don't threaten to leave him unless you have a better place to go.

And next week, I'll print my 10 tips for husbands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old woman who was divorced last year after a miserable 20-year marriage. I get $800 a month alimony. I have one daughter who is 19 and away at college.

Three months ago I met a young man at a church singles' meeting and it was love at first sight. He's the most sensitive and charming man I've ever met. He says I'm the only woman he's ever loved, and in bed, on a scale of one to ten, he rates a ten.

He's recently divorced and has a 4-year-old son living with his ex-wife. He moved here from the Midwest and is looking for a job.

Now the problem. He's only 27, but he's very mature for his age and says the age difference doesn't bother him.

He wants to marry me, but if I accept, I'll lose my alimony. I've considered having him move in with me, but it might cost me the respect of my daughter and parents, which means a lot to me. What are your thoughts on this?—IN LOVE

DEAR IN: The age difference may pose problems later on, but I see bigger problems now. Since he's unemployed, moving in with you might be a great move for him, but feeling as you do about your daughter and parents, I don't advise it. If it's love, it will last. Take your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUFFERED A SETBACK": It's no disgrace to slip and fall, but you aren't really a failure unless you say, "Somebody pushed me."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dinosaur "roar" in Boston

BOSTON — A "reasonable facsimile" of the roar of a Tyrannosaurus Rex of 70 million years ago will be heard at Boston's Museum of Science, Science Park, on Wednesday, Aug. 3, the fifth anniversary of the arrival here of the Museum's 20-foot high model of the Age of Reptiles' most fearsome dinosaur.

Also featured will be drawings of the dinosaur sent by its many fans, along with a sneak preview of a scale model "diorama-in-process" showing a Tyrannosaurus attacking an Anatosaurus. The day's first 200 visitors will receive dinosaur games telling how Rex came to arrive at the Museum. (The "Dinosaur roar"? It's the call of a bull alligator — the biggest, loudest most likely candidate for a dinosaur stand-in the Museum could find.)

Seaweed hikes garden's crops

By PETER TONGE
© Christian Science Monitor

WALDOBORO, MAINE — Robert Morse wanted to harvest only the best of crops from his garden. So he took to harvesting a crop of the sea as well — seaweed. And because it did so much for the fruits and flowers in his own backyard, he now harvests far more than he ever could use himself so that others might benefit, too.

Every day truckloads of seaweed, the most common types seen clinging to the rocks up and down the Maine coast, arrive at Atlantic Laboratories here to be processed into a seaweed powder. The powder is the base for a liquid fertilizer every gardener or farmer can readily make up.

Morse calls his product Sea Crop and it joins Maxicrop (a British-made product that has been available for several years now) and another U.S. line, Sea Power, as the only seaweed concentrates marketed at present.

WHEN NEWLY married Bob Morse planted his first garden a few years back, he asked a neighbor, with better than six decades of gardening experience behind him, what made his yard so productive. "Seaweed," was the terse reply — so Morse went mossing.

He quickly found what coastal farmers have known for centuries, that seaweed added to the soil boosts production. Research at the Norwegian Seaweed Institute, the Scottish Institute of Seaweed Research, and here in the U.S. at Clemson and Rutgers Universities, all show that seaweed benefits plants in a multiplicity of ways: it stimulates growth, improves both taste and keeping qualities of fruits and vegetables, improves soil structure, and stimulates the activity of beneficial soil organisms.

Tests also show — though the exact reasons are still to be fully understood — that seaweed checks pests and other problems in crops, increases frost resistance in plants, and revives plants stressed by heat, cold, or thirst.

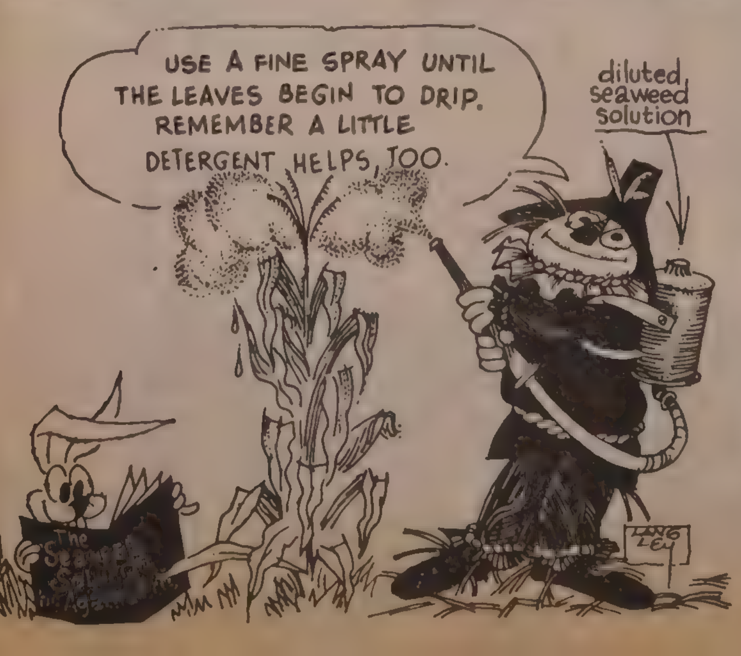
SEAWEED, nourished by the sea, contains some 60 minerals, many of them trace elements, beneficial to plants. But it is not the complete fertilizer, being short of phosphates. Composting it with chicken or rabbit manure is said to produce an ideal plant food.

While seaweed applied directly to the soil is good, it is as a liquid foliar fertilizer that it is most beneficial. Seaweed extract, in fact, has been found to be eight times more effective when sprayed on leaves of the growing plants than when applied directly to the soil.

It is best to apply the seaweed solution in a fine spray, until enough of the solution has gathered on the leaves so that it begins to run off. Apply the solution preferably in the morning' when plant energy is at its peak, or in the late afternoon. It also helps to add a biodegradable detergent (one-quarter teaspoon to the gallon) to the solution. As a wetting agent the detergent helps leaves and seeds absorb the solution more freely.

WHILE SEAWEED concentrate might seem expensive, it is diluted so that a little goes a long way. One small bottle should last an average home an entire season. A once- or twice-a-month spraying is all that is necessary. The solution also can be used to pre-soak seeds, as a rooting solution, and when transplanting takes place.

Another advantage of seaweed concentrate is that it can be mixed in with any other spray you might wish to use.



USE A FINE SPRAY UNTIL THE LEAVES BEGIN TO DRIP. REMEMBER A LITTLE DETERGENT HELPS TOO.

How to check your home for safety

By RODGER DEAN DUNCAN
© Christian Science Monitor

"Safe at home" is more than the call of a baseball umpire. It signifies the security we can feel in our homes or apartments when we follow even the most basic do-it-yourself safety inspection.

The following checklist, developed from materials furnished by the National Safety Council and other sources, is designed to help you make a room-by-room safety check around your home. It may not be all-inclusive, but should help you reexamine your home with safety in mind. Answer each query Yes (safe) or No (unsafe) to rate your home.

LIVING ROOM, BEDROOM

1. Is there a spark screen in front of the fireplace?
2. Have you allowed sufficient ventilation space around your TV set?
3. Do small ruqs have nonskid backing or are they tacked down?
4. Are the walking lanes kept free of low furniture (foot stools, magazine racks, etc.)?
5. Do all your appliances, including electric blankets, bear the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) seal for electrical safety?
6. Do you avoid running electrical cords under rugs or furniture where they may become frayed?
7. Are the beds within easy reach of lamps or light switches?
8. If you hang pictures or other items over your bed, are you sure they're anchored firmly to the wall?
9. Is your home equipped with smoke alarms?

KITCHEN

1. Do you immediately wipe up water and grease spills from the floor?
2. Are pots and pans placed correctly on the stove, with handles parallel to the range front so they won't snag on clothing?
3. Do you use nonskid wax on your floors?
4. Is your gas oven equipped with a device that automatically cuts off the gas if the pilot light goes off?
5. Do you always light a match before turning on the gas?
6. Do you keep cabinet doors and drawers shut to prevent bumping into them?
7. Do you use a sturdy stool or ladder instead of a wobbly chair to reach high shelves?
8. Do you keep a dry chemical fire extinguisher handy (baking soda or salt will put out small grease fires)?
9. Do you keep sharp knives on a rack where children cannot reach them?
10. Are insecticides and cleaning compounds stored separately from food items, preferably in a locked cabinet?

BATHROOM

1. Do you use suction-type mats or nonskid adhesive strips in your tub or shower?
2. Have you installed sturdy safety grab bars on the wall next to the tub?
3. If your shower has a door instead of a curtain, is it made of shatterproof glass or plastic?
4. Do you avoid using electrical appliances such as hair dryers, heaters, and radios in the bathroom?
5. If you have young children, do you make sure the bathroom door can be easily opened from the outside?
6. Do you avoid leaving an infant or toddler alone in the tub?

LAUNDRY ROOM

1. Are your washer and dryer grounded to avoid electrical shock?
2. Do you avoid carrying loads of clothes so large you can't see where you're going?
3. Is your ironing board rigid and well balanced?
4. Does your ironing board have a noncombustible cover?
5. Do you rest the iron on a metal stand or on its heel?
6. When you've finished using an iron, do you unplug it and place it far enough from the board that a young child can't pull it down?
7. Do you keep aerosol containers away from sources of heat?

STAIRWAYS

1. Are the stairways adequately lighted, with switches at both the top and bottom of the stairs?
2. Are toys and other objects kept off the stairs?
3. If you have small children, are the stairs blocked by gates at both the top and bottom?
4. Do you avoid carrying large packages up or down stairs?
5. Do you use the bannisters while going up or down stairs?
6. Do you keep stairway runners, railings, treads, and carpeting in good repair?

BASEMENT

1. Do you know where the main water and gas valves are and how to close them?
2. Have you labeled fuses or circut breakers to identify the outlets and fixtures they protect?
3. If a fuse blows, do you unplug the appliance that caused the trouble and pull the main electrical switch before you replace the burned-out fuse?
4. Do you avoid using the basement as a storage area for old newspapers and other flammable odds and ends?
5. Do you keep paint solvents in tightly closed metal containers, well away from the furnace, water heater, and other sources of heat?
6. When you're not using power tools, do you always disconnect them and keep them out of reach of small children?
7. Do you avoid using power tools while standing on a wet surface or even when your hands are perspiring?
8. Is your workshop well ventilated, well lighted, and equipped with a dry-powder, carbon dioxide, or all-purpose fire extinguisher?

...should be lit before, not after, turning on the gas. It is just one of several safety hints for the home.

Your bathroom can be exciting

By CAROLE EICHEN
Copley News Service

Who says the interior design of your bathroom can't be as exciting as your living room or den?

Bathrooms need as much decorating help as any room of your apartment, yet undertaking a complete remodeling is often out of the question.

Instead, size up your apartment bathroom and determine what look you wish to give it. Should it be a departure from the decor theme used throughout or should it blend with an overall scheme?

Frankly, I think the bathroom should stand out and have its own image.

For example, if your living room is contemporary with white or bright colors and modern furniture, warm up the bathroom with hardboard wall paneling. A paneled bath, especially in a condominium, is practical and easy to work with and has a rustic charm.

TO GIVE IT an extra "woodsy," yet custom touch, eliminate the shower curtain and mount standard window shutters on tracks with louvers sloped inward. Varnish the shutters and keep them waxed and oiled. You'll have little difficulty with watermarks from a splashing shower.

Finally, carry the theme another step by putting shutters at each end of the bathroom mirror over the glass.

This novel treatment gives further depth to the room, does not swallow light and gives you the feeling you are tucked away at a mountain retreat.

A less-expensive, but equally dramatic, treatment more suitable for apartments is achieved by painting the walls a single eye-catching color and using that same color as an accent shade for the normal bathroom accessories. For instance, a rich emerald green on the walls is not your normal bathroom color. That's what makes it so striking. Find a window shade with that same color in the pattern and see if there is a matching shower curtain.

NATURALLY, you'll have to shop around to find emerald green and white towels, but the search is well worth it. But don't stop there.

Green soaps, small bottles with green liquids, green finger towels and green plants can turn your bathroom into a rich rain forest.

When you think wallpaper for a bathroom, let your imagination wander. Avoid the section in the wallpaper store which is designated "kitchens and baths." Instead, choose a bold, colorful vinyl wallpaper and combine it with a shower curtain of a matching fabric. In one easy stroke, your whole bath has a coordinated decor.

Want to be a little daring? Add mirror on one wall from floor to ceiling then stand back and watch the bathroom magically expand. It will capture the image and bounce it around the room, but even more important, the bathroom becomes lighter and brighter.

PLUS, YOU can give that mirrored bathroom even more impact by using a small-scaled geometric pattern or patterned wallpaper in several shades of blue. Then combine it with thick, solid blue towels and either a blue bath mat or, better yet, deep-pile, solid blue carpeting.

The message here is obvious: no longer does the bathroom have to be the Cinderella of your apartment. Imagination is the magic wand.

Brownstones head old-home revival

By GEORGE MONEYHUN
© Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, N.Y. — A Cindrella-like rags-to-riches transformation of brownstones is under way in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, and Chicago.

Once-elegant turn-of-the-century brownstone and row houses, survivors of the big-city exodus and neglect after World War II, and the urban renewal bulldozers of the 1960s, could become the wave of the future for many older U.S. cities, some housing experts say.

The movement of middle-class families back into older city homes began quietly on a small scale 10 years ago and has gradually and continually gained momentum. The energy crisis and soaring costs of suburban housing have helped make these well-built, sometimes ornate old homes an attractive alternative, particularly to growing numbers of younger professionals happy to forego the long commute to the suburbs.

REVIVAL OF two or three brownstones on a single block in a badly deteriorated area has sparked the rebirth of entire neighborhoods. Community organizations such as the Brooklyn Brownstone Conference, a coalition of 16 community volunteer groups dedicated to neighborhood revival, have sprung up to help foster these Cinderella changes.

"The children of the people who fled the cities 20 years ago are coming back," says Everett Ortner, president of Back to the City, Inc., representing neighborhood groups in cities across the U.S. "It isn't just brownstones," he stresses. "There is increasing interest in old houses as old houses."

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1976 is providing further impetus by offering funds for cities to use in preserving older structures of possible historical value.

"ALMOST every day you find a new neighborhood being revived. It's catching, and people have a good feeling of community and belonging. It's like the small town I grew up in in Vermont," explains Nat Hendericks, president of the Brooklyn Brownstone Conference and one of Brooklyn's pioneers of the brownstone revival.

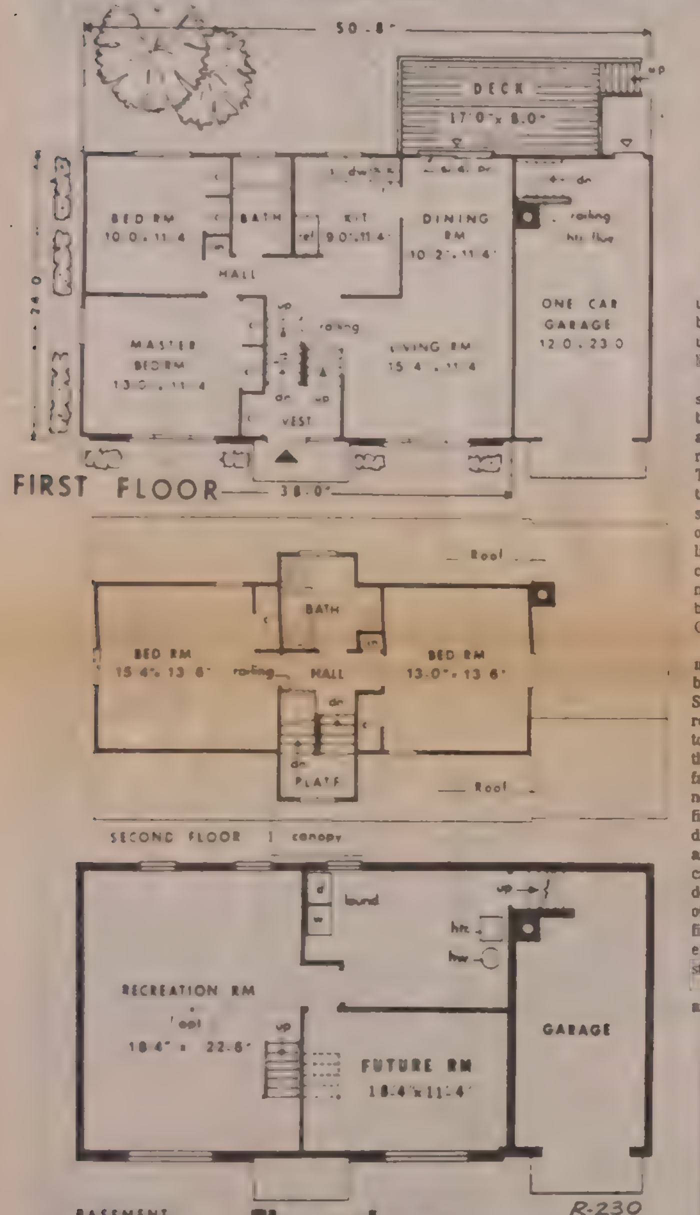
Distinctive entry

The facade of this unusual house mostly is brick, with two large areas on both sides of its entry. There is a bold canopy over front door, which canopy also is tucked between bricks for weather protection. Rest of exterior is narrow wood siding.



Floor plans

With good circulation pattern, first floor effectively can handle living needs of family requiring only two bedrooms. Second floor's two bedrooms and bathroom may be finished later as and if needed.

House can be expanded —upward or downward

By ANDY LANG

Expansion can take place upwards or downwards—or both ways—in this somewhat unusual and very interesting house.

It's a one and one-half story structure that utilizes space to the fullest extent horizontally and vertically from the roof ridge to the basement floor. This is accomplished by raising the house out of the ground sufficiently to turn a large part of the basement into a practical living area. The second floor is completely within the roof, a matter of planning that goes back to the Cape Cod houses of Colonial days.

By using the comparatively inexpensive space above and below the main level, architect Samuel Paul has been able to reduce the first floor living area to a convenient minimum, in this case only 912 square feet. A family requiring two bedrooms need have only the main level finished, with a living room, dining room, kitchen, bathroom and both bedrooms. Expansion can later occur upwards or downwards as the requirements of the family dictate. The finishing thus will not involve expensive exterior construction.

The main floor revolves around a central stairway. You enter into a vestibule, five steps below the first floor level, with a large coat closet. Once up these few steps, you are in a central foyer leading to all rooms.

To the right is the living room which ells into the dining room with an entrance to a large deck. The dimension of the living and dining rooms from front to back is about 23' 4". A further impression of space is given by the sliding glass doors leading to the deck. Also off this central hall and straight ahead is the kitchen with its complete equipment and cabinets arranged in an ell. To the left of the central hall are the two bedrooms and bathroom. Each of the bedrooms has two closets. In the bedroom hall, kept to a minimum, is a linen closet. The central stair continues to the second floor which is wholly within the roof structure and contains two bedrooms and a bathroom.

From the vestibule, the lower floor level can be reached by going down seven steps. This level is laid out for a large recreation room with space for hobby rooms or even another bedroom. It also contains space for the laundry, furnace, hot water heater and storage.

Statistics

Design R-230 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, a bathroom and a vestibule on the main floor, totaling 912 square feet. There are two bedrooms and a bathroom on the upper floor, totaling 586 square feet. The architect has shown how the lower level can be finished to include a large recreation room, a second room and a place for utility equipment and laundry appliances. There is a one-car garage. A deck is off the dining room and accessible through sliding glass doors. The over-all dimensions of 50' 8" by 24' include the garage.

AP Newsfeatures

Q. — A few years ago I painted the galvanized gutters around our house. They have been peeling for some time, but I neglected them until now. Will I have to remove all the old paint before repainting and is there any particular kind of paint to use to prevent them from peeling again?

A. — Remove as much of the old paint as possible with a hand wire brush or, if you are very careful, a rotary wire brush on your portable electric drill. Wear goggles to protect your eyes from flying chips of paint. One of the ways to prevent peeling in the future is to apply a coat of acrylic latex primer and then a coat of acrylic latex paint designed for metal, although once the primer is on, you might even use the same type of house paint.

Q. — I have sometimes seen a wood grain effect on a surface that has been painted. How is this obtained? I would like to try it soon.

A. — For many years, wood graining was achieved with the use of such things as sponges and special cloths. Today, your best bet is to purchase one of the wood graining kits, which include everything necessary to get the proper result. Be alerted, however, to the voice of experience. Don't try graining on anything important until you have practiced considerably on scrap wood.

Q. — I have some lacquer thinner left over from a job I did a couple of years ago. Can I use it as a thinner for an oil paint?

A. — Absolutely no!

Emigration of Syrian Jewish women approved

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN
© New York Times

WASHINGTON — Climaxing months of secret discussions, including a personal plea from President Carter, President Hafez Al-Assad of Syria has approved an unusual plan that allows Syrian Jewish women to emigrate to the United States after marrying, by proxy, American Jews they have never met.

In what was regarded here as a public gesture to the United States, Assad gave his consent for the marriage by proxy on July 19 in Damascus of 12 Syrian women to men from Brooklyn's Syrian Jewish community. Two other women were married in person to Americans, one from Brooklyn and one from Baltimore, who had traveled to Syria to look for brides.

THE MATTER of the Syrian women has been of personal concern to Carter, White House officials said Saturday. They said Assad was being "very magnamimous" in his action.

There is hope and expectation here that Syrian authorities will allow more of the 500 unmarried Syrian Jewish women to leave in the same way, but there is no formal commitment from Assad.

The problem of the 500 unmarried Syrian women is hardly one of the most crucial for the United States, but it has surprisingly become a focus of attention, involving many official and nonofficial Americans, and dozens of Syrian authorities, including Assad himself.

Because the emigration process has just begun, those concerned were reluctant to provide full details of the discussions for fear that publicity might harm the chances of the other Syrian Jewish women to emigrate. The women who were married July 19 are expected to arrive in New York next week.

THE FIRST public word of the Syrian decision to go along with the unique proxy plan was an article in a Beirut newspaper last Monday reporting on the proxy marriages attended by more than 500 people in a small synagogue in Damascus. Since it was presumed here that Syrian authorities had sanctioned that release of information, some participants in the discussions were willing to talk.

At present, there are said to be 5,100 Jews living in Syria, primarily in Damascus, Aleppo, and a small town called Kinishili. This is the largest group of Jews living in an Arab state, a remnant of the 45,000 that lived in Syria prior to Israel's creation in 1948.

In recent years, they have lived in difficult circumstances, with discriminatory rules barring their ability to travel within or outside the country and to sell property. Assad in January, however, eased the rules but still refused to allow the community as a whole to leave, for fear the Jews would go to Israel.

Last December, Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., whose district encompasses the Ocean Parkway area, where some 25,000 Jews of Syrian background live — the largest such community in the world — visited Damascus and met with leaders of the Jewish community and with Syrian authorities.

In an interview, Solarz said "the single most major concern" expressed to him by Syrian Jews was the fate of the 500 unmarried women, who were believed unlikely to find husbands in Syria's Jewish community and who would not be permitted to assimilate into Syrian society.

He said he was told by Syrian Jews that most single men had been able to leave Syria or were unwilling to get married because they wanted to be able to leave at short notice.

THE REQUEST from the Syrian Jewish community was that the women be permitted somehow to emigrate to the United States, preferably to the Ocean Parkway area in Brooklyn where there was a familiar culture and milieu.

When Solarz raised the matter with Syrian foreign ministry officials, he said they told him that they "were not unsympathetic to the humanitarian concerns about which I had spoken."

When he returned to the United States, Solarz said he contacted Stephen Shalom, a leader in the Syrian Jewish Community in New York, who was raised in Ocean Parkway area.

Shalom, an investment banker, said in an interview that local synagogues and groups expressed interest in helping the Syrian Jewish women.

In March, Shalom went to Syria and met with leaders of the Jewish community there, including Selim Totah, who heads the Damascus community.

He was given a list of the 500 women, with a brief description of the background of each — most of whom spoke only Arabic and some French, only a few knew English.

Syrian authorities first suggested that the Americans come to Syria, find brides, get married and go back with them to the United States. This was viewed as not practical by the Americans.

Meanwhile, in February, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance made a trip to the Middle East, including a stop in Damascus where he had a talk with Assad. The matter of the women, according to reliable sources, was raised in that discussion, and Assad was not discouraging.

In May, Carter was due to meet with Assad in Geneva as part of his Middle East diplomatic efforts. In advance of that visit, Solarz contacted Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security affairs adviser, who was a former teacher of his at Columbia, and Brzezinski arranged for Solarz to meet with the President.

As a result, during the meeting with Assad in Geneva on May 9, Carter raised the matter of the unmarried women with him directly, according to administration officials, and that Assad, after some initial hesitation, was "very magnanimous."

In Brooklyn, Shalom and other local leaders began seeking volunteers to send marriage proposals to the 12 women as a start, about 30 more proposals are being prepared.

Women's liberation tough on Russian men

MOSCOW (AP) — The liberation of Russian women is proving to be difficult for some men, who feel like failures around their successful wives, a Soviet journal says.

More than half the Soviet Union's workers now are women. As women take responsible jobs and sometimes earn more than their husbands, "some men begin to develop a guilt complex, to think they are failures," a commentator said in a recent issue of the weekly Nedelya.

SOME SOCIAL theorists suggest men should do more housework and child rearing. But Nedelya said men are not cut out for such work.

A survey quoted by Nedelya indicated 73 per cent of men contacted in Leningrad recognized the financial necessity of having their wives work, but two-thirds would have preferred the women to stay home.

THE GROWING role of women in society is creating other problems.

With men unwilling to take over household chores, women are working harder than ever — spending an average of four or five hours on housework and child care each day in addition to as much as eight hours on the job, according to published figures.

Women's increased responsibilities and a serious shortage of living space also have helped cause a trend toward smaller families at a time when the Soviet Union is trying to boost its birthrate.

Meanwhile, Soviet men complain liberated women are losing their femininity.

A recent article in the Literary Gazette collected some of these complaints. As the review put it, "Men are getting fed up with crude women who have the manners of cowboys."

Distinctive entry

The facade of this unusual house mostly is brick, with two large areas on both sides of its entry. There is a bold canopy over front door, which canopy also is tucked between bricks for weather protection. Rest of exterior is narrow wood siding.

House can be expanded —upward or downward

By ANDY LANG

Expansion can take place upwards or downwards—or both ways—in this somewhat unusual and very interesting house.

It's a one and one-half story structure that utilizes space to the fullest extent horizontally and vertically from the roof ridge to the basement floor. This is accomplished by raising the house out of the ground sufficiently to turn a large part of the basement into a practical living area. The second floor is completely within the roof, a matter of planning that goes back to the Cape Cod houses of Colonial days.

By using the comparatively inexpensive space above and below the main level, architect Samuel Paul has been able to reduce the first floor living area to a convenient minimum, in this case only 912 square feet. A family requiring two bedrooms need have only the main level finished, with a living room, dining room, kitchen, bathroom and both bedrooms. Expansion can later occur upwards or downwards as the requirements of the family dictate. The finishing thus will not involve expensive exterior construction.

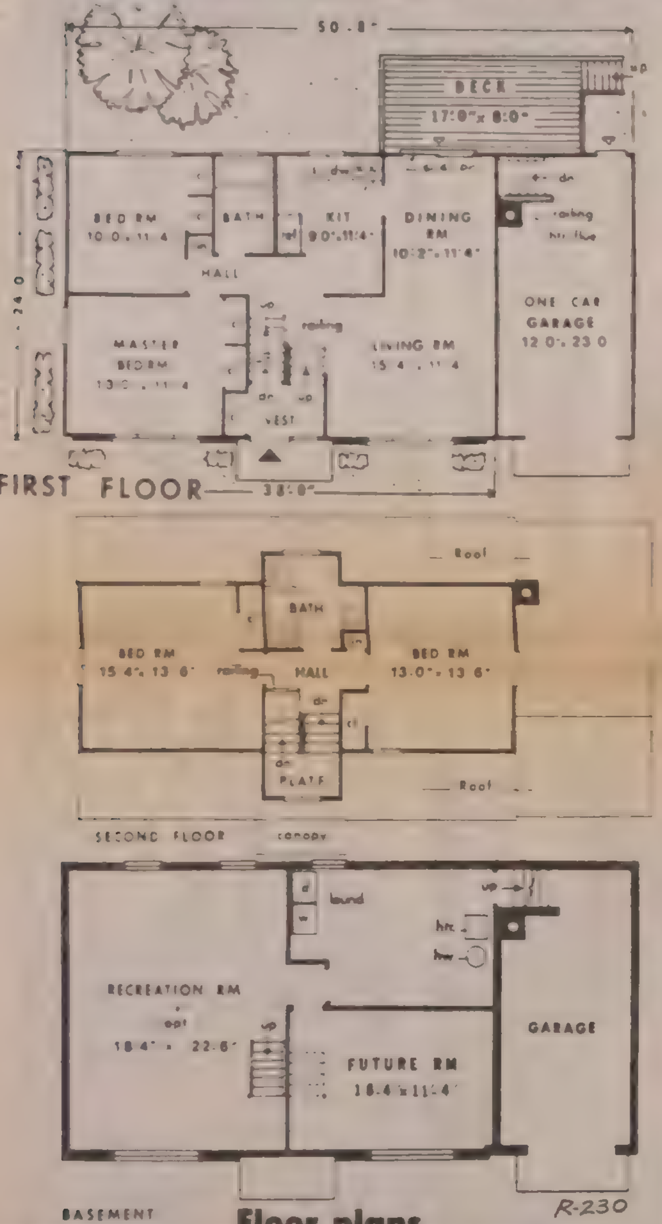
The main floor revolves around a central stairway. You enter into a vestibule, five steps below the first floor level, with a large coat closet. Once up these few steps, you are in a central foyer leading to all rooms.

To the right is the living room which ells into the dining room with an entrance to a large deck. The dimension of the living and dining rooms from front to back is about 23' 4". A further impression of space is given by the sliding glass doors leading to the deck. Also off this central hall and straight ahead is the kitchen with its complete equipment and cabinets arranged in an ell. To the left of the central hall are the two bedrooms and bathroom. Each of the bedrooms has two closets. In the bedroom hall, kept to a minimum, is a linen closet. The central stair continues to the second floor which is wholly within the roof structure and contains two bedrooms and a bathroom.

From the vestibule, the lower floor level can be reached by going down seven steps. This level is laid out for a large recreation room with space for hobby rooms or even another bedroom. It also contains space for the laundry, furnace, hot water heater and storage.

Statistics

Design R-230 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, a bathroom and a vestibule on the main floor, totaling 912 square feet. There are two bedrooms and a bathroom on the upper floor, totaling 586 square feet. The architect has shown how the lower level can be finished to include a large recreation room, a second room and a place for utility equipment and laundry appliances. There is a one-car garage. A deck is off the dining room and accessible through sliding glass doors. The over-all dimensions of 50' 8" by 24' include the garage.



Floor plans

With good circulation pattern first floor effectively can handle living needs of family requiring only two bedrooms. Second floor's two bedrooms and bathroom may be finished later as and if needed.

Q. — A few years ago I painted the galvanized gutters around our house. They have been peeling for some time, but I neglected them until now. Will I have to remove all the old paint before repainting and is there any particular kind of paint to use to prevent them from peeling again?

A. — Remove as much of the old paint as possible with a hand wire brush or, if you are very careful, a rotary wire brush on your portable electric drill. Wear goggles to protect your eyes from flying chips of paint. One of the ways to prevent peeling in the future is to apply a coat of acrylic latex primer and then a coat of acrylic latex paint designed for metal, although once the primer is on, you might even use the same type of house paint.

Q. — I have sometimes seen a wood grain effect on a surface that has been painted. How is this obtained? I would like to try it soon.

A. — For many years, wood graining was achieved with the use of such things as sponges and special cloths. Today, your best bet is to purchase one of the wood graining kits, which include everything necessary to get the proper result. Be alerted, however, to the voice of experience. Don't try graining on anything important until you have practiced considerably on scrap wood.

Q. — I have some lacquer thinner left over from a job I did a couple of years ago. Can I use it as a thinner for an oil paint?

A. — Absolutely no!

Emigration of Syrian Jewish women approved

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN
© New York Times

WASHINGTON — Climaxing months of secret discussions, including a personal plea from President Carter, President Hafez Al-Assad of Syria has approved an unusual plan that allows Syrian Jewish women to emigrate to the United States after marrying, by proxy, American Jews they have never met.

In what was regarded here as a public gesture to the United States, Assad gave his consent for the marriage by proxy on July 19 in Damascus of 12 Syrian women to men from Brooklyn's Syrian Jewish community. Two other women were married in person to Americans, one from Brooklyn and one from Baltimore, who had traveled to Syria to look for brides.

THE MATTER of the Syrian women has been of personal concern to Carter, White House officials said Saturday. They said Assad was being "very magnanimous" in his action.

There is hope and expectation here that Syrian authorities will allow more of the 500 unmarried Syrian Jewish women to leave in the same way, but there is no formal commitment from Assad.

The problem of the 500 unmarried Syrian women is hardly one of the most crucial for the United States, but it has surprisingly become a focus of attention, involving many official and nonofficial Americans, and dozens of Syrian authorities, including Assad himself.

Because the emigration process has just begun, those concerned were reluctant to provide full details of the discussions for fear that publicity might harm the chances of the other Syrian Jewish women to emigrate. The women who were married July 19 are expected to arrive in New York next week.

THE FIRST public word of the Syrian decision to go along with the unique proxy plan was an article in a Beirut newspaper last Monday reporting on the proxy marriages attended by more than 500 people in a small synagogue in Damascus. Since it was presumed here that Syrian authorities had sanctioned that release of information, some participants in the discussions were willing to talk.

At present, there are said to be 5,100 Jews living in Syria, primarily in Damascus, Aleppo, and a small town called Kinishili. This is the largest group of Jews living in an Arab state, a remnant of the 45,000 that lived in Syria prior to Israel's creation in 1948.

In recent years, they have lived in difficult circumstances, with discriminatory rules barring their ability to travel within or outside the country and to sell property. Assad in January, however, eased the rules but still refused to allow the community as a whole to leave, for fear the Jews would go to Israel.

Last December, Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., whose district encompasses the Ocean Parkway area, where some 25,000 Jews of Syrian background live — the largest such community in the world — visited Damascus and met with leaders of the Jewish community and with Syrian authorities.

In an interview, Solarz said "the single most major concern" expressed to him by Syrian Jews was the fate of the 500 unmarried women, who were believed unlikely to find husbands in Syria's Jewish community and who would not be permitted to assimilate into Syrian society.

He said he was told by Syrian Jews that most single men had been able to leave Syria or were unwilling to get married because they wanted to be able to leave at short notice.

THE REQUEST from the Syrian Jewish community was that the women be permitted somehow to emigrate to the United States, preferably to the Ocean Parkway area in Brooklyn where there was a familiar culture and milieu.

When Solarz raised the matter with Syrian foreign ministry officials, he said they told him that they "were not unsympathetic to the humanitarian concerns about which I had spoken."

When he returned to the United States, Solarz said he contacted Stephen Shalom, a leader in the Syrian Jewish Community in New York, who was raised in Ocean Parkway area.

Shalom, an investment banker, said in an interview that local synagogues and groups expressed interest in helping the Syrian Jewish women.

In March, Shalom went to Syria and met with leaders of the Jewish community there, including Selim Totah, who heads the Damascus community.

He was given a list of the 500 women, with a brief description of the background of each — most of whom spoke only Arabic and some French, only a few knew English.

Syrian authorities first suggested that the Americans come to Syria, find brides, get married and go back with them to the United States. This was viewed as not practical by the Americans.

HAFEZ AL-ASSAD
...approves emigration

Meanwhile, in February, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance made a trip to the Middle East, including a stop in Damascus where he had a talk with Assad. The matter of the women, according to reliable sources, was raised in that discussion, and Assad was not discouraging.

In May, Carter was due to meet with Assad in Geneva as part of his Middle East diplomatic efforts. In advance of that visit, Solarz contacted Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security affairs adviser, who was a former teacher of his at Columbia, and Brzezinski arranged for Solarz to meet with the President.

As a result, during the meeting with Assad in Geneva on May 9, Carter raised the matter of the unmarried women with him directly, according to administration officials, and that Assad, after some initial hesitation, was "very magnanimous."

In Brooklyn, Shalom and other local leaders began seeking volunteers to send marriage proposals to the 12 women as a start; about 30 more proposals are being prepared.

Women's liberation tough on Russian men

MOSCOW (AP) — The liberation of Russian women is proving to be difficult for some men, who feel like failures around their successful wives, a Soviet journal says.

More than half the Soviet Union's workers now are women. As women take responsible jobs and sometimes earn more than their husbands, "some men begin to develop a guilt complex, to think they are failures," a commentator said in a recent issue of the weekly Nedelya.

SOME SOCIAL theorists suggest men should do more housework and child rearing. But Nedelya said men are not cut out for such work.

A survey quoted by Nedelya indicated 73 per cent of men contacted in Leningrad recognized the financial necessity of having their wives work, but two-thirds would have preferred the women to stay home.

THE GROWING role of women in society is creating other problems.

With men unwilling to take over household chores, women are working harder than ever — spending an average of four or five hours on housework and child care each day in addition to as much as eight hours on the job, according to published figures.

Women's increased responsibilities and a serious shortage of living space also have helped cause a trend toward smaller families at a time when the Soviet Union is trying to boost its birthrate.

Carter delays stand on postal bill

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who promised during last year's election campaign to take "quick steps" to attack the problems of the Postal Service, is delaying taking a position on legislation dealing with those problems.

The legislation would seek to eliminate the Postal Service's chronic deficit by sharply increasing the taxpayer subsidy of the U.S. mail but at the same time prevent the Postal Service from halting Saturday deliveries. The bill also would allow the President to appoint the postmaster general, a power taken away from the White House in 1971.

Testimony by Carter administration officials, which had been scheduled for last week, now has been postponed until after the August congressional recess, the House Post Office Committee said Friday.

A committee staffer, saying "the White House is postponing a decision on the bill," complained that the panel hasn't "an inkling from the administration what the position will be."

WHITE HOUSE domestic aide Robert Malson confirmed that Carter was still pondering the matter.

"The administration has not come to a position," Malson said. "The President is still considering the various options."

The Post Office Committee, which has been seeking Carter's views for weeks, said the administration testimony is now scheduled for Sept. 8 with the probable witness Burt Lance, Carter's budget director.

Last October, Carter made a campaign statement that he would act quickly on the Postal Service.

"If I am elected President, I will take quick steps to make our Postal Service efficient and dependable once again," he declared.

LOBBYISTS representing mail users expect the eventual administration stand to be against major parts of the bill because of budgetary concerns.

"All indications are that the higher subsidy in the bill will go against the administration's desire to balance the budget," one lobbyist said.

Malson, while emphasizing that Carter had not made a decision, stressed the importance of budgetary considerations. "The big anchor around here is the desire to balance the budget," he said.

Lance is a leading administration spokesman for that goal.

The bill sponsored by the chairmen of the two House subcommittees that oversee the Postal Service would set the government subsidy at 15 per cent of Postal Service operating expenses, or about $1.5 billion per year at the current rate of spending. By contrast, the government has been paying an annual subsidy of $920 million, a sum fixed by law since 1971.

The Postal Service recorded a $50-million loss in its most recent fiscal year, down from a $1.2-billion loss in the previous year.

AS PART OF its effort to cut the deficit, the Postal Service has said it intends to end Saturday delivery early next year, a step the service says would save more than $400 million annually.

Carter so far has made only one suggestion on the mail service: that the 13-cent letter rate for private correspondence be retained. The Postal Service adopted the suggestion while proposing that other rates go up next year.

Black families strong

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While white family structures appear to be weakening, many blacks still make use of the extended family, especially through informal adoptions, according to a new study by the National Urban League.

The study concluded that government and social welfare agencies should bolster the process by giving relatives the first shot at formally adopting children and by increasing adoption subsidies.

"At a time when kinship bonds among whites are weakening," the study said, "the extended family is still one of the most viable institutions for the survival and advancement of black people today."

"One of the key functions performed by the black extended family is the informal adoption or foster care of children by grandparents, aunts, uncles and other kin," the report said.

It noted that two-thirds of white children born out of wedlock are offered for formal adoption but 90 per cent of [illegible] black children are retained by the extended family.

About three million children, almost half of whom are black, currently live in the households of relatives, the study said.

It said there was an "urgent need" for social policies, programs and services that reinforce and build on the strengths of this "[illegible]" system.

The report also called for sharply expanded "adoption subsidies [illegible]."

THE SURVEY also found [illegible]

[illegible] children living in informal adoptive settings are [illegible] most likely to have [illegible].

The study, done under a research grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was authored by Robert B. Hill, the Urban League's director of research.

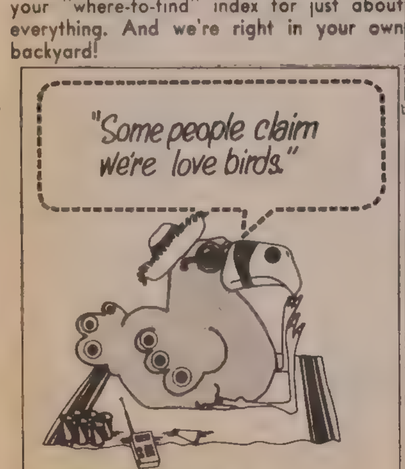
What's so great about our newspaper? Plenty!! We offer so much more for YOU. Than any big city publication can possibly do. Sure they bring you the latest news. So do we! They'll tell you about current business trends and sports happenings. So do we! But when you're looking for the latest storewide bargains, the best restaurants, local sports events, musical concerts, weather reports and countless other "local" things . . . those big city editions just can't compete! We're your "where-to-find" index for just about everything. And we're right in your own backyard!



"Some people claim we're love birds."

The summer blood donor is a rare bird. Be one.

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who promised during last fall's election campaign to take "quick steps" to attack the problems of the Postal Service, is delaying taking a position on legislation dealing with those problems.

The legislation would seek to eliminate the Postal Service's chronic deficit by sharply increasing the taxpayer subsidy of the U.S. mail but at the same time prevent the Postal Service from halting Saturday deliveries. The bill also would allow the President to appoint the postmaster general, a power taken away from the White House in 1971.

Testimony by Carter administration officials, which had been scheduled for last week, now has been postponed until after the August congressional recess, the House Post Office Committee said Friday.

A committee staffer, saying "the White House is postponing a decision on" the bill, complained that the panel hasn't "an inkling from the administration what the position will be."

WHITE HOUSE domestic aide Robert Malson confirmed that Carter was still pondering the matter.

"The administration has not come to a position," Malson said. "The President is still considering the various options."

The Post Office Committee, which has been seeking Carter's views for weeks, said the administration's testimony is now scheduled for Sept. 8, with the probable witness Bert Lance, Carter's budget director.

Last October, Carter made a campaign statement that he would act quickly on the Postal Service.

"If I am elected president, I will take quick steps to make our Postal Service efficient and dependable once again," he declared.

LOBBYISTS representing mail users expect the eventual administration stand to be against major parts of the bill because of budgetary concerns.

"All indications are that the higher subsidy in the bill will go against the administration's desire to balance the budget," one lobbyist said.

Malson, while emphasizing that Carter had not made a decision, stressed the importance of budgetary considerations. "The big anchor around here is the desire to balance the budget," he said.

Lance is a leading administration spokesman for that goal.

The bill, sponsored by the chairmen of the two House subcommittees that oversee the Postal Service, would set the government subsidy at 15 per cent of Postal Service operating expenses, or about $1.5 billion per year at the current rate of spending. By contrast, the government has been paying an annual subsidy of $920 million, a sum fixed by law since 1971.

The Postal Service recorded a $50 million loss in its most recent fiscal year, down from a $1.2-billion loss in the previous year.

AS PART OF its effort to cut the deficit, the Postal Service has said it intends to end Saturday delivery early next year, a step the service says would save more than $400 million annually.

Carter so far has made only one suggestion on the mail service: that the 13-cent letter rate for private correspondence be retained. The Postal Service adopted the suggestion while proposing that other rates go up next year.

Black families strong

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While white family structures appear to be weakening, many blacks still make use of the extended family, especially through informal adoptions, according to a new study by the National Urban League.

The study concluded that government and social welfare agencies should bolster the process by giving relatives the first shot at [illegible] adopting children and by increasing adoption subsidies.

"At a time when kinship bonds among whites are weakening," the study said, "the extended family is still one of the most viable institutions for the survival and advancement of black people today."

"One of the key functions performed by the black extended family is the informal adoption or foster care of children by grandparents, aunts, uncles and other kin," the report said.

It noted that two-thirds of white children born out of wedlock are offered for formal adoption but 90 per cent of [illegible] born black children are retained by the extended family.

About three million children, almost half of whom are black, currently live in the households of relatives, the study said.

It said there was an "urgent need" for social policies, programs and services that reinforce and build on the strengths of this self-help kinship system.

The report also called for "sharply expanded" adoption subsidies [illegible] to formally adopt children, especially those considered hard to place.

THE SURVEY also found:

— [illegible]

— In contrast to the [illegible] living patterns of elderly whites, about half of all black families headed by an elderly woman include dependent children other than their own.

— Although children who are informally adopted are likely to live with economically disadvantaged families, most of them are not on public assistance.

— Children living in informal adoptive settings are apparently least likely to have [illegible] problems.

The study, done under a research grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was authored by Robert B. Hill, the Urban League's director of research.

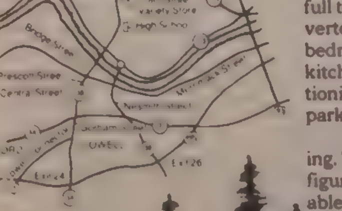
OPEN HOUSE SATURDAY AND SUNDAY 10:30 to 5:30 AND MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 10:30 to 8:30

Kenwood Gardens Town-House Homes mean charm, convenience, and value. But, the $24,900 price tag is simply outstanding.

When you visit the new lovely furnished model at Kenwood Gardens, keep that $24,900 figure in your mind. Outside, the three-level brick townhouse condominiums that are carefully nestled on a heavily-wooded hillside, you'll see sweeping views of the Merrimack Valley in Dracut.

Inside, you'll see a spacious townhouse with 2 bedrooms, 1½ baths, and a full terrace level which can easily be converted into a family room, den, or spare bedroom. You'll also see a fully modern kitchen, wall-to-wall carpeting, air conditioning, ceramic tile baths, and private parking areas are just outside.

You'll think of the high cost of renting. Then, you'll think of that $24,900 figure again. Financing is readily available. For a special appointment or further information, call 617-458-9749 in Dracut.



The nature of our townhouse condominiums is outstanding.

CONDOMINIUMS

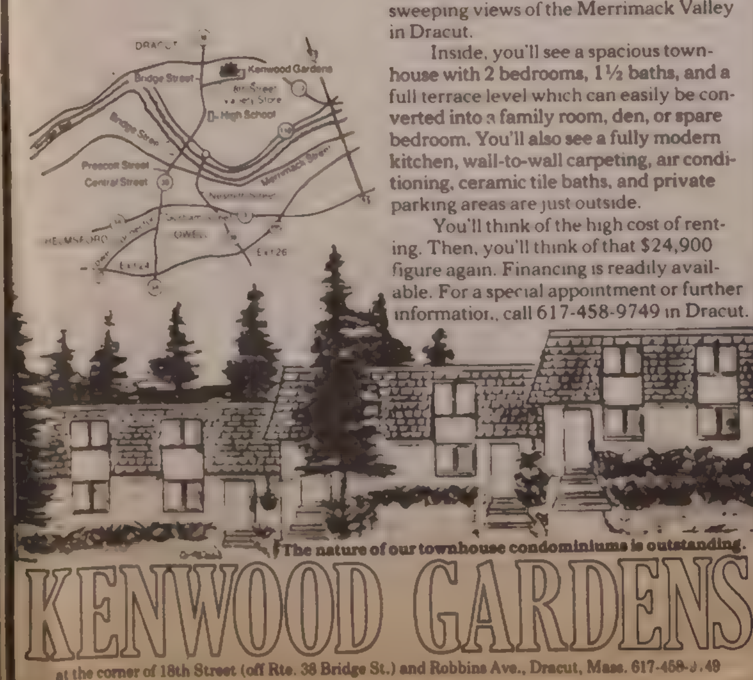
OPEN HOUSE SATURDAY AND SUNDAY 10:30 to 5:30 AND MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY 10:30 to 8:30

Kenwood Gardens Town House Homes mean charm, convenience, and value. But, the $24,900 price tag is simply outstanding.

When you visit the new lovely furnished model at Kenwood Gardens, keep that $24,900 figure in your mind. Outside, the three-level brick townhouse condominiums that are carefully nestled on a heavily-wooded hillside, you'll see sweeping views of the Merrimack Valley in Dracut.

Inside, you'll see a spacious townhouse with 2 bedrooms, 1½ baths, and a full terrace level which can easily be converted into a family room, den, or spare bedroom. You'll also see a fully modern kitchen, wall-to-wall carpeting, air conditioning, ceramic tile baths, and private parking areas are just outside.

You'll think of the high cost of renting. Then, you'll think of that $24,900 figure again. Financing is readily available. For a special appointment or further information, call 617-458-9749 in Dracut.



The nature of our townhouse condominiums is outstanding.

Enjoying the social hour

Volunteer Army featured topic at DAR meeting

LOWELL — A talk on the Volunteer Army by [illegible] N. D. Rudziak of Fort Devens, chief of the VOLAR Task Force, highlighted the regular meeting of the Molly Varnum [illegible] of the DAR held at the [illegible] House.

[illegible] discussed [illegible] Army [illegible] desirable.

He [illegible] the importance of the objectives of this new Army [illegible] including to improve professionalism in the service; social changes, including improving working conditions and places of service, and improve prestige of soldiers in the eyes of the country for the good of national defense.

He mentioned that the soldiers of today are more informed and have much more freedom than in the past. Recruits must be treated with respect and dignity and in turn respect is expected from them

Rules and regulations are changing. Housing, which was formerly dormitory style, is now being divided into three or four-man units. Mess halls are now operating after 5 o'clock, machines which dispense beer and soft drinks. Thus far, no exececessive beer consumption has been noted, and new housing rules are well received.

With the updating of rules and reforms, great care that nothing will take from a well-disciplined Army is being particularly watched.

PRIOR TO Colonel Rudziak's talk, Mrs. Bowers Fuller, regent, presided at a short business meeting during which a paper on National Defense from the National Chapter was read by Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale. A report on the state meeting held in Boston was given by Mrs. George J. Morse. There were 183 Good Citizenship girls present at the meeting. The Molly Varnum Chapter, it was noted, received a first prize award from the National. Chapter and a second award from the State Chapter. Before Mrs. Charles E. Watt introduced Colonel Rudziak to the audience, a 50-year pin was presented Mrs. Angelo Putnam.

Following the talk, refreshments were served. Mrs. G. Russell Dana poured for the social hour. Mrs. Albert Catherwood and Mrs. Frederick Burns were on the refreshment committee.

The next meeting will be held May 11 for the annual meeting and installation of officers. Reports of all officers will be given at this time. The hostesses will be Mrs. Chester M. Runels and Mrs. Ralph S. Webster.

Indian lore of Colonial days enthralls Varnum chapter

From the 1800's

LOWELL — Indian lore. history and Colonial days turbulence were recounted to the enchantment of members of the Molly Varnum Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at their November meeting held at the historic Spalding House, Pawtucket St.

Mrs. Clarence F. Morton of Lowell, guest speaker, told members that, while earlier historians debated whether the American Indian might be of perhaps Greek, Israeli or Phoenician ancestry — or perhaps indiginous to the area — there appear to have been many migrations circa 1200 over the ice then exisitng across the Bering Strait. At the time of the arrival of the Pilgrims, she reported, there were some 700 dialects spoken among the many small tribes with their unique cultures scattered over the continent.

DESCRIBING the Indians' way of life in the 1600's, Mrs. Morton reported fish so numerous in the rivers that one "could almost walk across on them." A staple of the Indian diet, fish was dried by the women for winter sustenance. Gardens of pumpkins, corn were also planted by the natives. In the Greater-Lowell area, she noted, there were no teepees or birch bark canoes, due to a scarcity of birch here, and the area Indians lived in dome shaped wigwams constructed of reeds and mats and heated by a central fire pit. Actually of tan complexion, they were at first thought to be "red" because of their war paint. That they told time by the moon, were illiterate, often walked 25 miles in an average day were other points of note.

Having no concept of European laws of land ownership, the Indians at first imagined they could still hunt and fish on land sold to the settlers. recounted Mrs. Morton, and punitive concepts of the times were recalled, as Mrs. Morton noted the severed heads of lawbreaking Indians having been empaled on poles for display at Plymouth, as was the custom with the condemned at England's "Old Bailey" is this era.

As the English arrived in ever greater numbers, the Indians bereft of their hunting and fishing grounds, gradually drifted away, meanwhile menaced also by plague and scarlet fever, unknown here until the arrival of the White man.

MRS. MORTON, scanning the tribes of the entire Merrimack Valley and northern New England, brought her topic close to home as she related the ebb and flow of Indian-Pilgrim fortunes in the Greater-Lowell area. Specifics regarding historic figures of both races, specific events in Lowell, Chelmsford, Tyngsboro were related, proving of particular interest to members whose forebears arrived in this area in pre-Revolutionary times.

Another highlight of the meeting came with the display of donations from Mrs. Mary L. Mason of items once owned by her grandmother in the mid to late 1800's. The memorabilia are now on display at the chapter's Spalding House, Pawtucket St., and may be viewed by appointment. Those interested may contact Mrs. Bowers Fuller of Tyngsboro.

A heritage of quilts and coverlets

By Marguerite Lyons
Sun Staff

LOWELL—While most women's clubs which met last week featured the "Pilgrim Fathers and the first Thanksgiving Day" in our land as the themes of their meetings the Molly Varnum chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution centered their attention on our American Heritage in old quilts and coverlets.

The appropriately chosen topic and the display of these precious heirlooms inherited by chapter members served as timely reminders of our colonial beginnings to which the origin of Thanksgiving is associated.

Miss Helen S. Butler recording secretary of the chapter, as guest speaker for the occasion, said quilts are charming heirlooms for they are intimate reminders of those who made them.

Explaining that the quilts of our colonial ancestors are the results of two different types of needlework, Miss Butler explained that quilting or sewing together of layers of cloth to assure an even distribution of the loose material between, resulted from the need for warmth in cold climates. She said the pattern or ornament is achieved by patching or piecing.

Patchwork is applique, that is, to fell down a smaller piece of cloth on a larger one. Piecework, she explained, is to join by means of a sewed seam, many small pieces of cloth to form a pattern.

Miss Butler noted that the oldest known example of patchwork is an ancient Egyptian funeral tent made for a queen who was a contemporary of King Solomon. Quilting, she said, came from the Arabs and was first used in Europe as padded vests to be worn under armor.

THE OLDEST BED quilts still in existence were made in India for the Queen of Portugal to give as wedding presents to her favorite ladies-in-waiting. Loos equalting and very simple applique was used in Germany in making feather beds, but bed quilts such as those found in England and later in America, were almost unknown. England acquired bed quilts from Spain

Bed quilts came to America on the Mayflower and during the Colonial times were an important and intimate item in the lives of both English and Dutch colonists.

The speaker explained that in the early days of the colony the women had many duties, therefore had little time for working at intricate patterns of patchwork or piecework, and they needed so many quilts that they made them up quickly to meet their needs. This accounts for the many colors and patterns in early New England quilts.

By contrast the Pennsylvania Dutch women did very elaborate work in piecing and quilting. Not allowed to participate in church and community affairs to the extent that the New England women did, this art or craft was their form of self-expression.

Further defining the differences in American examples of quilts, Miss Butler said the women of the Colonial South, who had more time than their New England sisters, made beautiful and most eleborate quilts. Since they needed fewer ones, they could wait until they had finer and prettier material to work with.

In Colonial America one had to be a fine quilter to be invited to the ladies' parties, Miss Butler said. Reminding her audience of the famous quilting bees which were the favorite social events of the times. She stressed that since only eight could sit around a quilting frame, only the best quilters were invited.

SOME OF THE QUILTS displayed at the chapter meeting went back to the days when it was customary for a girl to piece 13 quilts before she was married. Twelve were for everyday use and one was "fancy". When the girl of those days announced her engagement she invited her friends for a quilting bee.

Also displayed, and the subject of much comment at the meeting was a lovely old Freedom quilt. These were so named because in Colonial Days young men were often "bonded" to serve other men for a certain period. When the bonded man had served his indenture, it was customary for the neighbors to have an all day party in his honor and piece a quilt.

Several of the album quilts displayed were so old that a magnifying glass had to be used to distinguish the signatures embroidered on their intricate patterns.

In her highly informative talk, Miss Butler explained that half the charm of studying old quilts is in recogizing the patterns by name and learning the quite unique stories associated with these. In Colonial days and later numerous quilts were named for the locality in which they were made. Some of the most popular of this kind are the "Rocky Road to California" the "Ohio Beauty", the "Virginia Gentleman" and the "Long Island Duck".

Some quilts were named for the patterns they featured such as the "Feathered Square" or the "Featheared Star". Miss Butler said it frequently happened that the same pattern was known by different names as was the case with the "Pinetree" pattern in New England, called the "Temperance Tree" in Illinois and called "Paradise Tree" throughout the South.

In their day quilts were also given patriotic, humorous, religious, flower, bird, neighborhood, object and even grotesque names.

Superstitious people were mortally afraid of sleeping under some quilts, believing that they might develop the character described by the quilt's name.

FAVORITE OF ALL patterns was the "Rose of Sharon" and very popular were "Rose Wreath", "Garden Wreath", "Washington's Plume", "Log Cabin", "Court House Steps" and "Barn Raising".

Miss Butler emphasized the popularity of the "Memory Quilt" which bore embroidered names of loved ones, friends and neighbors on its squares and triangles and was usually one of the most treasured items a family took when leaving a community.

She said quilts were especially precious because they were made with pieces of such cherished possessions as wedding gowns, christening dresses, dancing gowns, pieces from grandpa's wedding suit, the velvet from a baby's cap and from lace that once had framed its tiny face.

Adding a personal note to her talk, Miss Butler said her late father who had been a sketchmaker at the Hamilton Mills had a comforter made for her when she was three. She is also the proud owner of two 150-year-old quilts.

Going back to the days when girls learned to sew before they were four, Miss Butler said, by the time they were women they had accumulated a wealth of handwoven blankets, quilts, coverlets and coverlids which they passed on as part of a heritage to their descendants.

An authority on the subject Miss Butler, to the pleasure of all attending, readily identified the quilts displayed with certain periods and associated them with meaningful events.

Prior to the program of the afternoon, Miss Louise Thompson, vice regent presided at the business session. Reports were read by Miss Butler, recording secretary; Mrs. Charlotte Lawson, treasurer and Mrs. Lois Watt, corresponding secretary.

Devotions and patriotic exercises were conducted by Mrs. George Morse who also served as hostess of the day. Decorations were by Miss Edith Baldwin.

The program of the afternoon concluded with a pre-Thanksgiving tea. Centering the appointed table was a large cake on which miniature Pilgrim figurines were mounted.

The next meeting for members of the chapter is scheduled for Dec. 12 when the Hillside School Choir will provide Christmas entertainment.

Social studies, math fair combined at Pyne school

LOWELL—The first combined Social Studies and Math Fair was staged yesterday afternoon at the Joseph G. Pyne School. The fair, presented by the seventh and eighth grade students was a volunteer effort in which all teachers and resources of the school were implemented.

The fair was combined in order that the students could select an area of study in which they could demonstrate their creative and intellectual abilities. Forty projects were selected in the field of Social Studies and 30 were chosen in math. Some students preferred to choose both.

Traditionally, a chronological approach has been used in the study of history. However, the concept of the fair was to select a few historical events and make an in-depth study using resources available in the community. On the other hand, there were three purposes for conducting a math fair. They were, through separate and different projects, to cumulatively expose all members of the class to the good spectrum of mathematic concepts. To provide experience to the pupils in mature learning procedures such as research, assimilation, application and exposition; to provide opportunities for in-depth inquiry into any mathematical topic of interest; to bring into focus the relationship of self-motivation, time and effort to the attainment of success.

The local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution sponsored the fair and will award prizes to the following winners at their April meeting: Social Studies, eighth grade, Sandra Anderson and Cheryl Volis, first place; Anthony Catheart and John Furtado, second place; Darcy Faggiano and Diane Cybulski, third prize; Seventh grade winners, Kathy Muldoon and Dawn Fontaine, first place; Debra Lavoie and Susan Knust, second place honors; Leslie Rowe, third prize.

Math fair winners for the eighth grade were Dawn Agnatovech, Sandra Anderson, Donna Byrne, Darcy Faggiano, Diane Cybulski, Debbie Normandy, Doreen Lamarre, Joyce Hodgson and Linda McAvoy.

At naturalization ceremonies

59 new Americans naturalized

LOWELL — Following a naturalization session at the superior court at Lowell, a new citizen beamed "Good, now I can vote!"

Mrs. Margaret Baril originally from Germany, now a resident of Pawtucketville with her husband and two children, has been in this country for 20 years, and Friday she became a citizen, taking the oath of allegiance to this country with some 58 others in ceremonies this morning in the old Daniel Webster Courtroom in the courthouse.

The 58 newly admitted citizens were greeted by Superior Court Judge Kent Smith. The justice greeted the new citizens and several spectators with, "...I am a grandson of an immigrant" — and pointing to Judge Thomas A. Johnson of the misdemeanor session at the court who shared the bench with him today — "he is the son of an immigrant."

The judge went on to say, however, that this country doesn't demand that your sons and daughters be judges or millionaires and commended what he termed the "real heroes in life — those who work hard and raise a good family."

THE CEREMONIES lasted less ehan an hour with Clerk of the Middlesex County Courts Edward J. Sullivan administering the oath. The only special adornment in the old historical courtroom to mark the event were two small American flags on either side of the clerk's bench.

Greetings from the city of Lowell came from Mayor Mrs. Ellen A. Sampson. She added to her remarks praise for the International Institute in the city for its part in preparing people for naturalization.

In addressing the new citizens the mayor said, "This country affords you great opportunities ... but in accepting this privilege ... you must face the responsibilities as citizens to uphold the constitutions of Massachusetts and of the United States.

Following the mayor's remarks, Mrs. Diolinda M. Mello executive director of the International Institute told the group that this was the greatest number of immigrants to enter this country since the 1920's when the country experienced another great influx.

She entreated the group to maintain their cultures which they brought with them as well as to continue to learn American History and of American institutions. She concluded "become participating members of your community, and get out and vote."

Responding to speeches from the bench and the city of Lowell was new citizen Mary John Borges.

The 40 member A Capella Chorus of Lowell High School under the direction of G. Douglas Townsend in an entertainment segment of the program brought down the house with several harmonious singing selections of Americana. At the outset they sang Yankee Doodle, the marching song of the British — sung by early patriots as an insult to English troops.

When the impressive group concluded with America the Beautiful in young, rising voices, Judge Smith arose to lead the applause, and the spectators then followed in clapping.

AFTER THE ceremony the justice went out into the courtroom to greet the new citizens, shaking their hands.

There were at least three people from India who became citizens with the group here today. N. S. Shastri of Chelmsford, an engineer who has lived in this country for ten years took the oath of allegiance along with a young married couple Mr. and Mrs. Jayalakshmi Ramachandran, 6 White Gate Road, North Billerica, who have been here 13 years. Mrs. Ramachandran wore the traditional Indian sari.

In fact it appeared that most of the group had been in this country at least 10 or 15 years. There was Adolfina Diaz here 12 years from Cuba She lives now in Lowell and works as an inspector at Honeywell.

From Spain, here for 12 years was Manuela Dunn living in Pepperell. She is a housewife with two children who met her husband in the service in Spain. When asked how she felt about becoming a citizen, she said "I feel pretty good."

MRS. CILARA Couture, 849 Bridge St., Lowell who came originally from Yugoslavia and Germany said she would like to go back to her countries to visit, but she wouldn't want to live there. "This is my home now," she said.

Claiming to be the oldest individual to receive citizenship today was Mrs. Italia Mariotti, 63, a widow from Lowell who came from Milan, Italy six years ago She was a scientific translator in Italy, but here she said "I am a deluxe servant." For anyone who likes to work, she says, this country is the land of opportunity."

PURPOSE

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

INSIGNIA

The golden Wheel of the Insignia represents a spinning wheel, the platinum or white gold distaff represents flax, the blue rim and the distaff carry the colors of the Society, and the stars represent the original thirteen colonies.

Historical reverie featured at Molly Varnum chapter meeting

LOWELL —In an effort to keep the history and tradition of our American heritage alive, the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, (DAR), met this week at the Spaulding House to hold a session of historical reverie.

The group viewed slides of historic sites throughout the United States and these included Jamestown and Williamsburg, both early American settlements. Historic high points of Philadelphia were also a part of the display as were shots in cross sawing, roof thatching and other examples of old American life.

Some 97 Greater-Lowell women are involved in the Daughters of the American Revolution organization, which was established in 1894. They meet regularly at 383 Pawtucket St., in a home which dates back to the year 1761.

A tour through the old Spaulding House uncovers many delightful findings all rich in tradition. In fact, the house easily brings one back to the days of spinning wheels and pewter kettles.

Antique furniture and china add to the flavor of the house along with old fashioned hard wood floors, a central fireplace and small items of sentimental significance like a calling card case.

In the kitchen, a portion of the outer wall has been torn away to display the original wood construction of the house.

VISITING the Spaulding House is an experience in old-time living and a testament to tradition in a world which brags of modern technology and a fast paced and changing life style.

The organization of the Daughters of the American Revolution was established nationally for a three-fold purpose — to serve the interests of patriotism, history and education. The group supports a school for Indians in the West and another for underprivileged children.

In the interest of history, they sponsor historical essay contests.

Officers for the 1973-74 year include Louise E. Thompson, regent; Helen S. Butler, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles E. Watt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth E. Lawson, treasurer; Mrs. Richard W. Barrelle, registrar; Mrs. William A. Smith, historian; Emily Wiggin, librarian, and Edith Baldwin, curator.

Peace for mankind goal of the U.S. Nixon tells DAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told the Daughters of the American Revolution today America's great goal must be to create "a legacy of peace for all mankind."

Nixon, speaking to an appreciative audience that filled Constitution Hall, said that to avoid the fate of vanished civilizations, the country needs "a renewal of America's sense of mission, sense of patriotism and sense of destiny."

Looking ahead to the country's 200th birthday in another two years, the President said Greece and Rome did not tumble because they were poor or weak but because they lost their sense of mission.

Declaring that the country needs goals larger than itself to infuse vitality and to avoid a selfish turning inward, Nixon said:

"Peace of the world is in our hands."

Adding that he saw this as a fact of history rather than an arrogant assertion, the chief executive said only the United States among the non-Communist nations is in a position to help promote conditions that would permit the next generation to live in a world without war.

DAR opens its heart to Nixon

By Norman Kempster
Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — President Nixon brought his unofficial campaign to rally support against impeachment to the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) yesterday and was welcomed with open arms.

Mr. Nixon stressed the themes of patriotism and peace in a 24-minute speech keyed to the coming Bicentennial celebration. He never mentioned the Watergate scandal or his pressing political problems, but he really didn't have to.

The Daughters cheered and shouted their support when Mrs. Donald Spicer, D.A.R. president-general, assured Mr. Nixon that the women, who trace their ancestry back to 1776, were with him.

'Peace of the world is in our hands'

"I believe you know the Daughters welcome you with all our hearts," Mrs. Spicer said. "We are so grateful that you agreed to come to us ... We want to show you how firm our support is, how deeply we believe . . ." She was drowned out by applause.

When the applause subsided, Mrs. Spicer continued, "and how much we are behind you on Project Independence" (Mr. Nixon's campaign to make the nation self-sufficient in energy by 1980).

Mr. Nixon's speech was an anthology of the President's favorite patriotic images, in which he stressed "America's sense of destiny."

"The peace of the world is in our hands," he said. "We don't say that because we wanted it there. We don't say that in an arrogant sense. It is a fact of history."

Speaking to an audience that filled Constitution Hall, he said that to avoid the fate of extinct civilizations, the country needs "a renewal of America's sense of mission. sense of patriotism and sense of destiny."

The President offered to give the 4000 or so DAR delegates the run of the White House this afternoon when they are scheduled to tour the mansion.

He said his wife. Pat. will "arrange to be away from the family quarters" and that he will do his office work next door in the Executive Office Building.

This will permit the DAR delegates to visit the family quarters, cabinet room. Oval Office and other parts of the mansion seldom shown to visitors.

"I wish we could give each of you a memento but there are a few too many of you for that," Mr. Nixon said. "Just don't take anything that is nailed down."

In a related move. the White House announced the grounds behind the executive mansion would be open between 2 and 5 p.m. this weekend to allow tourists to see spring flowers in the gardens.

DAR takes look at future that may never become reality

LOWELL — Members of the Lowell Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution took a trip into the future at their last meeting as they viewed slides of predicted future phenomenon and discussed some of the innovations which the years ahead may bring.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Fred A. Anderson, editor of a semi-monthly newsletter entitled "Future Report." He discussed such predicted future developments as closed circuit televisions for viewing of courtroom evidence, pedal powered airplanes, underground transportation systems which would travel at suggested speeds of up to 10,000 miles per hour and litter gulpers.

To aid in the understanding of his topic, Anderson brought with him a large number of slides picturing future possibles. He, however, assured his audience that all of the developments discussed may never become reality.

Among points of interest was mention of the proposed nuclear powered plant off the coast of New Jersey. He said that this type of development is intended to relieve some ecological objections to nuclear power use. Off shore oil rigs, electronic blackboards for inter-classroom use and solar powered printing presses were other topics.

"MORE ATTENTION is being paid to the future because we are getting closer to significant dates like 1984 and the year 2000," said Anderson. He explained that his interest in what lies ahead has grown immensely in the past year and a half and consequently he began the newsletter and is working on two, yet to be

TWO CANADIAN RADIO ASTRONOMERS ARE CONDUCTING A SEARCH FOR EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL INTELLIGENT LIFE. Paul Feldman of York University, Toronto, and Alan Bridle of Queen's University, Kingston, will employ the 150 foot Algonquin radio telescope located 70 miles west of Pembroke, Ontario. They will be searching for signals given off by water vapor because, according to Bridle, "Water is such an important chemical compound for life as we know it. Our rationale is that if water-based life elsewhere attempted to construct beacons, one possible choice is the frequency of water itself."

A STUDY OF THE POSSIBLE USES OF DIRIGIBLES has been suggested by Thomas Wolfe, vice president of the Southern California Aviation Council. Problems which forced abandonment of the alternative in the 1930s -- inadequate weather forecasting, radio communications, maintenance, and knowledge of metal stress factors -- can now be solved, believes Wolfe. He suggests that payloads of 500-plus tons could be carried worldwide by nuclear powered dirigibles with virtually no pollution resulting.

BARRIERS TO TECHNOLOGICAL INNOVATION will be the subject of a study to be conducted by the American Society of Association Executives, Washington, DC, under a grant from the National Science Foundation. The ASAE will survey industry associations in its membership.

A STUDY OF POPULATION TRENDS THROUGH 1990 within 22 counties in the New York area has been released by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey (111 8th Avenue, New York, NY). Projections include: An increase of 2.2 million over 1970 for the entire area, a slower growth rate than previously with immigration and emigration cancelling each other out; suburban Suffolk County will absorb nearly a quarter of the projected growth; New York City's population will remain stable at about 7.9 million, with the female majority increasing to 4.2 million.

THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO HAS RECENTLY ENACTED A HEAVY TAX ON LAND PURCHASES BY NON-CANADIANS and other provinces may be expected to follow suit. Gordon Gibson, a former special assistant to Prime Minister Trudeau, noted, "A part of the heritage of Canadian birth is access to relatively plentiful land resources. Certainly we are foolish if we allow the wealth of the rest of the world to bid up the prices of our recreational areas to a level Canadians cannot afford." A foreign buyer is taxed 20% and a seller making a large profit is taxed 50%.

ONLY HALF OF THE NATION IS AWARE OF THE METRIC SYSTEM AND ONLY 30% CAN ACCURATELY DESCRIBE IT, according to a recent Gallup poll. Of those able to give a correct description about 60% are in favor of adoption.

CONFIDENCE IN THE NATION'S FUTURE has also recently been measured by the Gallup organization. It found that 68% of the American public retain a high degree of confidence in the future of the country, despite a lack of confidence in governmental leadership. However, only 45% of the blacks surveyed, 53% of those between 18 and 29, and 64% of females, expressed "quite a lot" of confidence. Those with only a high school background were less confident (66%) than those with a college background (77%).

ENERGY AND THE FUTURE OF SOCIETY will be the subject of two SYNCON conferences planned for July 1-2 and July 22-25 at Portland State University. According to the Committee for the Future Inc. (Washington, DC), "SYNCON is part town meeting and part county fair. It's a unique forum/process designed to unite people from every field, function, and interest to join together to explore the common future." Discussion guides will be prepared by the Hudson Institute for various sections of a "wheel-like" environment. These sections of the Wheel will consider functional areas (Social Needs, Technology, Environment, Government Production, and International/Other). Sections will be linked by a closed circuit TV system, and sessions will be broadcast to the Portland community over KOAP-TV. A $35 fee covers meal and cultural events for the three day periods. EPCOT (EXPERIMENTAL PROTOTYPE COMMUNITY OF TOMORROW), envisioned by Walt Disney, "can and will be further developed," according to E. Cardon Walker, president of Walt Disney Productions Inc., in a speech to the American Marketing Association in Philadelphia. EPCOT would be a showcase for new systems, materials and devices, according to Walker and Disney will seek long-term commitments from corporations and nations to participate. Initial construction would involve an area "in which the nations of the world may participate on a permanent basis to demonstrate their culture and their products." American firms will be sought to locate in an industrial park new Walt Disney World in Orlando, FL. According to Walker, "all our work would point to the time when the economics would justify and support the construction of the downtown center. Early residents will be visitors, students, educators, and families of participants in the project."

"FUTURE WORLD", A SEQUEL TO THE MGM MOVIE "WEST WORLD", is targeted for release on January 6, 1975. The film will be produced by Paul Lazarus III, using a screenplay by Mayo Simon.

COMMUNICATION

RCA HAS WON AN EMMY AWARD for its development of the first videotape cartridge system used to automate the presentation of commercials and other station break programming. Its TCR-100 (nearly 200 of the $120,000 units have been delivered) eliminates the need for a multiplicity of equipment, such as "live" cameras, reel-to reel tape recorders, and movie and slide projectors. The system holds 22 video tape cartridges each capable of three minutes of playing time. * "FOR PEOPLE WHO LOVE BOOKS BUT HATE SHOPPING" a new service called Books By Phone is available. Users call a toll-free number (800-832-9100 in New York or 800-645-9040 out of state) any time, ask for a book and have it charged to a credit card. Books are shipped within 48 hours for a $1 postage and handling fee per order. The service is also advertised as advantageous for those who "arrive breathlessly at the bookstore just after closing time...or who don't live near a bookstore at all...or who get discouraged when the first store they try is out of stock." * "FUTURE GENERATIONS WILL BE ABLE TO SEE FIRST HAND OUR LIFE STYLE, hear our voices, determine our attitudes," predicts Leslie Daniels of the University of Arizona's College of Business Administration -- site of the first archive of TV commercials. * RADIOS COSTING MORE THAN $15 would have to be able to receive both AM and FM signals, according to legislation approved by the Senate Commerce Committee. Ad space will be sold by Environmental Advertising of America (110 East 59th St., New York, NY). * ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES IN THE U.S. WILL SURPASS $55 BILLION BY 1985 according to a study by Predicasts, Inc. (11001 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, OH, 44106). This compares with $23 billion in 1972, the equivalent of 2% of the Gross National Product. This percentage will decline. Display media will be the fastest growth segment with its share increasing from 14% in 1972 to 18% in 1985. Transit advertising will benefit from increased use of mass transit facilities and point-of-purchase advertising will be favorably affected by the increase in discount houses. Radio and TV advertising will continue to increase market share, but growth will slow somewhat as cable TV reduces advertising expenditures. High saturation levels in TV ownership and viewing time will also be adverse factors. Broadcasting media are projected to comprise 26% of all advertising in 1985, up slightly. Another firm, Frost & Sullivan, expects ad agency revenues to reach $54 billion per year by 1985. * CABLE TV: By 1977 revenues from subscribers may reach $266 million vs. just over $3 million in 1973, according to Creative Strategies (Palo Alto, CA). Stockton, CA, will be the site of a large scale test of two-way CATV. Mitre Corp. will use a computer to make available a variety of audio-visual materials to users in the home. By 1985 about 30% of all homes will subscribe to cable-connected pay-television, believes the Stanford Research Institute. Total revenues for both over-the-air and cable pay TV may reach $4 billion vs. $200 million in 1976. A two-way cable TV system has been tested for the past year in El Segundo, CA, by Theta-Com of California, a Hughes subsidiary. The system involves a central computer and 30 prototype terminals in subscribers' homes. Services include the purchase of movies and sporting events, theater and airline reservations, and merchandise. Orders are confirmed on a paper-tape readout and billing automatically takes place. Subscribers can also request information, participate in games and educational programs, respond to opinion polls, and be provided with emergency intrusion, fire, or medical alarm service. The El Segundo test is scheduled to be expanded to 1,000 terminals this year. * VIDEORECORDERS: More than 14 million American homes will have these systems by 1982 with sales that year reaching $1.38 billion in hardware, according to Chase Econometrics (a Chase Manhattan Bank sub-

It found that 68% of the American public retain a high degree of confidence in the future of the country, despite a lack of confidence in governmental leadership. However, only 45% of the blacks surveyed, 53% of those between 18 and 29, and 64% of females, expressed "quite a lot" of confidence. Those with only a high school background were less confident (66%) than those with a college background (77%).

ENERGY AND THE FUTURE OF SOCIETY will be the subject of two SYNCON conferences planned for July 1-2 and July 22-25 at Portland State University. According to the Committee for the Future Inc. (Washington, DC), "SYNCON is part town meeting and part county fair. It's a unique forum/process designed to unite people from every field, function, and interest to join together to explore the common future." Discussion guides will be prepared by the Hudson Institute for various sections of a "wheel-like" environment. These sections of the Wheel will consider functional areas (Social Needs, Technology, Environment, Government Production, and International/Other). Sections will be linked by a closed circuit TV system, and sessions will be broadcast to the Portland community over KOAP-TV. A $35 fee covers meal and cultural events for the three day periods. Contact: Dr. David Clark, SYNCON Coordinator, Dean of Research and Graduate Studies, P.O. Box 751, Portland University, Portland, OR, 97207. Phone: (503) 299-3423.

A TIME CAPSULE SEALED IN 1950 by the members of Alpha Phi Omega fraternity on the compus of Southern Illinois University (Carbondale, IL) will be opened later this year.

EPCOT (EXPERIMENTAL PROTOTYPE COMMUNITY OF TOMORROW), envisioned by Walt Disney, "can and will be further developed," according to E. Cardon Walker, president of Walt Disney Productions Inc., in a speech to the American Marketing Association in Philadelphia. EPCOT would be a showcase for new systems, materials and devices, according to Walker and Disney will seek long-term commitments from corporations and nations to participate. Initial construction would involve an area "in which the nations of the world may participate on a permanent basis to demonstrate their culture and their products." American firms will be sought to locate in an industrial park new Walt Disney World in Orlando, FL. According to Walker, "all our work would point to the time when the economics would justify and support the construction of the downtown center. Early residents will be visitors, students, educators, and families of participants in the project."

"FUTURE WORLD", A SEQUEL TO THE MGM MOVIE "WEST WORLD", is targeted for release on January 6, 1975. The film will be produced by Paul Lazarus III, using a screenplay by Mayo Simon.

COMMUNICATION

RCA HAS WON AN EMMY AWARD for its development of the first videotape cartridge system used to automate the presentation of commercials and other station break programming. Its TCR-100 (nearly 200 of the $120,000 units have been delivered) eliminates the need for a multiplicity of equipment, such as "live" cameras, reel-to reel tape recorders, and movie and slide projectors. The system holds 22 video tape cartridges each capable of three minutes of playing time. * "FOR PEOPLE WHO LOVE BOOKS BUT HATE SHOPPING" a new service called Books By Phone is available. Users call a toll-free number (800-832-9100 in New York or 800-645-9040 out of state) any time, ask for a book and have it charged to a credit card. Books are shipped within 48 hours for a $1 postage and handling fee per order. The service is also advertised as advantageous for those who "arrive breathlessly at the bookstore just after closing time...or who don't live near a bookstore at all...or who get discouraged when the first store they try is out of stock." * "FUTURE GENERATIONS WILL BE ABLE TO SEE FIRST HAND OUR LIFE STYLE, hear our voices, determine our attitudes," predicts Leslie Daniels of the University of Arizona's College of Business Administration -- site of the first archive of TV commercials. * RADIOS COSTING MORE THAN $15 would have to be able to receive both AM and FM signals, according to legislation approved by the Senate Commerce Committee. Car radios would be impacted most significantly, with FM stations attracting much larger potential audiences. * WASHINGTON, DC, which forbids ads on buses, cabs, and billboards, will be exposed to ads on some 10,000 trash cans. Ad space will be sold by Environmental Advertising of America (110 East 59th St., New York, NY). * ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES IN THE U.S. WILL SURPASS $55 BILLION BY 1985 according to a study by Predicasts, Inc. (11001 Cedar Ave., Cleveland, OH, 44106). This compares with $23 billion in 1972, the equivalent of 2% of the Gross National Product. This percentage will decline. Display media will be the fastest growth segment with its share increasing from 14% in 1972 to 18% in 1985. Transit advertising will benefit from increased use of mass transit facilities and point-of-purchase advertising will be favorably affected by the increase in discount houses. Radio and TV advertising will continue to increase market share, but growth will slow somewhat as cable TV reduces advertising expenditures. High saturation levels in TV ownership and viewing time will also be adverse factors. Broadcasting media are projected to comprise 26% of all advertising in 1985, up slightly. Another firm, Frost & Sullivan, expects ad agency revenues to reach $54 billion per year by 1985. * CABLE TV: By 1977 revenues from subscribers may reach $266 million vs. just over $3 million in 1973, according to Creative Strategies (Palo Alto, CA). Stockton, CA, will be the site of a large scale test of two-way CATV. Mitre Corp. will use a computer to make available a variety of audio-visual materials to users in the home. By 1985 about 30% of all homes will subscribe to cable-connected pay-television, believes the Stanford Research Institute. Total revenues for both over-the-air and cable pay TV may reach $4 billion vs. $200 million in 1976. A two-way cable TV system has been tested for the past year in El Segundo, CA, by Theta-Com of California, a Hughes subsidiary. The system involves a central computer and 30 prototype terminals in subscribers' homes. Services include the purchase of movies and sporting events, theater and airline reservations, and merchandise. Orders are confirmed on a paper-tape readout and billing automatically takes place. Subscribers can also request information, participate in games and educational programs, respond to opinion polls, and be provided with emergency intrusion, fire, or medical alarm service. The El Segundo test is scheduled to be expanded to 1,000 terminals this year. * VIDEORECORDERS: More than 14 million American homes will have these systems by 1982 with sales that year reaching $1.38 billion in hardware, according to Chase Econometrics (a Chase Manhattan Bank subsidiary).* BY 1981 SOME 400 MILLION PEOPLE SHOULD BE ABLE TO READ with the aid of the first ATS (Applications Technology Satellite) launched last week by NASA. The $180 million satellite will broadcast a variety of educational programs directly to 30-foot antennas in villages in India. India itself plans to launch a communications satellite in 1977. * A POINT-OF-SALE TV SYSTEM which can be used to guard against pilferage and also play 30 second commercials to shoppers, has been designed by In-Store Television (919 Third Ave., New York, NY). Initial tests were conducted in a Pathmark store in Queens, with systems expected to be installed in 4,000 stores. * ACT-MEDIA {1701 York Ave., New York, NY} IS PLACING ADS ON SHOPPING CARTS in over 1000 stores in New England and upstate New York. Early tests showed an average sales increase per product of 19%. * THE FCC IS STUDYING THE FEASABILITY OF ALLOCATING RADIO FREQUENCIES FOR USE IN REMOTE READING OF UTILITY METERS. Proposals for such systems have been submitted by Readex Electronics (which would use an aircraft-mounted receiver) and Sangamo Electric (which would use a van-mounted transmitter which would trigger transponders). * AN EXPERIMENTAL TWO-WAY VIDEO COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM that enables geographically separated groups to hold "electronic conferences" with each other has been tested by GTE Confravision, a GT&E British Columbia Telephone Co. subsidiary. Results are being analyzed by means of a questionnaire administered to the 164 persons who participated in 26 business meetings during a 5 week period. A teleconferencing system that combines stereophonic sound and the rapid facsimile transmission of documents has been tested by the Union Trust Bank of Connecticut under the guidance of Dr. Peter C. Goldmark of Goldmark Communications. The system provides discrete "sound images" at each location for each conferee. As a participant talks his associates at other locations are able to identify him through the system's stereophonic qualities. According to Thomas F. Richardson of Union Trust the system has saved hundreds of gallons of gasoline and valuable time commuting between Stamford and New Haven. "We found that our meetings are considerably more effective. Participants are more inclined to adhere to the prepared agenda and to more relevant discussion." * THE FCC HAS APPORTIONED A 115 MEGAHERTZ RADIO SPECTRUM FOR LAND-MOBILE COMMUNICATIONS SERVICES and notes that it expects there to be sufficient capacity to handle private car telephones and radio-dispatch services through the year 2000. It estimated that land-mobile communications will be a billion dollar business within 5 years. The FCC allocated 40 megahertz to wire-line carriers including AT&T, 30 to private systems operated by taxi companies, construction firms, and police departments, and held in reserve the remaining 45. The FCC order rejects a claim by AT&T that unless it were granted at least 64 megahertz the cost of car-telephone service would rise. * THE FIRST WORLDWIDE TELEVISION SERIES FOR CHILDREN -- called the "Big Blue Marble" after a view of the earth from the moon -- will premiere this fall under IT&T's sponsorship. A service of the program will involve providing viewers with the names of English-speaking children in other countries with whom they can correspond directly. * A NEW AND SIMPLIFIED METHOD FOR PUTTING MULTI-COLOR LASER BEAMS TO WORK RECORDING IMAGES has been invented by Richard A. Spaulding, a Kodak Research Lab physicist. Spaulding's discovery makes it easier to use the coherent light beams of a laser in recording color television pictures onto film, in laser projection systems for color TV picture displays, and in photographic color printing. * A HOLOGRAPHIC MOVING MAP DISPLAY SYSTEM has been developed by RCA for use by Navy pilots, according to Burton Clay of RCA's Advanced Technology Labs (Burlington, MA). Compact displays, in color, and precise rapid and automatic access to a desired map or chart is provided. * CLOSE TO 600 COLOR TV SETS THROUGHOUT WEST POINT are used to bring live and taped closed circuit TV presentations to the military academy cadets. According to Col. William F. Luebbert, director of the Instruction Support Division, "The current generation of cadets has grown up with the medium of color television, and the new color system adds impact to the classroom lecture as a moving visual aid."

ENERGY

"SOLAR ENERGY COULD CONTRIBUTE SIGNIFICANTLY TO THE NATIONAL GOAL OF PERMANENT ENERGY SELF-SUFFICIENCY" according to a report prepared for the Atomic Energy Commission. Environmentalist Barry Commoner (Washington University, St. Louis, MO) and Senator James Abourezk (D-SD) have charged that the AEC has hidden its findings and has "discouraged alternative sources of energy and encouraged environmentally destructive forms." While AEC head Dixy Lee Ray told President Nixon in December that solar energy "will not materially reduce the need for alternative electrical energy sources in the foreseeable future", the report to her by a panel of government experts concluded:

- "Although the full impact of solar energy probably won't occur until the turn of the century, the economic viability of several of the applications...could be developed and demonstrated within the next five years" including home heating and cooling.
- "Ultimately (early in the next century) practical solar energy systems could easily contribute 15-30% of the nation's energy requirements."
- From 30-50% of the heating and cooling of buildings could be provided by solar energy, with units commercially available by 1979.
- "No major technical barriers exist." Photovoltaic cells, similar to those used in space satellites could "produce more than 7% of the required U.S. electrical generating capacity by the year 2000." Even by 1990 the cells may be able to produce "economically competitive" electricity.
- A 10% reliance on photovoltaic cells by the year 2020 would save the U.S. $100 billion in crude oil imports.
- "In contrast to problems incurred by nuclear power, photovoltaic systems would find wide public acceptance because of their minimal impact on the environment."

While the report called for $1 billion worth of research by 1979, and suggested a "minimum viable" alternative of $400 million, the AEC has only budgeted $200 million. * SOME 50,000 SQUARE FEET OF SOLAR COLLECTORS WILL BE USED TO HEAT a 278,000 square foot building to be constructed by 1976 for the Denver Community College in Westminster, CO. The classroom structure, designed by Bridgers and Paxton Consulting Engineers (Albuquerque, NM) may be the largest yet to use solar energy for heating. David Lachenbruch of Television Digest will serve as moderator.

AN INFRARED IMAGING DEVICE, THAT CAN BE USED BY GUARDS TO "SEE IN THE DARK" among other applications, will be produced in quantity by Hughes Aircraft Co., Industrial Products Division (6855 El Camino Real, Carlsbad, CA, 92008). The Probeye Infrared Viewers will cost $3,575.

A STUDY ENTITLED "THE AUTOMOBILE — ENERGY AND THE ENVIRONMENT, A TECHNOLOGY ASSESSMENT OF ADVANCED AUTOMOTIVE PROPULSION SYSTEMS" by Douglas G. Harvey and W. The Dual-Mode concept involves vehicles which can travel on roadways as well as automated guideways.

"USES OF THE FUTURE" by Herbert J. Muller is "an important new book which should find a prominent place in the new field called 'futurology'" according to the Library Journal. "Muller speculates about what we can expect the world to become in the next three decades. Will the people of the year 2000, with many of them working as little as four hours a day, make satisfying use of their leisure time? What of the Western tradition of individualism -- can it withstand increasingly insidious governmental surveillance?" asks the publisher, Indiana University Press (Tenth & Morton Streets, Bloomington, IN, 47401).

THE STAGING OF AN "EXPO 80" to draw tourists to Los Angeles County has been proposed by Kenneth Hahn, Chairman of the L.A. Board of Supervisors. He appointed R. M. Pittinger, P.R. Vice President for Farmers Insurance Group Inc. to head a planning Committee. The area also hopes to attract the 1980 Olympic Games. Possible locations include Palos Verdes Peninsula, the Pomona Fairgrounds, the Valencia area near Saugus and Newhall, the open spaces of Malibu, and the former Cheli Air Force Base in Bell, according to Hahn.

Will the people of the year 2000, with many of them working as little as four hours a day, make satisfying use of their leisure time? What of the Western tradition of individualism -- can it withstand increasingly insidious governmental surveillance?" asks the publisher, Indiana University Press (Tenth & Morton Streets, Bloomington, IN, 47401).

LTI gets "Freedom Shrine" display

LOWELL — At ceremonies yesterday Lowell Technological Institute was awarded the "Freedom Shrine" display by officials of the Lowell Exchange Club in the memory of the late Nicholas C. Lallas.

The ceremony, which also honored cadets of the LTI Air Force ROTC detachment, was attended by Mayor Armand W. LeMay as well as George K. Parker and Richard Dunn, both officials of the New England District Exchange Club.

Accepting a bronze plaque, one of nearly 30 to be included in the display, Lowell Tech President Everett V. Olsen said he was "honored to accept the Shrine in the memory of Mr. Lallas, who was an outstanding Exchangeite and one dedicated to the ideals of education."

President Olsen was presented the symbolic award by Mrs. Nicholas C. Lallas, attending with many members of her family, and Lowell Exchange Club president Paul Chickliss.

THE "FREEDOM Shrine" is a service of the National Exchange Club and officials say there are now nearly 5.000 shrines throughout the United States. The photographic reproductions of U.S. historical documents beginning with the Declaration of Independence will be on permanent display in the LTI Alumni Memorial Library. A similar award was presented last year to the City of Lowell and is placed in the main lobby of the John F. Kennedy Civic Center.

Master of Ceremonies for the Exchange Club portion of the ceremony was Ernest L. Herrman, chairman of the award committee. Musical interpretations of a patriotic nature were offered by the Lowell High School band, directed by William Notini and Albert Gougeon, and the High School A Cappella Choir, under the supervision of Douglas Townsend.

The "Freedom Shrine" was cited as having special significance this year. by Mayor LeMay who said it was a memorial that must not be forgotten by coming generations.

CADET AnneMarie Neacy was named the recipient of the Thomas F. Costello trophy, in the ROTC portion of the awards, as outstanding cadet of the year. She received the trophy from George P. Macheras, representing Chapter 25 of the Edith Nourse Rogers Post, Disabled American Vetrans in Lowell, of which he is commander.

Also honored was Cadet James C. Patch who received the "detachment flag award" consisting of an American flag flown over the Capitol Building and sent through the courtesy of Congressman Paul W. Cronin.

School committeewomen Mrs. Kathryn Stoklosa and Patricia Molloy attended as guests along with Exchange Club committee members Clarence Lundgren and Richard Robinson.

Moscow, DAR Comment

MOSCOW (UPI) — The newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda has drawn a parallel between the assassination of Abraham Lincoln and moves to force President Nixon from office. It suggested both were the work of reactionaries, abetted by a hostile press.

In an article marking the 109th anniversary Sunday of Lincoln's assassination, the newspaper said the removal of Lincoln was "a necessary prerequisite" to restore the position of former plantation and slave owners.

The newspaper did not refer to Nixon by name, but said that even in "the most recent U.S. history, the reactionaries were ready to use any methods to fight political leaders who got in their way."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The retiring president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) promised Tuesday that President Nixon will get a "warm and hearty" reception when he delivers the keynote address of the DAR's 83rd Continental Congress Thursday morning.

Mrs. Donald Spicer, head of the 197,000-member, patriotism-promoting organization of women, said Nixon has "very grave problems, and we support him all the way."

The DAR, she said, believes the President has been "misunderstood and victimized by Congress and the press in being held responsible for what a well-meaning employe or staff member would do."

DAR's emphasis on education

By Ann Shaw
Sun Staff

LOWELL — Education, geography and freedom with emphasis on education were the subjects discussed this week at the monthly meeting for members of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Spalding House on Pawtucket St.

Louise E. Thompson, regent, presided at the business meeting and presented an informative slide presentation of two trips she took to the western part of the country.

Colorful slides of mountains, lakes and streams, views of the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone National Park and other sites in Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, and California were included in her travelogue.

During the meeting, Miss Thompson also informed members that an American flag had been donated by the local chapter to the Hillside School for Boys in Marlboro, one of the schools supported by the Molly Varnum Chapter.

Of great interest to members was a message from Mrs. Henry Stewart Jones, president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Relating the message, Miss Thompson, said Mrs. Jones stated we can and must learn from the lessons of the past, but we must always build for the future and prepare to meet its challenges.

The message expressed a picture of DAR not often seen by the public. Most people are under the impression that members of the DAR are interested mostly in the history of our country and don't realize the importance members of the DAR put on education stated by Mrs. Jones.

"AS WE LOOK to the days ahead," wrote the general president, "let it be our constant endeavor to bring new luster ot our historic, educational and patriotic objectives."

The local chapter was also reminded that with this in mind, their efforts will be directed toward bringing each DAR committee to its peak potential to the end that the society can exert maximum and constructive force in the life of the nation.

"With the approaching Bicentennial," continued the regeant, "too much emphasis cannot be placed on our educational objectives. Our young people represent the future of this country and it is they who must carry forward the banner of patriotism … thus to prepare the banner of patriotism … thus to prepare them for responsible citizenship, to instill in them a love of country, which will not be dimmed by inflation, recession or other ills of our day."

The message also stressed that many years ago Lyman Beecher wrote, "We must educate or we will perish by our own prosperity. If we do not, short will be our race from the cradle to the grave…"

THIS SOMBER MESSAGE is a reminder that we must always seek to project into the future the moral, spiritual and constitutional values on which our freedoms are based. We can only do so, he explained, by a continuing program of education designed to underscore all that is great and good in America.

Miss Thompson further quoting Mrs. Jones said "As a nation, we have been rarely blessed, but no nation can be allowed to forget that freedom is never free. It cannot be passed on to future generations like grandmother's tea spoons. Each generation must understand that it must learn freedom if it is to enjoy it. Thus, the preservation of freedom is an unending challenge and responsibility which must be dealt with as part of our daily lives."

The DAR tradition: More than flag-waving

The Daughters of the American Revo[illegible]on are not a distinct breed of Ameri[illegible]ans. They are our neighbors. Some like a cocktail or two before dinner; others couldn't dream of having one at any time, and some, like some outsiders, drink too much. Like any other Americans, some Daughters use plastic flower arrangements [illegible] centerpieces, go barefoot when the spirit moves them, pray in a crisis, swear in a traffic jam, criticize friends behind their [illegible], make casseroles for bereaved neigh[illegible] read when possible, flirt with [illegible] people's spouses, interrupt their [illegible], worry about their waistlines, post[illegible] appointments, dream, remain [illegible] when they should speak up, divulge information they ought to keep secret, take first-graders to the zoo on Tuesday [illegible] forget the birthdays of relatives, [illegible] dinners, gossip, and, when the occa[illegible] for it, admit their mistakes. In [illegible] respects most members of the DAR [illegible] most of the rest of us.

—From Peggy Anderson's "The Daughters"

By Mary Sarah King
Globe Staff

Peggy Anderson felt she was like many other Americans when she was assigned to cover a Pennsylvania state DAR conference three years ago—she didn't know too much about the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"But what I had heard and read wasn't too complimentary," said the author of the recently published book, "The Daughters—An Unconventional Look at America's Fan Club—the DAR."

At any rate, the Philadelphia Inquirer reporter covered the event. She also interviewed the then DAR president general, Eleanor Spicer, the results winning her approval. Then she received a bid from St. Martin's Press of New York to do a book on the organization.

Unable to get a sabbatical year off from her paper—six to eight weeks were all her editor would allow her—she quit her job and made the plunge—"like stepping into thin air," she said.

About her 342-page book, Miss Anderson said: "I deliberately set out not to do anything tongue-in-cheek, because in the past I think the DAR has been treated too often tongue-in-cheek." She hoped, too, to help silence, or at least soften, the "laughter" that follows the mention of the DAR in some circles.

"An organization that old (founded in 1890) and that big (over 200,000 members, the largest women's hereditary patriotic organization in the country) ought to be taken seriously—and I wanted to do the job to show what the DAR is really like," she explained.

She writes how the DAR has raised millions of dollars to support "what they consider to be American causes — yet they are faced with ridicule and rejection because of the controversial stands they have taken in their 84-year history." More than $10,000,000 alone they have devoted to the education of youth — "their favorite endeavor" in the past 60 years

And she mentions their most recent "Gift to the Nation" in honor of the country's Bicentennial observance, the restoration of two formal rooms in the period of the Declaration of Independence's signing — in Independence Hall in Philadelphia, at a cost to them of $200,000.

It is her feeling, however, that the DAR is "at its most authentic" at the local level, "Chapter work is mainly what the society is all about. Yeoman service is the chief characteristic of membership for the vast majority of Daughters," she adds.

Miss Anderson describes the picture some Americans hold of the Daughters as: "little old ladies hobbling around in tennis shoes . . . most at home in cemeteries . . . scrutinizing headstones" as far removed from reality in her experience.

Nor did the 36-year-old writer find true the widely held view that DAR membership is limited to the socially elite alone.

To prove her point she mentioned in her book that there were only two state regents in the last administration who were in the social register. One, Mrs. George C. Houser of Chestnut Hill, is now a vice president general of the National Society and although in the social register for the past 50 years says: "I never give it a thought. I'm living in the present and for the future. My whole life's wrapped up in helping people and I'd hate to think that all the DAR stands for is idly sipping tea and talking about our ancestors." (Mrs. Houser had not read the book when reached by The Globe so she could not give a personal evaluation.)

The president general, Mrs. Henry Stewart Jones, appearing at the Massachusetts DAR fall conference in Springfield last month, would comment only briefly: "The book, the Daughters, is not damaging and I am sure that we will survive."

And while the state regent, Mrs. Raymond F. Fleck of Norwood agreed that "it will do no harm to the NSDAR," she addede and she felt Miss Anderson's research "is to be commended, despite some inaccuracies."

However, there are some Massachusetts Daughters who feel that Miss Anderson has not always made her point.

Mrs. Joseph Tiberio of Sherborn, state vice regent said that "The book gave me an insight that I did not have regarding our public image. I feel there is no such thing as a typical DAR. We run the gamut."

And Mrs. Guy M. Rupright of Saugus, the state public relations chairman, maintains that Miss Anderson's sources were limited geographically and were not truly representative of all the DAR's, since their makeup differs from state to state. She says: "It's not fair to the high intellect, intense pride and patriotism of the Daughters throughout the 50 states and chapters overseas to place all this between the covers of a single book."

The Marian Anderson incident of 1939 invariably turns up to haunt the DAR. Then and now, it's charged the DAR refused to let the black artist give a concert in the DAR's Constitutional Hall (biggest auditorium in the nation's capital) because of her color. Much more was involved. Eleanor Roosevelt resigned from the organization and many Americans were convinced that the DAR was racist, "although any number of white Americans were guilty of failing to accord blacks and other minorities their rightful place in the American society," she wrote. As Eleanor Spicer explained it in the book: "Ironically, you know, it was in a sense a sort of beginning of the civil rights movement. People woke up to what was happening. But we were the goats."

"What on earth does the Marian Anderson incident of 1939 have to do with my contemporaries and me?" asks Mrs. John J. Line of Reading, who was born in 1947. Outstanding DAR Junior of 1974 and state curator, she says: "We cannot accept the responsibilities of attitudes and actions of another era of opinion. We are of a liberated society and we accept people as we find them. We will judge what is worthy and just for ourselves."

Miss Anderson, whose DAR interviews have included officers and members ranging from well-to-do suburban clubwomen to Playboy Club members, is critical of the DAR — not because of what they do, but of what they don't do — such as taking action on restructuring the organization. "Many would like to see change, but are not working hard enough for it," she says.

And while she says that the DAR would have had "less trouble" with the press if it handled its public relations a little better, specifically by spending more money in that area, she criticizes a "negative" and a "lazy" press for handling the DAR "in the same old way it always has. In some respects, I feel the press can be held responsible for the DAR's bad image."

Of all the patriotic hereditary organizations in the country — and there are many others, the DAR is the "easiest" to get into, according to Miss Anderson who points out that the DAR has identified 106,200 men, women and children, who helped win the American Revolutionary war; all their descendents are eligible for DAR membership and may be admitted by providing the proper specific credentials.

There are a few Jewish, Oriental and American Indian women who belong to the DAR, writes Miss Anderson, "but the organization has never knowingly had a black member."

Blacks as any one else, need only to produce proof of ancestry in order for them to be admitted, the DAR says, and the national lineage chairman Eunice Haden adds — "and they will be welcome in the Society."

Molly Varnum chapter DAR honors "Good Citizen Girls"

LOWELL — Members of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution highlighted their April meeting with the presentation of pins and copies of the Massachusetts Bicentennial Book to the five winners of the Good Citizen Girls contest sponsored by the chapter.

Helen Butler, chairman of the Good Citizens committee and secretary of the chapter, presented the awards to Kathryn Longchamp of Chelmsford High School, Cathy Monoxelos of Dracut High School, Carl Coultas of Tewksbury High School, Michelle Denommee of Tyngsboro High School and Mary Frances Mahoney of Lowell High School.

Miss Louise B. Thompson, regent, presided at the business session and announced the next meeting has been scheduled for May 13 and will feature Mrs. Larry Herlacher as guest speaker. She will discuss "Historic Preservation in the Merrimack Valley."

The meeting was followed by a talk given by Mrs. Joseph W. Tiberio, state vice regent who discussed the efforts of six women during the Revolution

MRS. TIBERIO SAID Mary Ludwig, known as "Molly Pitcher" to the soldiers of the Revolution carried water to the wounded and whatever else she could to assist. She later married John Hayes.

The speaker said it was not unusual for women to gather their children and follow their husbands in battle. The women would set up camp close to the battle area.

She also mentioned Penelope Barker who went down in the annals of history for hosting a non-tea party in North Carolina, a year after the Boston Tea Party.

Nancy Hart, she said, was another women who helped the colonies by being cross-eyed. Apparently Nancy Hart thought she was aiming a gun at one British soldier, in Morgantown, but it turned out to be two soldiers she killed.

Lydia Darragh was discussed as being a hero of the Revolutionary War on Dec. 7, 1777.

Mrs. Darragh lived in Philadelphia and on that daee, the British usurped her home. After putting her children to bed, she quietly sat by and listened attentively to what the British soldiers were discussing without their knowledge of her listening. She discovered the British were planning to attack General Washington at Whitemarsh, a short distance from Philadelphia.

UNDER PRETEXT of taking grain to the mill for grinding, she gathered her children and had her son Johnny go through the British lines with a message for Gen. Washington warning him of the plans of attack. As a result, the British lost the battle.

Mary Corbin was another women mentioned by the speaker as being active in the war.

Following the program refreshments were served.

The Washington Post reported Mrs. Howe was under investigation by the White House because she and her husband visited the Dominican Republic last week as guests of businessman and socialite Tongsun Park The Post said Howe told it the $1,475 hotel bill was paid by Park associate Tandy Meams Dickinson but that he had repaid it.

Howe said: "If we had realized there would be any criticism of our accepting this hospitality from Park we never would have done it." He said his wife was "absolutely innocent" of my wrongdoing.

Larry Speakes, White House deputy press secretary said, "We are saying obsolutely nothing about it." Later, the White House switchboard refused to take any calls.

There are several sets of federal ethics codes applicable to Mrs. Howe, the strictest of them drawn for White House employes.

Police declined to say whether Howe left any notes.

A West Point graduate, Howe retired from the Army as colonel and was head of the languages department at Trenton State University in Trenton, N.J. He also taught Spanish.

Reliving the history

...with which the Spalding House is filled Elizabeth Holt Spiller, left, who will be 80 next month and whose ancestry goes back to John and Priscilla Alden, tells the story of the familiar scene in the large entrance hall. Mrs. Spiller is wearing a black sweeping floor length homespun alpaca basque dress with short train and beautiful old red satin cape with padded lining. The dark red petit bonnet of velvet with rhinestone trimming and jawstrings were the touches of fashion enhancement in her great-grandmother's day. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns,muskets, swords and a powder horn. On each side hang a powder shell knapsack and water canteen. In the fireplace are the Hession Soldier Andirons and antique hanging kettles, a copper teapot and bellows. Left, the current regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, Louise Thompson, seated in the front room parlor, describes a segment of its treasures. From left a century old viol, and on the mahogany table a globe lamp on brass stand with prism pendants flanked by two brass candlesticks with prism pendants. In forefront are a set of pewter candleholders and a pewter tea pot which belonged to General and Mrs. J.B. Varnum.

DAR in city has rich history

One of the newer members of the DAR, Mrs. Biron was accepted in 1975 and has served the chapter as publicity chairman and treasurer. She fondly recalls the household items belonging to her grandmother and which had long before belonged to Hannah Dustan, the doughty Indian slayer of 280 years ago.

Mrs. Biron feels that the DAR and its numerous chapters throughout the country have been and will continue to be instrumental in the development of a spirit of patriotism among this generation and perpetuate that spirit in generations to come.

"I became interested in the DAR as a girl encouraged by my mother and my aunt, who were really interested in our geneology," said Nancy Elizabeth Pickett Harrison, also one of the newer members of the chapter.

"My maternal side of the family descended from some of the very earliest settlers who arrived in Salem Harbor on the ship Arbella", she said. "The Revolutionary War record of Thomas Stearns is a part of the family legacy passed down to me and it is on his record that I joined the DAR," she said.

MRS. FRANCIS McNamara, the former Ruth Martin, says it was by accident in 1955, while driving to Lovel, Maine with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Granville (Mabel E. French) Martin to visit relatives that she discovered the key that admitted her to the DAR.

As elderly relatives explained their degree of ancestry she sketched an ancestral chart on the back of an envelope. Intrigued by the anecdotes related by her relatives, she continued to delve into the genealogy and before long the scribblings on the back of the envelope developed into findings that filled a whole roll of shelf paper.

"From that day I was hooked," she said. She bought Oscar Stetson's book titled " The Art of Ancestor Hunting" and traced her ancestry to Andrew French, Jr. Shortly after having been accepted by the DAR in Washington she became a member of the Molly Varnum Chapter.

Turning to her 10-year-old grand-daughter, Meredith Louise Bradstreet Whitaker, who is visiting here from Monte Sereno, Calif:, Mrs. McNamara said she plans to share much of the fun of ancestor-hunting with her during her stay.

Meredith Louise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus H. (Carolyn Rand) Whitaker and the direct descendant of Governors Dudley, Wiggin and Bradstreet.

THE LOCAL CHAPTER has 90 members and it meets once a month from September to June. It is committed to observe American History Month in February by sponsoring essay contests on given historic subjects for students in grades five through eight and to recognizing the excellence in the study of American History by awarding DAR certificates of Award and DAR American History medals.

The chapter awards a medal to the top ranking ROTC student at the University of Lowell an annual basis, and it also rewards its Good Citizenship Girls from all the high schools in the Greater-Lowell area.

The chapter, along with all others in the National Society aids St. Mary's School for Indian Girls in Springfield, S.D. and gives scholarships to other Indians who need help. It also contributes to the Tamassee, S.C. DAR School and to Hillside School for boys from broken homes.

Upon request the chapter, will provide American Flags to any institution and it distributes material on patriotism on a regular basis for the purpose of honoring the past, carrying out services in the present and building a firm foundation to safeguard the future.

Officers of the Molly Varnum Chapter include Miss Louise E. Thompson, regent; Mrs. Bert Harless, vice regent; Mrs. William Smith, chaplain; Mrs. George Morse, recording secretary; Miss Helen Butler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis A. Biron, treasurer and Mrs. Francis McNamara, assistant treasurer.

Miss Pauline F. Varnum is registrar; Mrs. Charles Watt, historian; Miss Edith Baldwin, librarian and Mrs. Benjamin F. Ashworth, curator.

THE NATIONAL Society for the Daughters of the American Revolution was formed on the efforts of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the president. The group promotes the preservation of documents and relics and the records of individual soldiers in the Revolution.

To be eligible, a woman just be at least 18 and be a descendant of aman or woman who, with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American independence, served as a soldier, sailor of civil officer in one of the several colonies or of someone who rendered material aid to the Revolutionary cause. An applicant must also be found to be personally acceptable to the society.

The National Society owns an entire city block, between C and D Streets, in Washington D.C, including the Memorial Continetal Hall completed in 1910, the Administration Building and Constitution Hall, dedicated in 1929. The buildings are the largest in the world built and financed entirely by a women's organization.

Spalding House is rich in historical treasures

LOWELL — The 216-year-old yellow house at 383 Pawtucket St., is the pride and joy of every member of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American revolution. Known as the Spalding House, it enshrines the hundreds of treasures and memorabilia with which the chapter has been endowed to make it veritable museum of Revolutionary War era mementos.

The Spalding House stands on part of what was an Indian Reservation known as "Great Neck." According to Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller, 79-year-old chapter member who has written and rewritten records pertaining to the chapter and its home, the land was sold by the Wamesit Tribe of Indians to Robert Hildreth who built the house in 1761. He later sold it to Reuben Hamblett who in 1768 sold it to Moses Davis who used it as as inn.

The next owner,Joseph Tyler sold it to Capt. John Ford who kept it for about 13 years and sold it to Andrew Fletcher. In 1790 Nathaniel Ropes of Salem became its owner and he sold it to Joel Spalding who passed it on to his family. After the death of the last member of the family, Mrs. Henry A. Lambert bought the property and graciously invited members of the Molly Varnum chapter to hold their meetings there, later convincing them that they should own the house, because it had belonged to the families of three Revolutionary War soldiers and four other patriots.

Restoration of the house began almost immediately after the chapter purchased it for $3500. It was opened and dedicated Dec. 18, 1906.

FROM THE front door, one steps into the large entrance hall and immediately sees the corner fireplace with its antique hanging kettles, copper teapot, bellows, Hessian Soldier Andirons, powder shell knapsack and water canteens. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns, muskets, swords and a powder horn.

On the walls hand pictures of the Declaration of Independence, several of George Washington and an original copy of one of the first War department claims given in 1831 to Joseph David. A private, he was to receive the amount of $76.66 twice a year.

In the corner to the right of the door stands a very old tall grandfather clock. The room has two tables topped with brochures pertaining to the membership and its wide painted floor boards are covered with a bright braided rug.

The front room parlor to the left of the entrance hall is furnished with a horsehair sofa, a Chippendale table with folding legs, a very old two-drawer sewing table, an old mahogany secretary, a mahogany card table with lyre centre standard, a Windsor rocking chair, and a Chippendale mirror with brass eagle. It is a mecca of silhouettes, paintings and pictures of the Continental Congress, cupboards of old pitchers, bowls, pewter and china. Commanding the visitor's attention are the old Haskell Family's viol, a brass warming pan, a shell box, hanging lamps, the James G. Butrick family bible'and a 1839 Lowell Directory to mention but a few.

HIGHLIGHTING the Spalding Room are portraits of the Spalding Family, the old secretary which was in this room when the family lived in the house and the mantel and fireplace with its brass tablet, candlesticks, and lamp enhancements.

Describing the Tap Room, Mrs. George Morse, whose ancestor Moses Davis was innkeeper back in the days when the Tavern which became the Spalding House was the first stop for raftsmen on their river journey to the sea, said that on those occasions the rafters rang with laughter, tall stories and gossip.

The Tap Room's old fireplace is filled with Revolutionary relics and its corner cupboard is replete with colonial china treasures. Of special interest in the room is the portrait of Mary Greeley Morrison, a devoted chapter member who left a trust fund for the maintenance and insurance of the house.

Walking into the West Parlor, Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller held everyone's interest as she related her ancestors' accounts of how the ladies of the era congregated and chatted in this room while their men gathered in the Tap Room on stop overs on their journeys to Boston or to points north.

The bracket lamps on the wall are very old and were the original oil lamps from the Reade home on Lakeview Avenue. Among the scores of other itmes of interest are candle snuffers, an egg cooker, an old footstove, fluting irons, candle molds and canes belonging to Gen. Joseph Bradley Varnum and Col. Dimon.

IN THE OLD historic raftered kitchen is the fireplace along side of which is the tiny door with steps leading upward to what was the hiding place of run-away refugees who used this secret passageway to escape to Canada. The cupboard holds the dishes currently used for chapter meetings. The kitchen walls are covered with pictures of Martin Van Buren, George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Women of American Revolution

By RODERICK NORDELL
© Christian Science Monitor

I have just realized that the deadline for this assignment on the role of women during the American Revolution falls on the same day as my wedding anniversary. So, knowing my co-celebrant's views on men who pay lip service to how much they owe their wives and mothers, I am a little reluctant to point out how much I have belatedly discovered America owes to the likes of:

—Mercy Otis Warren, who helped kindle rebellion

—Abigail Adams, who challenged the "iniquitous" absurdity of men keeping slaves while fighting in the name of liberty.

—Phillis Wheatley, who emerged from slavery to become a poet of peace and freedom.

—Deborah Sampson, who fought as Pvt. Robert Shurtleff in the Revolutionary Army and removed a bullet from her own thigh to avoid detection and cashiering as a woman.

—Eliza Lucas Pinckney, who initiated the development of indigo into an export business valued at more than a million pounds a year.

—And Mary Bartlett . . . Mary who?

If her name sounds less familiar than the others, it is because she was simply one of the many unsung women who stayed home and minded the store while the Founding Fathers were away founding.

Mrs. Bartlett managed the family farm in New Hampshire while her husband was at the Continental Congress. She is one of the women being studied by a Cornell scholar, Dr. Mary Beth Norton, who observes that "the war produced a generation of extremely independent women"—while the law lagged behind, firmly subordinating women to men.

There were thousands of anonymous women keeping the rest of the country going for every Molly Pitcher who found a niche in the history books by joining her husband.

THE WHOLE spectrum of revolutionary womanhood is getting bicentennial attention, as exemplified by such forthcoming books as Dr. Linda DePauw's "Founding Mothers: Women of America in the Revolutionary Era" (Houghton Mifflin) and Elizabeth Evans' documentary record from diaries and journals, "Weathering the Storm: Women of the American Revolution" (Scribner's).

I tried calling a friend, actress Joanne Hamlin, who has been researching and performing a one-woman show portraying notable women from stage and television audiences.

She immediately thought of Mercy Warren, whose scorching satires on colonial government not only fired dissent but called for such ambitious technical effects as "a swarm of . . . sycophants, hungry harpies, and unprincipled danglers, collected from the neighboring villages, hovering over the stage in the shape of locusts, led by Massachusettensis in the form of a basilisk."

One of her attacks on Tory politicians was printed the day before the Battle of Lexington.

After independence she wrote and fought to preserve what had been won. At 60 she stood shoulder to shoulder with Samuel Adams in the anti-Federalist political wars, challenging the unamended Constitution and those who favored "the consolidation of a strong government on any or no principles; and are for supporting it by force, at the risque of distorting the fairest features in the political face of America."

JOHN ADAMS said Mercy Warren's pen had "no equal that I know of in this country" — though he protested the way she pictured him in her pioneering history of the Revolution.

Meanwhile, Mercy's friend Abigail Adams was not only taking care of things at home but writing to husband John and son John Quincy, both to become presidents. "Give me the man I love," she would write in one letter, while protesting the legal and poltiical subjection of women in another.

After casting her influence on the side of moral and religious integrity, she nevertheless had no illusions about the perfection of people or governments. "If all America is to be ruined and undone by a pack of cowards and knaves, I wish to know it," she writes.

She says of politicis, "It is just as natural for me to fall upon them as to breathe." And, as for money, "I have studied, and do study, every method of economy in my powers; otherwise a mint of money would not support a family."

ELIZA LUCAS learned about economy before the war when, at the age of 16, she was left with the management of a house and three plantations in South Carolina. She tried various crops, and her experiments with indigo paid off in a thriving export trade.

Years later, as the widow of Col. Charles Pinckney, she had to take charge again, resisting her Enlish sympathies to support her son sin the fight for freedom.

In Boston another 16-year-old was publishing a poem, and in a few years her first book would be published. She was Phillis Wheatley, a slave given the rare privilege of an education.

DEBORAH SAMPSON
. . . fought as Pvt. Robert Shurtleff in the Revolution.

During the siege of Boston she wrote a tribute to George Washington, winning from him a tribute in return. After the war, with a reputation in both Britain and America, she began her "Liberty and Peace" with a short, eloquent phrase: "Lo freedom comes."

Education also was bestowed unexpectedly on a Marblehead, Mass., scrubbing girl, Agnes Surriage, who caught the interest of Charles Henry Frankland, Collector of the Port of Boston. Eventually he married her, and as Lady Frankland — of Loyalist persuasion — she wanted to reduce the risks of 1775 by leaving her Hopkinton estate for her Boston mansion.

THE PROVINCIAL Congress gave her permission to travel, according to a recent article in the New England Galaxy magazine.

But she was stopped by soldiers, in defiance of her congressional pass, and here is where the situation brought up the principle of civilian control of the armed forces, which the United States still seeks to protect today.

Soon the soldiers were countermanded, and Lady Frankland was provided an escort to her mansion (where she opened the dining hall to tend the wounds of British soldiers from the Battle of Bunker Hill). And the Provisional Congress let it be known that "the Congress was determined to retain their power over the military."

Other echoes of today are heard in some legal ramifications of the story of Deborah Sampson, who bound her breasts, put on men's clothing, and managed to serve as a soldier for a year and a half without being found out.

ONE CAN ALMOST imagine the present U.S. Supreme Court being brought into her later legal efforts, as a women, to obtain her back pay and pension as a veteran — and her widower's efforts to obtain the benefits due a soldier's widow. The widower's case was decided in his favor, but only after his own passing, so the benefits went to the heirs.

Which brings a reporter on his wedding anniversary back to Mary Bartlett — Mary who? — and all the other unhistoried but no less free-spirited American women without whom, I believe I can say without fear of contradiction, their country's bicentennial would not be what it is today.

Lowell's DAR— longtime genealogists

By MARGUERITE LYONS

LOWELL — Long before the "Roots" craze hit the American public, the Daughters of the American Revolution were interested in genealogy, tracing their members' ancestors back to the patriots of the American Revolution

In Lowell, the DAR chapter, formed in 1894 and named after patriot Molly Varnum, has 90 members and owns the history-rich Spalding House on Pawtucket Street

THE MOLLY VARNUM Chapter of the DAR was named in honor of the wife of General Joseph Bradley Varnum of Dracut. She was the daughter of Jacob Butler of Pelham, N.H., and of Mary Eames Butler

Born June 4, 1750, Molly Varnum, like other patriotic women during the struggle for independence was devoted to the cause for which her husband and father fought. She wove the cloth to equip the Dracut troops and she toiled early and late, denying herself the comforts of life and home, that she might give more time to the defenders of her country

The Molly Varnum chapter was founded Oct 30,1894 by Mrs. Frederick L. Greenhalge, wife of Gov. Greenhalge and the first meeting was held at their home on Wyman Street with 30 ladies attending. As founder, Mrs. Greenhalge was also the first regent of the chapter Meetings were held in the homes of the members until membership grew too large, and Memorial Hall was rented

IN 1906, the chapter purchased the Spalding House from Mrs. Henry Lambert, a descendant of Capt. John Ford, who led the Minute Men from Chelmsford against the British at Lexington and Concord and who took part in every succeeding battle of the Revolution.

The last residents of the Spalding House, built in 1761, were Dr. Joel Spalding and his sister, Miss Sarah Spalding. Joel was the father of Jonathan who bought the house in 1790. He was a member of the Chelmsford Company during the Revolution. Owners of the house from the time it was built until it came into the possession of the Spaldings included Andrew Fletcher, Joseph Tyler, Moses Davis, who also had an interest in the sawmill located on the bank of the Merrimack River near the rear of the old house. It was also owned by Nathaniel Ropes, Capt. Ford, Reuben Hamblett and Dr. Robert Hildreth. All these names are closely connected with the history of the City of Lowell

Situated on Great Country Road, now known as Pawtucket Street, the Spalding House was a famous stopping place for the old stage coaches which travelled through this area.

During the years when it was known as the "Davis Tavern" the house was renowned as a rallying place for the sturdy raftsmen whose rafts of logs being poled from the New Hampshire forests to Newburyport were often broken up by the Pawtucket Rapids. After the raftsmen had retrieved their logs, placed them on great ox teams waiting to carry them below the rapids and remake them into rafts to continue their journey to the sea, they sought a few hours of relaxation at the tavern before resuming their venture down the Merrimack.

REPLETE WITH history and legend, the house was also the haven for many a slave and refugee who was helped to escape by Dr. Spalding. Chapter members tell how he would open a tiny side door in the raftered kitchen and let the runaway slaves hide in the secret passage way behind the fireplace until dark when, after having been fed by the kind doctor would vanish and be on their way to Canada.

On a gay note

...Nancy Elizabeth Pickett Harrison, whose ancestor of the Revolutionary Days is Thomas Stearns, is shown seated at the antique small piano displayed beside the large spinning wheel on the platform of Pentucket Hall on the second floor of the Spalding House. She is wearing a morning wrapper, "turn-of-the-century" fashion item made of blue and white print with vestoon cording around the collar and sleeves.

Bought by the Molly Varnum Chapter for $3500, the house underwent its initial repairs at a cost of $900. Since then the chapter has maintained it and today the Spalding House, a veritable museum of Revolutinnary era memorabilia, is filled with beautiful antiques and over 800 catalogued items bequeathed to the chapter by its members of the past and of the present.

DAR members are not women who live in the past,(as they have so often been labelled) but rather women who possess a great spirit of patriotism and who wish to share it and pass it on to their own and future generations.

Elizabeth Holt Spiller, who has written the history of the chapter for both it 50th and 75th anniversary observances and who has compiled its records over the years, will mark her 80th birthday next month. An active member, Mrs. Spiller knows the history of every item in the Spalding House and delights in relating stories about the happenings under its roof.

HER UNCLE, Algie A. Holt, town clerk of Peterborough, N.H. for 35 years, was the first member of the Holt family to become interested in tracing the family lineage to the immigrant ancestor. "Through diligence and much research he traced every generation back to John and Priscilla Alden," said Mrs. Spiller.

She explained that her uncle's aunt, Mrs. C. Spalding of Nashua, N.H. had authentic lineage back to the Revolutionary ancestor so that she could be a member of the DAR, Nashua chapter. This ancestor, she said, was Christopher Thayer, Jr. After her uncle's death, her aunt gave her all his precious papers so that she could continue further research of John and Priscilla Alden lineage in England. Doing so she completed family lineage for other family lines, namely: Adams, Buckminster, Dyson, Holt, Thayer and Willman.

"'Roots' is a very fascinating and challenging subject and a most pleasant pastime and it is delightful to know that so many people of today's younger generation are interested in theirs," said Mrs. Spiller.

"I JOINED the DAR in 1938, using the papers of my aunt, Mrs. Susan Sprague," said Miss Louise Thompson, current regent of the Molly Varnum chapter. Her ancester was Francis Libby.

She originally joined the Old Bay State chapter and served as its secretary and later as its regent holding membership until that chapter disbanded. Miss Thompson has been vice regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter and its regent since 1973.

" Moses Davis, a soldier in the Revolutionary War and the owner of the Spalding House in 1766 was my ancestor," said Mrs. George J. (Marion Davis) Morse, who joined the chapter in 1941 and served as its pianist, registrar and recording secretary.

"It was my ancestor who, while he owned and lived in the Spalding House conducted a tavern, later moving it to Davis Square, (Central, Gorham and Thorndike Sts.) later named Gallagher Square," said Mrs. Morse She has been interested in genealogy and historical events all her life and is especially interested in those events relating to the City of Lowell, its residents and industries.

Mrs. Morse's sister, daughter and three granddaughters are members of the Molly Varnum Chapter

MRS. LOUIS A. Biron, the former Doris Russell, daughter of the late Robert Dustan Russell, prominent Chelmsford businessman, and of Mrs. Elva Bicknell Russell of Dalton Road, says it was growing up with the story of Hannah Dustan, her sixth generation great-grandmother that inspired her to look into the genealogy of her family. Doing so she discovered that a Nathaniel Currier (1741-1826) was indeed a patriot and ancestor. He lived in Pelham

...were represented in the Cloak Room of the Spalding House the day this picture was taken. There are two between Mrs. Francis (Ruth Martin) McNamara and her grand-daughter, Meredith Louise Bradstreet Whitaker of Monte Sereno, Calif., and several more generations between them and Mrs. McNamara's Revolutinary era ancestor Andrew French, Jr., The two are admiring the contents of General Joseph Bradley Varnum's old wooden leather-covered trunk. Mrs. McNamara is displaying his tall hat and her 10-year-old granddaughter, seated on the quilt-covered four-poster bed, is scrutinizing the medicine bag that traveled everywhere with the general. Mrs. McNamara is attired in one of the first cotton dresses made in Lowell, a matching shawl and poke bonnet. Meredith Louise is wearing a gay nineties frock which belonged to Mary Spalding Russell.

...and wearing her great-grandmother's party dress, Mrs. Louis A. (Doris Russell) Biron, whose ancestry dates back to Hannah Dustan, opens the corner cupboard in the Tap Room. It contains a helmet pitcher which belonged to Molly Varnum, a Benjamin Franklin mug and a silver mote spoon which belonged to Dr. Amos Bradley's great, great-grandmother. Also in the cupboard is a powder horn flask used in battle at Concord and several gold, blue and ruby lustre plates and sugar bowls. To the left hangs a large globe lamp and between the flags is an antique china punch bowl and ladle on a mahogany table.

DAR in hopeful note

By Mary Sarah King

How does America 1976 square with the ideals of America 1776?

Has America fulfilled its promises to its revolutionary heroes?

The Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution voiced their own opinions yesterday between sessions of their state conference in Boston.

And the consensus was that the country will survive as long as there's the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

—Pauline Revere Taylor, a direct descendent of Paul Revere: "I think if our ancestors came back, they'd be stunned to see conditions today, but things would be much worse if it were not for our fine Constitution." She and her husband, Sidney, a retired naval officer, born in England, now live in Webster, N.H. They are onetime residents of Washington, D.C., and friends of the Richard M. Nixons.

—Camellia Kurt Ciocca of Holliston feels that the promises made to her ancestors "are being transgressed by the poor decisions of the Supreme Court that honor individual concerns rather than the common good." Regent of Framingham chapter, she's a descendent of David Lukens, a Quaker, who joined the Quaker Blue regiment to fight for liberty and was read out of his meeting house.

— Faith Kurt Tiberio, state vice regent of the Massachusetts DAR, and Mrs. Ciocca's sister: "I feel that the people of the United States have a vision — we've always had one, but I think that our ancestors would deplore the waste that's around us. They'd deplore the creeping socialism in our government. We've shaken the royal shackles to take on the irons of socialism, and I think they would hate that."

— Marion L. Decrow, 84, is a 63-year-member of the Boston Tea Party Chapter. She says: "America's still living as the Constitution intended it should. There have been some errors, but I think that the troubles we've gone through lately will be all ironed out because there are enough real Americans left to carry on." Chapter, state and national leader, she feels that the country is enriched by contributions of newcomers to the land.

— Rebecca Jaquith Rupright of Saugus has three ancestors who fought at the battle of Lexington: Samuel Eames, John Eames, his father, and Samuel Sprake Jr., all Wilmington farmers, and a fourth Jonathan Jaquith. "America has done a considerable amount of good in the world, but what we lack now is the simplicity of our ancestors. We don't have their same dedication and common goals today. I'm aware that my sons went into Vietnam because I believe in America, but I can understand why others did not. However, I'm quite frankly confused about taxation without representation being the reason for the revolutionary war when I look at my own paycheck and see how much taxes I still have to pay — and still without the proper representation."

Robert Dawes of Hudson, a Son of the American Revolution, is a 13th generation descendent of William Dawes, who rode overland from Boston through British lines and on to warn Hancock and Adams before joining Revere and Prescott.

He says: "For anyone who is willing to sacrifice as much as the patriots of old did, there's plenty of room for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness — but for those too lazy to bear their responsibilities, nothing."

— Janet Edith Roby, 17-year-old senior at Plymouth Carver Regional High School, was selected as the DAR's outstanding good citizen of 1975. She expressed what it meant to her to be an American. "It means that I'm free to carry on my way of life, to do what I'm interested in, and to work for a better future. And even though things like Watergate happen, with it's disclosure, we wouldn't have the opportunity to find out what's wrong with our government." She received the DAR $1000 scholarship which she will apply to Boston College School of Nursing, and a Paul Revere bowl.

— Mrs. Raymond F. Fleck, state regent, says: "We've fallen down on our forefathers because of the permissiveness, the lack of discipline in the home. I'm glad our ancestors did what they did, but that's all wasted unless I myself personally carry on their ideals and pass them on to my children."

DAR stresses positive at Bicentennial meeting

By Bruce McCabe
Globe Staff

Several hundred delegates and alternates of the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution — many dressed in colonial garb — convened their 82d state conference at the Copley Plaza Hotel yesterday, and, perhaps to the disappointment of some of their critics, looked quite hale.

The Bicentennial may have something to do with it. As one observer of the organization put it: "Presumably, this is what they've been waiting for."

A number of awards were made and reports given with certain patriotic overtones but there was little said publicly that could be disagreed with by almost anyone of any political persuasion. The strongest speech was delivered by Mrs. Frederick T. Morse, chaplain general of the National Society of the DAR, but her remarks were scarcely more controversial than those of the average Fourth of July orator:

"It is my belief that in this year of our Bicentennial, particularly, patriotism and love of country should grow ever deeper, and that we should resist the efforts of visionaries to destroy all feelings of nationalism and devotion to our native land. In the words of Abraham Lincoln: 'If there is anything which it is the duty of the whole people to never entrust to any hands but their own — that thing is the preservation and perpetuity of their own liberties and institutions'."

Perhaps the most emotional tribute to the country was expressed in a poem written for the occasion by Anestis J. Ghanotakis, an Ethiopian-born Greek who is a program analyst in the state Dept. of Public Health's Office of Comprehensive Health Planning, and who received the DAR Medal for Americanism. Ghanotakis, who is also a published poet, wrote a poem entitled "Sweet And Bitter Fruits," an excerpt of which reads:

"Since my childhood, America, you were for me the frontier/ I came here to further my education, to get experience/ And then go back to my homeland . . ./ But like a siren, you enchanted my mind."

The Bicentennial flavoring to the events was provided by the colonial dress, which many of the women made themselves and wore as participants in a "Spirit of '76" fashion show. It was also provided by the nature of some of the matters discussed.

For example, the issue which generated the most controversy seemed to be a request from the curator of Continental Hall, a DAR building in Washington, D.C., to enhance the lighting in the building's Hancock-Adams Room, which commemorates the night of April 18, 1775, when Paul Revere came to Rev. Jonas Clarke's house in Lexington to warn John Hancock and Samuel Adams that the British were seeking to capture them and try them in Britain for treason. What specifically put off several of the delegates was the curator's request for $200 to do the lighting job, and forthwith. After some discussion, it was voted to examine the proposition further.

One of the events which appeared to precipitate the most enthusiasm was the recovery of a plaque commemorating the site on which Nathaniel, David, Thomas and Josiah Bradlee, with John Fulton and assisted by Sarah Bradlee Fulton, disguised themselves as Mohawk Indians and took part in throwing tea into Boston Harbor Dec. 16, 1773. The tablet, placed March 17, 1901, by the state DAR's Boston Tea Party Chapter, disappeared when the house on the site was demolished. Ultimately, it turned up in the hands of Robert S. Snyder, a Newtonville engineer, who presented it to the grateful Daughters yesterday.

Both the old and the new were given their proper due at the meeting. Mrs. Roscoe Frame, 91, of Ipswich, was honored for her 72-year membership in the organization. And six Massachusetts high school seniors, three girls and three boys, were presented Good Citizenship awards. It was the first time in the group's history that boys were considered eligible for the awards.

Although much of the publicity about the DAR centers around its exclusiveness — a member must prove she is descended from a patriot or soldier in the American Revolution — the organization supports such causes as schools in Appalachia and the education and financial assistance of American Indian youth and some reference was made to these endeavors, as well as to the Hillside School in Marlboro, a school for boys from broken homes, which the state DAR helps support.

Most of the emphasis however, was on patriotism and good citizenship, not in particularly strident tones but in as cultivated a manner as possible. As Asa Phillips, president of the state Sons of the American Revolution, and a head table guest put it, in a phrase that summed up the occasion:

““It's not the best of times, it's not the worst of times. It's our times."

THE SUNDAY SUN, LOWELL, MASS., JAN. 2, 1977 C5

Mrs. Rogers holds leading role among Congressional women

By CHRIS BLACK
Sun Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — When her husband died, leaving her a childless widow at the age of 44, Edith Nourse Rogers spurned a future as an idle well-to-do matron and instead embarked upon a career in politics.

She won election to the U.S. House in December 1925, rolling up more votes than her late husband John Jacob Rogers had the previous autumn and went on to have the longest incumbency, 35 years, of any woman to ever serve in Congress.

Lowell's former congresswoman is one of the 95 subjects of a new publication "Women in Congress, 1917 to 1976," released by a Congressional committee this week.

SHE WAS THE seventh woman ever elected to Congress, just five years after women won the right to vote.

"Some women who have succeeded their husbands in politics have turned out to be more prominent than their husbands. Edith Nourse Rogers stands out as an example of this kind of political success," begins a biographical account of the congresswoman in the glossy publication.

EDITH NORSE ROGERS
...served for 35 years

She was born in Saco, Maine in 1881. She attended Rogers Hall School in Lowell and Madame Juliens School in Paris, France before marrying Rogers.

During World War I she served as a Red Cross nurse. That exposure kindled a lifelong interest in veterans, particularly disabled veterans.

"Three presidents", the book recounts, "named her their personal ombudsman, transmitting their requests and their problems to the White House.

She became chairman of the Veterans Affairs committee and is credited with pushing through landmark legislation creating the national network of veterans hospitals, the GI Bill of Rights and the creation of women's branches of the Armed Services".

According to the book, "although Editk Rogers was a Republican, she clamed many friends among the Democrats. When the Democratic-controlled state legislature began sharpening their knives to carve up her district, House Speaker John McCormack interceded to prevent its division."

MRS. ROGERS, noted for her flowered hats in later years, died unexpectedly in Boston in 1960 at tke age of 79, just days before the primary election. F. Bradford Morse, deputy director of the Veterans Administration and a former Lowell city councillor, ran on stickers to win the GOP nomination and went on to win her seat which he held until retiring in 1972 to accept a high position at the United Nations.

Only two other women ever served in Congress from Massachusetts, Boston City Councilor Louise Day Hicks and Rep. Margaret M. Heckler.

Mrs. Hicks served only one term from 1971 to 1973 and the publication describes it as an uneventful one. She pledged to "Do more for Boston on the Federal Level", but, "As a member of the Education and Labor Committee there was little she could do to fulfill this campaign promise". Redistricting led to her defeat.

MOLLY VARNUM CHAPTER

Daughters of the American Revolution

Established 1894

1976 - 1977

383 Pawtucket St. Lowell, Mass. 01854
Tel. 452-4045

PURPOSE

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a Governnment of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

INSIGNIA

The golden Wheel of the Insignia represents a spinning wheel, the platinum or white gold distaff represents flax, the blue rim and the distaff carry the colors of the Society, and the stars represent the original thirteen colonies.

The Official Insignia of the National Society DAR was adopted May 26, 1891, and patented September 22, 1891.

Reliving the history

...with which the Spalding House is filled Elizabeth Holt Spiller, left, who will be 80 next month and whose ancestry goes back to John and Priscilla Alden, tells the story of the familiar scene in the large entrance hall. Mrs. Spiller is wearing a black sweeping floor length homespun alpaca basque dress with short train and beautiful old red satin cape with padded lining. The dark red petit bonnet of velvet with rhinestone trimming and jawstrings were the touches of fashion enhancement in her great-grandmother's day. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns,muskets, swords and a powder horn. On each side hang a powder shell knapsack and water canteen. In the fireplace are the Hession Soldier Andirons and antique hanging kettles, a copper teapot and bellows. Left, the current regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, Louise Thompson, seated in the front room parlor, describes a segment of its treasures. From left a century old viol, and on the mahogany table a globe lamp on brass stand with prism pendants flanked by two brass candlesticks with prism pendants. In forefront are a set of pewter candleholders and a pewter tea pot which belonged to General and Mrs. J.B. Varnum.

DAR in city has rich history

One of the newer members of the DAR, Mrs. Biron was accepted in 1975 and has served the chapter as publicity chairman and treasurer. She fondly recalls the household items belonging to her grandmother and which had long before belonged to Hannah Dustan, the doughty Indian slayer of 280 years ago.

Mrs. Biron feels that the DAR and its numerous chapters throughout the country have been and will continue to be instrumental in the development of a spirit of patriotism among this generation and perpetuate that spirit in generations to come.

"I became interested in the DAR as a girl encouraged by my mother and my aunt, who were really interested in our geneology," said Nancy Elizabeth Pickett Harrison, also one of the newer members of the chapter.

"My maternal side of the family descended from some of the very earliest settlers who arrived in Salem Harbor on the ship Arbella", she said. "The Revolutionary War record of Thomas Stearns is a part of the family legacy passed down to me and it is on his record that I joined the DAR," she said.

MRS. FRANCIS McNamara, the former Ruth Martin, says it was by accident in 1955, while driving to Lovel, Maine with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Granville (Mabel E. French) Martin to visit relatives that she discovered the key that admitted her to the DAR.

As elderly relatives explained their degree of ancestry she sketched an ancestral chart on the back of an envelope. Intrigued by the anecdotes related by her relatives, she continued to delve into the genealogy and before long the scribblings on the back of the envelope developed into findings that filled a whole roll of shelf paper.

"From that day I was hooked," she said. She bought Oscar Stetson's book titled " The Art of Ancestor Hunting" and traced her ancestry to Andrew French, Jr. Shortly after having been accepted by the DAR in Washington she became a member of the Molly Varnum Chapter.

Turning to her 10-year-old grand-daughter, Meredith Louise Bradstreet Whitaker, who is visiting here from Monte Sereno, Calif., Mrs. McNamara said she plans to share much of the fun of ancestor-hunting with her during her stay.

Meredith Louise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus H. (Carolyn Rand) Whitaker and the direct descendant of Governors Dudley, Wiggin and Bradstreet.

THE LOCAL CHAPTER has 90 members and it meets once a month from September to June. It is committed to observe American History Month in February by sponsoring essay contests on given historic subjects for students in grades five through eight and to recognizing the excellence in the study of American History by awarding DAR certificates of Award and DAR American History medals.

The chapter awards a medal to the top ranking ROTC student at the University of Lowell an annual basis, and it also rewards its Good Citizenship Girls from all the high schools in the Greater-Lowell area.

The chapter, along with all others in the National Society aids St. Mary's School for Indian Girls in Springfield, S.D. and gives scholarships to other Indians who need help. It also contributes to the Tamassee, S.C. DAR School and to Hillside School for boys from broken homes.

Upon request the chapter, will provide American Flags to any institution and it distributes material on patriotism on a regular basis for the purpose of honoring the past, carrying out services in the present and building a firm foundation to safeguard the future.

Officers of the Molly Varnum Chapter include Miss Louise E. Thompson, regent; Mrs. Bert Harless, vice regent; Mrs. William Smith, chaplain; Mrs. George Morse, recording secretary; Miss Helen Butler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis A. Biron, treasurer and Mrs. Francis McNamara, assistant treasurer.

Miss Pauline F. Varnum is registrar; Mrs. Charles Watt, historian; Miss Edith Baldwin, librarian and Mrs. Benjamin F. Ashworth, curator.

THE NATIONAL Society for the Daughters of the American Revolution was formed on the efforts of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the president. The group promotes the preservation of documents and relics and the records of individual soldiers in the Revolution.

To be eligible, a woman just be at least 18 and be a descendant of aman or woman who, with unfailing loyalty to the cause of American independence, served as a soldier, sailor of civil officer in one of the several colonies or of someone who rendered material aid to the Revolutionary cause. An applicant must also be found to be personally acceptable to the society.

The National Society owns an entire city block, between C and D Streets, in Washington D.C, including the Memorial Continetal Hall completed in 1910, the Administration Building and Constitution Hall, dedicated in 1929. The buildings are the largest in the world built and financed entirely by a women's organization.

Spalding House is rich in historical treasures

LOWELL — The 216-year-old yellow house at 383 Pawtucket St., is the pride and joy of every member of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American revolution. Known as the Spalding House, it enshrines the hundreds of treasures and memorabilia with which the chapter has been endowed to make it veritable museum of Revolutionary War era mementos.

The Spalding House stands on part of what was an Indian Reservation known as "Great Neck." According to Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller, 79-year-old chapter member who has written and rewritten records pertaining to the chapter and its home, the land was sold by the Wamesit Tribe of Indians to Robert Hildreth who built the house in 1761. He later sold it to Reuben Hamblett who in 1768 sold it to Moses Davis who used it as as inn.

The next owner,Joseph Tyler sold it to Capt. John Ford who kept it for about 13 years and sold it to Andrew Fletcher. In 1790 Nathaniel Ropes of Salem became its owner and he sold it to Joel Spalding who passed it on to his family. After the death of the last member of the family, Mrs. Henry A. Lambert bought the property and graciously invited members of the Molly Varnum chapter to hold their meetings there, later convincing them that they should own the house, because it had belonged to the families of three Revolutionary War soldiers and four other patriots.

Restoration of the house began almost immediately after the chapter purchased it for $3500. It was opened and dedicated Dec. 18, 1906.

FROM THE front door, one steps into the large entrance hall and immediately sees the corner fireplace with its antique hanging kettles, copper teapot, bellows, Hessian Soldier Andirons, powder shell knapsack and water canteens. Above the fireplace are Revolutionary era guns, muskets, swords and a powder horn.

On the walls hand pictures of the Declaration of Independence, several of George Washington and an original copy of one of the first War department claims given in 1831 to Joseph David. A private, he was to receive the amount of $76.66 twice a year.

In the corner to the right of the door stands a very old tall grandfather clock. The room has two tables topped with brochures pertaining to the membership and its wide painted floor boards are covered with a bright braided rug.

The front room parlor to the left of the entrance hall is furnished with a horsehair sofa, a Chippendale table with folding legs, a very old two-drawer sewing table, an old mahogany secretary, a mahogany card table with lyre centre standard, a Windsor rocking chair, and a Chippendale mirror with brass eagle. It is a mecca of silhouettes, paintings and pictures of the Continental Congress, cupboards of old pitchers, bowls, pewter and china. Commanding the visitor's attention are the old Haskell Family's viol, a brass warming pan, a shell box, hanging lamps, the James G. Butrick family bible'and a 1839 Lowell Directory to mention but a few.

HIGHLIGHTING the Spalding Room are portraits of the Spalding Family, the old secretary which was in this room when the family lived in the house and the mantel and fireplace with its brass tablet, candlesticks, and lamp enhancements.

Describing the Tap Room, Mrs. George Morse, whose ancestor Moses Davis was innkeeper back in the days when the Tavern which became the Spalding House was the first stop for raftsmen on their river journey to the sea, said that on those occasions the rafters rang with laughter, tall stories and gossip.

The Tap Room's old fireplace is filled with Revolutionary relics and its corner cupboard is replete with colonial china treasures. Of special interest in the room is the portrait of Mary Greeley Morrison, a devoted chapter member who left a trust fund for the maintenance and insurance of the house.

Walking into the West Parlor, Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Spiller held everyone's interest as she related her ancestors' accounts of how the ladies of the era congregated and chatted in this room while their men gathered in the Tap Room on stop overs on their journeys to Boston or to points north.

The bracket lamps on the wall are very old and were the original oil lamps from the Reade home on Lakeview Avenue. Among the scores of other itmes of interest are candle snuffers, an egg cooker, an old footstove, fluting irons, candle molds and canes belonging to Gen. Joseph Bradley Varnum and Col. Dimon.

IN THE OLD historic raftered kitchen is the fireplace along side of which is the tiny door with steps leading upward to what was the hiding place of run-away refugees who used this secret passageway to escape to Canada. The cupboard holds the dishes currently used for chapter meetings. The kitchen walls are covered with pictures of Martin Van Buren, George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Lowell's DAR— longtime genealogists

By MARGUERITE LYONS
Sun Staff

LOWELL — Long before the "Roots" craze hit the American public, the Daughters of the American Revolution were interested in genealogy, tracing their members' ancestors back to the patriots of the American Revolution.

In Lowell, the DAR chapter, formed in 1894 and named after patriot Molly Varnum, has 90 members and owns the history-rich Spalding House on Pawtucket Street.

THE MOLLY VARNUM Chapter of the DAR was named in honor of the wife of General Joseph Bradley Varnum of Dracut. She was the daughter of Jacob Butler of Pelham, N.H., and of Mary Eames Butler.

Born June 4, 1750, Molly Varnum, like other patriotic women during the struggle for independence was devoted to the cause for which her husband and father fought. She wove the cloth to equip the Dracut troops and she toiled early and late, denying herself the comforts of life and home, that she might give more time to the defenders of her country.

The Molly Varnum chapter was founded Oct. 30,1894 by Mrs. Frederick L. Greenhalge, wife of Gov. Greenhalge and the first meeting was held at their home on Wyman Street with 30 ladies attending. As founder, Mrs. Greenhalge was also the first regent of the chapter. Meetings were held in the homes of the members until membership grew too large, and Memorial Hall was rented.

IN 1906, the chapter purchased the Spalding House from Mrs. Henry Lambert, a descendant of Capt. John Ford, who led the Minute Men from Chelmsford against the British at Lexington and Concord and who took part in every succeeding battle of the Revolution.

The last residents of the Spalding House, built in 1761, were Dr. Joel Spalding and his sister, Miss Sarah Spalding. Joel was the father of Jonathan who bought the house in 1790. He was a member of the Chelmsford Company during the Revolution. Owners of the house from the time it was built until it came into the possession of the Spaldings included Andrew Fletcher, Joseph Tyler, Moses Davis, who also had an interest in the sawmill located on the bank of the Merrimack River near the rear of the old house. It was also owned by Nathaniel Ropes, Capt. Ford, Reuben Hamblett and Dr. Robert Hildreth. All these names are closely connected with the history of the City of Lowell

Situated on Great Country Road, now known as Pawtucket Street, the Spalding House was a famous stopping place for the old stage coaches which travelled through this area.

During the years when it was known as the "Davis Tavern" the house was renowned as a rallying place for the sturdy raftsmen whose rafts of logs being poled from the New Hampshire forests to Newburyport were often broken up by the Pawtucket Rapids. After the raftsmen had retrieved their logs, placed them on great ox teams waiting to carry them below the rapids and remake them into rafts to continue their journey to the sea, they sought a few hours of relaxation at the tavern before resuming their venture down the Merrimack.

REPLETE WITH history and legend, the se was also the haven for many a slave and ugee who was helped to escape by Dr. alding. Chapter members tell how he would en a tiny side door in the raftered kitchen d let the runaway slaves hide in the secret passage way behind the fireplace until dark when, after having been fed by the kind doctor would vanish and be on their way to Canada.

Bought by the Molly Varnum Chapter for $3500, the house underwent its initial repairs at a cost of $900. Since then the chapter has maintained it and today the Spalding House, a veritable museum of Revolutinnary era memorabilia, is filled with beautiful antiques and over 800 catalogued items bequeathed to the chapter by its members of the past and of the present.

DAR members are not women who live in the past,(as they have so often been labelled) but rather women who possess a great spirit of patriotism and who wish to share it and pass it on to their own and future generations.

Elizabeth Holt Spiller, who has written the history of the chapter for both it 50th and 75th anniversary observances and who has compiled its records over the years, will mark her 80th birthday next month. An active member, Mrs. Spiller knows the history of every item in the Spalding House and delights in relating stories about the happenings under its roof.

HER UNCLE, Algie A. Holt, town clerk of Peterborough, N.H. for 35 years, was the first member of the Holt family to become interested in tracing the family lineage to the immigrant ancestor. "Through diligence and much research he traced every generation back to John and Priscilla Alden," said Mrs. Spiller.

She explained that her uncle's aunt, Mrs. C. Spalding of Nashua, N.H. had authentic lineage back to the Revolutionary ancestor so that she could be a member of the DAR, Nashua chapter. This ancestor, she said, was Christopher Thayer, Jr. After her uncle's death, her aunt gave her all his precious papers so that she could continue further research of John and Priscilla Alden lineage in England. Doing so she completed family lineage for other family lines, namely: Adams, Buckminster, Dyson, Holt, Thayer and Willman.

"'Roots' is a very fascinating and challenging subject and a most pleasant pastime and it is delightful to know that so many people of today's younger generation are interested in theirs," said Mrs. Spiller.

"I JOINED the DAR in 1938, using the papers of my aunt, Mrs. Susan Sprague," said Miss Louise Thompson, current regent of the Molly Varnum chapter. Her ancester was Francis Libby.

She originally joined the Old Bay State chapter and served as its secretary and later as its regent holding membership until that chapter disbanded. Miss Thompson has been vice regent of the Molly Varnum Chapter and its regent since 1973.

" Moses Davis,. a soldier in the Revolutionary War and the owner of the Spalding House in 1766 was my ancestor," said Mrs. George J. (Marion Davis) Morse, who joined the chapter in 1941 and served as its pianist, registrar and recording secretary.

"It was my ancestor who, while he owned and lived in the Spalding House conducted a tavern, later moving it to Davis Square, (Central, Gorham and Thorndike Sts.) later named Gallagher Square," said Mrs. Morse. She has been interested in genealogy and historical events all her life and is especially interested in those events relating to the City of Lowell, its residents and industries.

Mrs. Morse's sister, daughter and three granddaughters are members of the Molly Varnum Chapter.

MRS. LOUIS A. Biron, the former Doris Russell, daughter of the late Robert Dustan Russell, prominent Chelmsford businessman, and of Mrs. Elva Bicknell Russell of Dalton Road, says it was growing up with the story of Hannah Dustan, her sixth generation great-grandmother that inspired her to look into the genealogy of her family. Doing so she discovered that a Nathaniel Currier (1741-1826) was indeed a patriot and ancestor. He lived in Pelham.

Many generations

...were represented in the Cloak Room of the Spalding House the day this picture was taken. There are two between Mrs. Francis (Ruth Martin) McNamara and her grand-daughter, Meredith Louise Bradstreet Whitaker of Monte Sereno, Calif., and several more generations between them and Mrs. McNamara's Revolutinary era ancestor Andrew French, Jr., The two are admiring the contents of General Joseph Bradley Varnum's old wooden leather-covered trunk. Mrs. McNamara is displaying his tall hat and her 10-year-old granddaughter, seated on the quilt-covered four-poster bed, is scrutinizing the medicine bag that traveled everywhere with the general. Mrs. McNamara is attired in one of the first cotton dresses made in Lowell, a matching shawl and poke bonnet. Meredith Louise is wearing a gay nineties frock which belonged to Mary Spalding Russell.

Using key to the past

...and wearing her great-grandmother's party dress, Mrs. Louis A. (Doris Russell) Biron, whose ancestry dates back to Hannah Dustan, opens the corner cupboard in the Tap Room. It contains a helmet pitcher which belonged to Molly Varnum, a Benjamin Franklin mug and a silver mote spoon which belonged to Dr. Amos Bradley's great, great-grandmother. Also in the cupboard is a powder horn flask used in battle at Concord and several gold, blue and ruby lustre plates and sugar bowls. To the left hangs a large globe lamp and between the flags is an antique china punch bowl and ladle on a mahogany table.

PURPOSE

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon these principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

INSIGNIA

The golden Wheel of the Insignia represents a spinning wheel, the platinum or white gold distaff represents flax, the blue rim and the distaff carry the colors of the Society, and the stars represent the original thirteen colonies.

The Official Insignia of the National Society DAR was adopted May 26, 1891, and patented September 22, 1891.

A Proclamation

Whereas The Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, (DAR) is dedicated to fostering true patriotism, love of country and the developing of an enlightened public; and

Whereas September 17, 1981, marks the one hundred ninety-fourth anniversary of the drafting of the Constitutional Convention; and

Whereas To accord official recognition to this memorable anniversary, and to the patriotic exercise that will form a noteworthy feature of the occasion, seems fitting and proper.

Now, Therefore, I, Robert C. Maguire, Mayor of the City of Lowell, Massachusetts, do hereby proclaim the week of September 17 - 23, 1981 as

"CONSTITUTION WEEK"

Given this 17th day of July 1981

CONSTITUTION WEEK

September 17-23 has been set aside again this year as Constitution Week; what is your school doing to mark this important week????? Did you know that this document has been copied, paraphrased and used by many, many countries since it was written and distributed in 1787? Did you know that George Washington was the Chairman of the Constitutional Convention, and that he made his many contributions, not in the floor debates, but in the private conversations in the hallways, corridors, and eating establishments?

Yes, this document was one of a kind, world-famous, known by friend and foe alike. We should indeed help our neighbors learn of its meaning, and its history. HELP US PASS THE WORD, PLEASE.

CONSTITUTION WEEK—SEPTEMBER 17-23

PREAMBLE OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WE THE PEOPLE of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America

National Defender

Constitution Week

The Constitution of the United States of America is the safeguard of all our liberties, champion of our freedoms. The purposes of the observance of Constitution Week are to recall to the American people the true significance of the events which occurred during September, 1787; to revitalize appreciation of our great heritage; and to emphasize the responsibility of good citizenship in protecting the Constitution in the present and preserving it for posterity.

Miss Gertrude Carraway, while President General, was responsible for the annual designation of September 17–23 as Constitution Week. She conceived the idea during a trip West in March 1955 and prepared a tentative Resolution submitted to the National Chairman of the Resolutions Committee, NSDAR. This was adopted April 21, 1955, by the Continental Congress, as part of the Resolution on the theme for the ensuing year; "Protect America's Future through Patriotic Education."

As usual, Members of the United States Congress received copies of the DAR Resolutions and at a Flag presentation by the Executive Committee to the Senate on June 7 this Resolution about Constitution Week was discussed, after which Senator William F. Knowland of California on June 14 introduced Senate Concurrent Resolution 140, authorizing and requesting President Eisenhower to follow the DAR example by proclaiming September 17–23 as Constitution Week. Following passage of this Resolution by both Houses of Congress, President Eisenhower issued his proclamation on August 19, 1955.

The first annual observance of Constitution Week was so successful that on January 5, 1956, Senator Knowland introduced a Senate Joint Resolution to have the President designate September 17–23 every year as Constitution Week. This Resolution was adopted July 23 and signed into Public Law 915, August 2, 1956. For his patriotic aid and interest along this line Senator Knowland received an Award of Commendation from the DAR Continental Congress in April, 1956.

PURPOSE

Use: The PLEDGE of ALLEGIANCE TO THE FLAG of THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable, established upon these principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

INSIGNIA

The golden Wheel of the Insignia represents a spinning wheel, the platinum or white gold distaff represents flax, the blue rim and the distaff carry the colors of the Society, and the stars represent the original thirteen colonies

The Official Insignia of the National Society DAR was adopted May 26, 1891, and patented September 22, 1891

CONSTITUTION WEEK

September 17-23 has been set aside again this year as Constitution Week; what is your school doing to mark this important week????? Did you know that this document has been copied, paraphrased and used by many, many countries since it was written and distributed in 1787? Did you know that George Washington was the Chairman of the Constitutional Convention, and that he made his many contributions, not in the floor debates, but in the private conversations in the hallways, corridors, and eating establishments?

Yes, this document was one of a kind, world-famous, known by friend and foe alike. We should indeed help our neighbors learn of its meaning, and its history. HELP US PASS THE WORD, PLEASE.

CONSTITUTION WEEK—SEPTEMBER 17-23

PREAMBLE OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WE THE PEOPLE of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America

National Defender

Constitution Week

The Constitution of the United States of America is the safeguard of all our liberties, champion of our freedoms. The purposes of the observance of Constitution Week are to recall to the American people the true significance of the events which occurred during September, 1787; to revitalize appreciation of our great heritage; and to emphasize the responsibility of good citizenship in protecting the Constitution in the present and preserving it for posterity.

Miss Gertrude Carraway, while President General, was responsible for the annual designation of September 17–23 as Constitution Week. She conceived the idea during a trip West in March 1955 and prepared a tentative Resolution submitted to the National Chairman of the Resolutions Committee, NSDAR. This was adopted April 21, 1955, by the Continental Congress, as part of the Resolution on the theme for the ensuing year; "Protect America's Future through Patriotic Education."

As usual, Members of the United States Congress received copies of the DAR Resolutions and at a Flag presentation by the Executive Committee to the Senate on June 7 this Resolution about Constitution Week was discussed, after which Senator William F. Knowland of California on June 14 introduced Senate Concurrent Resolution 140, authorizing and requesting President Eisenhower to follow the DAR example by proclaiming September 17–23 as Constitution Week. Following passage of this Resolution by both Houses of Congress, President Eisenhower issued his proclamation on August 19, 1955.

The first annual observance of Constitution Week was so successful that on January 5, 1956, Senator Knowland introduced a Senate Joint Resolution to have the President designate September 17–23 every year as Constitution Week. This Resolution was adopted July 23 and signed into Public Law 915, August 2, 1956. For his patriotic aid and interest along this line Senator Knowland received an Award of Commendation from the DAR Continental Congress in April, 1956.

Dear Mrs. Whiting,

This brief note is to express my appreciation for your consistent willingness to open the Spaulding House to my "History of Lowell" class at the University of Lowell. The comments from the students are uniformly favorable and the House makes a valuable addition to our schedule for that particular tour.

Once again, I deeply appreciate your thoughtfulness and consistent support.

Molly Varnum chapter DAR honors "Good Citizen Girls"

LOWELL — Members of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution highlighted their April meeting with the presentation of pins and copies of the Massachusetts Bicentennial Book to the five winners of the Good Citizen Girls contest sponsored by the chapter.

Helen Butler, chairman of the Good Citizens committee and secretary of the chapter, presented the awards to Kathryn Longchamp of Chelmsford High School, Cathy Monoxelos of Dracut High School, Carl Coultas of Tewksbury High School, Michelle Denommee of Tyngsboro High School and Mary Frances Mahoney of Lowell High School.

The girls were judged for their general ability as well as good citizenship by their classmates, teachers and members of the DAR committee.

Miss Louise B. Thompson, regent, presided at the business session and announced the next meeting has been scheduled for May 13 and will feature Mrs. Larry Herlacher as guest speaker. She will discuss "Historic Preservation in the Merrimack Valley."

The meeting was followed by a talk given by Mrs. Joseph W. Tiberio, state vice regent who discussed the efforts of six women during the Revolution

MRS. TIBERIO SAID Mary Ludwig, known as "Molly Pitcher" to the soldiers of the Revolution carried water to the wounded and whatever else she could to assist. She later married John Hayes.

The speaker said it was not unusual for women to gather their children and follow their husbands in battle. The women would set up camp close to the battle area.

She also mentioned Penelope Barker who went down in the annals of history for hosting a non-tea party in North Carolina, a year after the Boston Tea Party.

Nancy Hart, she said, was another women who helped the colonies by being cross-eyed. Apparently Nancy Hart thought she was aiming a gun at one British soldier, in Morgantown, but it turned out to be two soldiers she killed.

Lydia Darragh was discussed as being a hero of the Revolutionary War on Dec. 7, 1777.

Mrs. Darragh lived in Philadelphia and on that daee, the British usurped her home. After putting her children to bed, she quietly sat by and listened attentively to what the British soldiers were discussing without their knowledge of her listening. She discovered the British were planning to attack General Washington at Whitemarsh, a short distance from Philadelphia.

UNDER PRETEXT of taking grain to the mill for grinding, she gathered her children and had her son Johnny go through the British lines with a message for Gen. Washington warning him of the plans of attack. As a result, the British lost the battle.

Mary Corbin was another women mentioned by the speaker as being active in the war

Following the program refreshments were served.

LOWELL – "It's the 'first annual'!" exulted Lewis Karabatsos, director of the Lowell Museum, as he doffed top hat and heavy black woolen coat, part of an 1874 "walking suit," in the wake of yesterday afternoon's long awaited "Victorian Promenade" along the banks of the Merrimack.

Luxuriating in the welcome shade of the International Festival Tent, convivial hub of the Greater Lowell Regatta Festival Foundation's 1980 "Oktoberfest," following the Promenade, Karabatsos was among over a score of Greater Lowell men, women and children, rustling in unaccustomed 19th Century attire, now enjoying strawberry and blueberry "crepes," compliments of the Tent's Franco American Centre, to the strains of John Leite's Concert Winds.

WOULD THEY do it all again?

"Anytime!" chorused all who could hear the question over the exuberant brass.

Marie Sweeney, president of the Lowell Historical Society, co-sponsor of the "Victorian Promenade" with the Lowell Museum, revealed that it was inquiries from Lowellians viewing a similar event in Boston which became the nucleus of the idea.

It began snowballing. It still is. The day produced many more inquiries from those attending the Regatta.

"Yes, yes, it's open to the public – anyone can participate. We're looking for as many as we can find," the Promenaders answered bystanders on every side.

The National Park Service, meanwhile, has received a bevy of inquiries regarding workshops to teach people how to construct their own costumes of yesteryear, Sweeney revealed.

Lowell Sun Sept 15, 1980

WITH THE EMERGENCE of consciousness of Lowell as the world's first planned industrial city, initial shyness, even occasional cynicism, is fast giving way to an honest pride in the city where America's unique greatness in history began.

"With a combination of Lowell Historical Society, National Park Service and Lowell School Department efforts, maybe we'll have workshops running by this winter," said Sweeney hopefully.

"We'll have books in the museum, at Lowell City Library and the University of Lowell, so that people can see what clothing worn then was like," she said.

Mary Keefe of St. Michael's parish made several of the costumes for Sunday's event, she noted, adding that Tewksbury's Rev. Jon Martin is readying an outfit like that worn by turn-of-the-century priests for this winter's "Lowell Noel."

Attire from the 1870 through 1917 era , she explained, will be worn for both "Lowell Noel" and the Lowell's "Victorian Ball" scheduled for next May 23. Both events will be open to the public.

The latter will be held in Lowell Memorial Hall – upstairs over the Lowell City Library – which is being restored to its 1917 decor.

Restoration of massive its Civil War murals, among much artwork damaged during a fire there in 1917, is also expected to be completed in time for the Ball, which will be sponsored by the Lowell Historical Society.

"We thought it would be a good role for us within the Lowell Plan," said Sweeney, noting it was the Lowell Historical Society which sponsored Lowell's "Sesquicentennial Ball."

Attired in a striking navy-and-white pin-striped ensemble trimmed in black braid straight out of an 1898 "Harper's Bazaar" – accented by a cotton lace and chiffon jabot, a picture hat of aqua taffeta swirled in aqua netting caught with cabbage roses and a jaunty black antique plume, add a matching parasol – Sweeney had been easily one of the most dramatic of the colorful coterie which moments before had paraded up and down the riverside to the clicking of countless cameras.

Sweeney's young son, Billy, sporting turn-of-the-century tan flannel knickers – pants cuffed just below the knee to cover the tops of knee socks. Beltless, knickers were worn with suspenders. So were Billy's.

The young man allowed they weren't what he'd care to wear every day. But he grinned in the spirit of it all, flicking his tweed cap to an even more rakish angle over his left ear.

He had company in the Promenade among the younger set.

Young Phil Marion, recalling the all-in-black "Little Lord Fontleroy" era, marched with his parents, artist Richard Marion in garb reminiscent of his local grocer grandfather and wife Florence in multi-colored gingham.

Young Chauncey ("Joey") Lambert sported matching velvet vest and knickers and a straw soldier's hat, as he promenaded with artist mother Janet Lambert Moore in an 1890's blouse and skirt.

MANY OF THE GOWNS displayed were originals, boasting petticoats nigh as lavish with handwrought lace as some of the outfits themselves.

Doris Biron of Lowell wore an 1890 original once worn by her grandmother, Mrs. E.H. Russell (nee Dora Spaulding) of Chelmsford.

Helene and daughter Noelle Desjarlais of Lowell wore high collared blouses with dark skirts – outfits inspired by a photograph of Mrs. Desjarlais' grandmother, when she came to the United States in 1906 at the age of 18.

Sponsored by the National Park Service and the Lowell Regatta Committee, the festival included a prominade on Palmer Street by costumed members of the Lowell Historical Society and a performance by the University of Lowell brass ensemble.

Some people doffed their street clothes and ran in the Greater Lowell Road Runners Christmas Fun Run. The 4.2 mile race through the downtown had "no winner, no loser," according to organizer Frank McCabe and drew 80 participants.

The race began at the Palmer Street Fire House, extended out Dutton Street, down Appleton Street, Hurd Street and back into downtown, where runners finished at the old fire house.

The National Park Service served mulled cider and cookies, donated by the Regatta Committee, at its downtown visitors center. The Notre Dame Academy glee club sang under the direction of Sister Mary Francis in St. Anne's Church, and again on Palmer Street.

Members of Art Alive, a group of local artists, displayed their work throughout the day, while people could enjoy bagpipe music by the Campbell Highlanders, and banjo music led by Alex Demas of the Park Service.
